PROPOSAL FOR CENTRAL BUREAU ON U.S. RELIEF

Special Senate Committee Advises Creating Department of Public Works to Direct WPA, PWA, CCC and NYA.

LODGE PREPARING MINORITY REPORT

Projected Change Unlikely to Be Included in Emergency Measure on Which Senate Hearings Start Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—A special Senate committee, proposing broad revision of the relief structure, recommended tonight that Congress consolidate all relief agencies into a single, new Department of Public Works.

The report of the Unemployment Committee was made as the Senate prepared to take up consideration of the relief appropriation bill. The House passed that measure yesterday, after clipping off $150,000,000 from the amount recommended by President Roosevelt and writing in restrictions on WPA policies.

Here are the major recommendations:

1. Creation of a new Department of Public Works to direct activities of the WPA, PWA (if continued), CCC and NYA.
2. Allocation of relief funds to states on the basis of population and the number of unemployed in each state.
3. One-third local contribution to the cost of relief with reduced contribution permitted in states having lower per capita income than the national average.
4. Enactment of a statutory prohibition against politics in relief.
5. Simplification of the standards for payment of unemployment compensation, increasing and speeding up payments.
6. Establishing minimum Federal assistance for the aged, blind and dependent children.
7. Consolidation of unemployment registration agencies.

For Altering States' Share.

It proposed that the average local contribution to the cost of relief be fixed at one-third, except in states where the average income per capita is lower than the similar national average. In approximately one-half of the states which would fall in the latter class, local contributions would be proportionately reduced.

In urging one-third local contribution toward work relief costs, Chairman Byrnes said the committee had in mind applying this average to all of the projects that might be classed in the relief category. He pointed out that unless Congress decided to extend the PWA, it would not figure in this average, so the one-third contribution would apply, for practical purposes, only to the WPA.

Byrnes said he had no figures on the average per capita income showing which states would be permitted to scale down their contributions, but said he thought most Southern and many Western states would fall within this classification.

WPA, PWA, the Civilian Conservation Corps and the National Youth Administration should be brought under one directing head, appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate as the chief of a new Department of Public Works, the committee said. It recommended a permanent Federal assistance program based on unemployment insurance, relief and public works.

To Eliminate Competition.

The committee asserted that creation of a Department of Public Works would eliminate competition between relief agencies.

"Public Works Administration offers a grant of 45 per cent and requires a contribution of 55 per cent in cash or obligations of the local government," the report said. "Works Progress Administration asks of sponsors an average contribution of 22 per cent instead of 55 per cent.

"The two agencies are engaged in construction of public buildings of the same character. The local governments which often assert that they cannot make a contribution of 22 per cent or its equivalent for Works Progress Administration projects, have within the past few months contracted to put up 55 per

HITLER BUILDS AIR 'EAGLE'S NEST' ON ALPINE PEAK

Secret Pavilion Near Berchtesgaden Reached by Tunnel and Elevator.

Copyright, 1939, New York Tribune, Inc.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—Although he has a new palace in the heart of Berlin, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler still prefers height and seclusion. Even his mountainside chalet, Berghoff, at Berchtesgaden in the Bavarian Alps is neither high enough nor remote enough for him, so he has built an iron and glass pavilion or "eagle's nest" on a nearby peak.

Situated on the Kehlstein, the "nest" is approached through a cave 1800 feet below its foundations. From this cave—which is guarded by electrically operated steel doors and which has been converted into a garage large enough for four automobiles—an elevator leads to the pavilion, which can otherwise be approached only by the hardiest mountain climber.

Though the pavilion, which with its entrance cave and elevator shaft piercing the heart of a mountain is reminiscent of the German folklore in which Hitler revels, was completed many months ago, nothing has been published about it in the German press. Only recently have reports concerning the "eagle's nest" begun to circulate in Berlin.

TRIP THROUGH PANAMA CANAL COMPLETED BY U. S. FLEET

80 Men-of-War "Locked Through" in Two Days for Atlantic and Caribbean Maneuvers.

By the Associated Press.

BALBOA, C. Z., Jan. 14.—Admiral C. C. Bloch, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, announced tonight completion of the fleet's transit of the Panama Canal for extensive maneuvers in the Atlantic and Caribbean.

The battleship Mississippi veered into the east bank of Gaillard Cut, but the transit was without serious incident. The battleship suffered no damage, and Admiral Bloch made no mention of its being delayed. The Mississippi was turning into the cut when, reportedly because of its size and because of wind currents, it swerved toward the bank. A tug was summoned from Gamboa, but the battleship returned to its channel under its own power.

Eighty men-of-war were "locked through" after the transit started yesterday. Commercial traffic was excluded from the canal. As soon as the fleet had crossed from the Pacific to Atlantic side, movement of merchantmen was resumed. Eighteen commercial vessels had been delayed at Cristobal and 16 at Balboa.

ONE OF THREE MUSICAS GIVES BAIL; 2 STAY IN PRISON

George Dietrich Out on Bond Questioned Further on McKesson & Robbins Losses.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. — George Dietrich, the oldest of the living Musica brothers, left jail again today on $10,000 bond. Robert Dietrich and George Vernard were unable to make bail.

George Dietrich was taken to the Federal building where authorities resumed questioning him about affairs of the $87,000,000 drug firm of McKesson & Robbins, in an effort to find where approximately $11,000,000 in unaccounted-for funds went.

FIRE DESTROYS MAIN SHURTLEFF COLLEGE BUILDING

Blaze Starts in 4-Story Office Structure at Alton Institution, Oldest in Illinois.

FIREMEN DELAYED IN ANSWERING CALL

Nearest Company Was Answering Another Alarm At Time—Some Property Saved By Students.

The administration building of Shurtleff College, Alton, oldest college in Illinois, was destroyed by a fire which was discovered at 10:20 o'clock last night.

Built about 1850, the four-story brick structure at 2809 College avenue housed the president's, registrar's and treasurer's offices, on the first floor, and classrooms on the second and third floors, the fourth floor not being in use.

The Rev. Dr. C. H. Coleman, president of the college, said that the fire started, from a cause not known, in an annex at the rear of the administration or main building. It was first seen by one of the faculty. No one is known to have been in the building, as there was no class or other activity there on Saturday nights.

Dr. Coleman was not able to estimate the value of the old building, or to state, without consulting records, the amount of insurance carried.

Students Save Some of Contents.

When the first alarm was given, the nearest fire company, that at the Upper Alton fire house, was out on another call. This delayed the effort to save the building, and by the time firemen got into action, flames were issuing from the roof and windows.

Students from the men's dormitory, arriving soon after the fire was discovered, made several quick trips into the first-floor offices, and saved some books and other belong-

Motorists and townspeople filled the streets near the burning building. Firemen gave their attention chiefly to protecting the other building on the 25-acre campus, including the Carnegie Library and the men's and women's dormitories. It was believed that none of the other buildings was in serious danger.

Founded in 1818.

Shurtleff College was founded in 1818 as an institution of the Baptist Church, and was first located at St. Louis, but was removed in 1827 to Rock Springs, St. Clair County, Ill., and in 1832 to Alton.

It was chartered by the Illinois Legislature in 1832 as Alton College, but later took the name of Dr. Benjamin Shurtleff of Boston, who in 1835 gave the institution $10,000, a large gift for that time.

TWO KILLED, FOUR HURT WHEN AUTO SKIDS ON ICE, HITS TRUCK

Two Women Fatally Hurt in Crash on Slippery Road 13 Miles North of Joliet.

By the Associated Press.

JOLIET, Ill., Jan. 14.—A mother and her daughter were killed and four other persons were injured today when their automobile skidded on icy pavement and collided with a truck and trailer.

The dead are Mrs. Angeline Carrado, 59 years old, and her daughter, Mrs. Angeline Hoessler, 30, both of Chicago.

The injured were Alice Carrado, 32, and her daughter, Ellen, 10; Mrs. Stephen Divicenzo, 25, and Angeline Divicenzo, 19, all of Chicago. Physicians at St. Joseph's Hospital said they were seriously injured.

The accident occurred when the automobile, driven by Mrs. Hoessler, and a truck driven by Charles Bennett of Kansas City, Mo., collided on Highway 66, 13 miles north of here.

BRITISH FASCISTS CRY DOWN APPEAL FOR REFUGEE AID

They Roar During Archbishop of Canterbury's Film Appeal—Eight Arrests in London.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—British Fascists demonstrated tonight against an appeal for funds to aid German refugees by London theaters which gave 10 per cent of their night's receipts to the Lord Baldwin fund.

Eight arrests were made and several persons were injured in Piccadilly Circus fights when Fascists tried to distribute pamphlets titled "Britain for the British" to crowds leaving movies.

In some quarters the demonstrators roared so loudly that the film of an appeal by the Archbishop of Canterbury could not be heard.

16,800 IN ST. LOUIS AREA LACK RELIEF FUND FOR JANUARY

No Checks Released by Social Security Commission, G. M. Rassieur of Planning Council Says.

41 Mothers End Sit-Down Demonstration in Aldermen's Gallery When Police Order Them Out.

Approximately 6400 families, 16,800 men, women and children, in St. Louis and St. Louis County face January without funds because no checks for local relief have been released by the Social Security Commission, it was announced yesterday by George M. Rassieur of the Social Planning Council of St. Louis and St. Louis County.

Under normal circumstances, Rassieur says, orders making the funds available would have been issued by Jan. 7, but there is now no indication when the checks will be issued. No new relief cases had been accepted by the local office of the Social Security Commission since Dec. 27, due to lack of funds, Rassieur added.

Mothers Leave on Police Order.

Forty-one mothers, who spent Friday night in the visitors' gallery of the Board of Aldermen after the board ignored their request for a city appropriation for the immediate relief of more than 1000 women dismissed by the WPA, ended their sit-down demonstration at noon yesterday when police arrived to put them out.

Director of Public Safety George W. Chadsey told reporters he had ordered the gallery cleared in the interest of the women's health and to carry out the customary Saturday noon hour closing of City Hall.

A spokesman for the women announced yesterday afternoon that small committees were being formed to call on Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann and the other members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment at their homes to demand immediate aid. Comptroller Louis Nolte, President William L. Mason of the Board of Aldermen and the Mayor form the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

When word reached the women that they were to be ordered out of City Hall, Mrs. Helen McKinney, their leader, cautioned the demonstrators against causing a disturbance, but suggested that "we make the police push us out." Applause followed her remarks.

Police Captain Albert Wetzel appeared at the gallery door shortly before noon and asked the demonstrators to leave quietly. Nine departed without comment. The others waited until 12 o'clock, then filed into the corridor. Uniformed officers and city detectives herded the women out of the building. There were a few sharply voiced remarks, but there was no resistance.

The demonstrators retired to the headquarters of the Project Workers' Union, 2112A Olive street. Late in the afternoon they went to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' hall, 1722 Washington avenue, where they received baskets of food provided by the relief committee of the CIO Industrial Union Council.

Delay at Jefferson City.

Social Security Administrator George Haworth said at Jefferson City yesterday the State could not take care of the women fired by the WPA until the Legislature made more money available for aid to dependent children. Haworth told the House Appropriations Committee Thursday he would need $115,000 a month more, for aid to dependent children. The House resolution authorized the Social Security Commission to spend an amount equivalent to one-eighteenth of its 1937-38 appropriation until appropriation bills were passed later by the Legislature. One-eighteenth of the last appropriation is about $83,000. The Senate has not acted on the resolution.

About 6000 applications for aid to dependent children are awaiting investigation. The Federal Government pays one-third.

ROOSEVELT HONORED IN CHILE

Cables Acceptance of Office in Highway Congress.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—President Roosevelt accepted today the honorary presidency of the third Pan-American Highway Congress which opened Thursday at Santiago, Chile.

He cabled Francisco Mardones, president of the Congress his "profound appreciation of the honor so generously conferred upon me" and his best wishes for the success of the conference.

NAZIS GIVE AMERICAN 6-MONTH JAIL TERM

Naturalized U. S. Citizen Must Serve 4 1-2 Months More for Having Communist Paper.

By the Associated Press.

HAMBURG, Germany, Jan. 14.—A 34-year-old naturalized American, George Joseph Roth, was sentenced today to spend four and a half months more in a Nazi prison as the result of his conviction on charges of "preparation for treason."

Roth, former steward on the United States liner Washington, was arrested Nov. 29, accused of possessing a Communist newspaper printed in the German language in Le Havre, France.

At his one-day trial in the Hanseatic District Court today, Roth testified he did not know the paper had Communistic tendencies.

The Court President told him it was "his duty to examine contents of the paper," and imposed a six-month sentence from which was deducted the month and a half he has spent in jail. No appeal is permitted.

The Court said it was "of the opinion that the defendant was fully aware he possessed a newspaper with Communist tendencies which were directed against Germany. He also knew such papers are prohibited in Germany."

Roth emigrated to the United States from Germany 10 years ago and became a naturalized citizen in 1931.

United States Consul-General Wilbur Keblinger and Vice-Consul Sabin J. Dalferes attended the trial. Roth was represented by an attorney of his own choice.

A high court authority said Roth probably would serve his sentence in Fuhlsbuettel Jail, a house of detention at Hamburg.

U. S. Consul Instructed to Offer Legal Aid to Roth.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. — The State Department said today that it had instructed Wilbur Keblinger, American Consul-General in Hamburg, to communicate with George Roth, immediately and ascertain if he wanted American legal counsel.

I. C. C. REFUSES TO CONSIDER ZONE PASSENGER FARE PLAN

Merely Says "Good Cause" Appears for Declining to Reopen Eastern Railroad's Case.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The interstate Commerce Commission refused today to reopen the eastern passenger fare case to permit John A. Hastings to present his plan for "postalizing" transportation. The commission, in rejecting Hastings' petition, merely said "good cause" appeared for its action.

Hastings, a former New York State Senator, proposed to base passenger fares on a zone—much like the Postoffice Department employs for mail—instead of a mileage basis. Under Hastings' proposal, fares within a zone would range from $1 to $15, depending on which of five classes of service a passenger took. Under it a person could go from New York to Chicago by coach for $1.

Eastern railroads increased their coach fare from two cents to 2.5 cents a mile last July. Reports recently have been heard in railroad circles that theroads were considering a return to the old fare.

ARMY FLYING CADET KILLED IN PLANE CRASH IN TEXAS

Instructor Thrown From Ship on Way Down, but Escapes Death by Using Parachute.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 14.—Flying Cadet Ferrell D. Hooks, 22-year-old Kelly Field student from Kentucky, was killed when the bombardment plane in which he was riding crashed today 10 miles south of San Antonio in the vicinity of Mitchell Lake.

His instructor, First Lieut. Laurence B. Kelley of Gower, Mo., was thrown from the ship shortly before it crashed but managed to use his parachute to land safely.

CATHOLIC ACCEPTS INVITATION TO VIST LOYALIST SPAIN

Head of Embargo Committee Asked to See Religious Conditions for Himself.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. — Louis Kenedy of New York, chairman of the Keep the Spanish Embargo Committee, accepted an invitation tonight from Fernando de los Rios, the Spanish Ambassador, to visit Government Spain and see the condition of religion there.

Kenedy said other members of the committee were willing to go if De los Rios would send them personal invitations.

The Spanish Ambassador publicly invited Catholic dignitaries and others a week ago to visit Spain, asserting there was no truth in reports of oppression of religion in the territory controlled by his Government. Archbishop Michael J. Curley of Baltimore, one of those to whom the invitation was addressed, called it "sham and trickery."

The Keep the Spanish Embargo Committee is sponsored by the National Council of Catholic Men.

$448,000 JOHN BARRYMORE ESTATE FINDS NO TAKERS

Auctioneer Asks in Vain for Bids Starting at $100,000 on Beverly Hills Mansion.

By the Associated Press.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 14.—No takers appeared today when John Barrymore's $448,000 hilltop estate was put up at auction. There was not a bid.

Therefore, Auctioneer W. C. O'Connor, who had spent some eloquence in describing the 22-room mansion and its seven and one-half acres, swimming pools, tennis courts and six-room servants' house, set a new sale date for Feb. 15.

Sightseers surrounded O'Connor at one of the three swimming pools as he started his sales talk. He asked for bids starting at $100,000. No one spoke up, but a woman observed in an aside, "It isn't worth it."

Barrymore purchased the estate, which he now calls "That Chinese tenement," some 10 years ago, when "I had more money than I knew what to do with—easy come—easy go." He bought it from King Vidor, motion picture director.

Barrymore's fourth wife, Elaine Barrie, an actress, would not live on the estate. The actor, his wife and her mother now live in a 10-room home in Bel-Air, near Beverly Hills.

FLYER KILLED AT AIR RACE; HAVANA CONTESTS CANCELED

Third Day's Events Called Off After Capt. Orta, Cuban Army Aviator Loses Life.

HAVANA, Jan. 14.—Capt. Manuel Orta, Cuban army aviator, was killed today in a crash at the municipal air carnival in which 38 American flyers were participating. Officials in charge immediately canceled tomorrow's concluding events of the three-day meet.

Capt. Orta's plane crashed into an unoccupied plane owned by Henry Bender of Toledo, O.

Orta represented the Cuban army at the all-American air meet in Miami last week.

27 NAZI-BAITERS FINED IN CUBA

Assessed $30 Each for Heckling Visiting German Sailors.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Jan. 14. — Twenty-seven persons, including two women, were fined $30 each in Cuban police courts today on disorderly conduct charges for protesting against the visit of the German naval training ship Schlesien.

They were arrested on Havana streets for wearing black armbands, in mourning "for the stay of a Nazi ship in the port of a democratic country."

Trial of Juan Maurice Vinnet on charges of pelting German sailors with orange peels yesterday was postponed pending investigation.

PLANE CAN CLIMB OUT OF SIGHT IN 90 SECONDS

Interceptor Developed Here for Defense Against Bombers Flying High in Air.

A tiny military airplane that can climb out of sight in 90 seconds after taking off has been developed by the Curtiss-Wright Corporation at the Municipal Airport for use in defense against high altitude bombers.

The airplane, called an interceptor, has climbed to 20,000 feet in less than six minutes. Tests of the new plane early this winter puzzled persons near the airport who heard the roar of its motor, but could see nothing.

The one-man low wing monoplane, designated CW 21, has been tested by Army flight experts at Wright Field, Dayton, O. Estimated capable of training its twin machine guns on bombers attacking at average altitude in three minutes after they are reported, it is said to compare favorably with available data on foreign craft of similar function, and to surpass most in climbing speed.

"The interceptor is stripped down to a pair of wings, a man and two machine-guns behind a powerful motor," commented C. W. France, Curtiss-Wright vice-president. "It is built for one purpose, the destruction of bombing planes, and we think it will do the job."

Rapid climb is achieved by lightness, two-speed superchargers on the 600-horsepower Cyclone motor, and a three-bladed propeller which maintains constant revolutions per minute but automatically adjusts its pitch to take thicker or thinner "bites" of air.

Tests show climbing rate of 5000 feet from take-off in 1.6 minutes, 10,000 in 2.8 and 15,000 in 4.2. Cruising speed of more than 300 miles an hour at 17,500 feet and ready climb to twice that altitude were reported.

The machine guns, one .30 and one .50- caliber, are synchronized to fire between the propeller blades. The single seat of the tiny, bare pilot compartment is armor plate. The plane is 26.5 feet long, with 35-foot wing spread, weighs little more than 4000 pounds with full load, and has a range of 600 miles on 96 gallons of gasoline.

LOTTERY "KING" CONVICTED OF EVADING INCOME TAXES

Federal Court Jury at Chicago Finds Abraham F. Zimmerman Failed to Pay U. S. $36,250.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Abraham F. Zimmerman, 32-year-old former newsboy who made a fortune selling lottery tickets, was convicted by a United States District Court jury today of evading $36,250 in income taxes.

The jurors decided he had evaded taxes on his 1930 and 1931 incomes, aggregating $363,280. They acquitted him of a third count charging evasion of $26,000 in taxes on his 1929 income of $135,720. Each count provides for maximum punishment of five years in jail and a fine of $10,000.

Arguments will be heard Wednesday on a motion for a new trial.

Zimmerman's defense was concentrated principally on the contention that he had paid his taxes and that the 1929 charge was outlawed by the statute of limitations.

The Government pictured Zimmerman as "king" of the lottery business from the Eastern seaboard to the Mississippi River, with large bank accounts in Cleveland and Chicago under the name of Joseph White.

G. O. P. ECONOMY CUT IS CUT

Colorado House Democrats Offer to Forego All Travel Allowance.

DENVER, Jan. 14.—Republicans, who rule the Colorado House of Representatives, have offered to accept 7 cents a mile travel allowance instead of the customary 15 cents, as an economy measure.

Democrats, in turn, suggested the legislators accept no allowance at all. They hope to decide Monday what to do.

CZAR NICK'S TAX RETURNS SUBJECT OF U.S. INQUIRY

Federal Action Follows Indictment of Movie Union Chief and "Putty Nose" Brady Under Charges of Extortion.

LEADER GIVES BOND, LEGISLATOR MISSING

Order for Arrest of Latter—Green of A. F. of L. Starts Investigation on Plea of Workers—Heavy Income From Dues.

Federal investigation of the income of John P. Nick, indicted czar of the movie operators' and stagehands' unions, is being conducted to determine whether there has been any violation of the law in his tax returns. Nick was arrested yesterday under an indictment voted Friday, charging him and State Representative Edward M. (Putty Nose) Brady with extortion in connection with a $10,000 payment alleged to have been made to Brady in 1936 by organized movie theater owners.

Ill at his home, Nick gave bond of $25,000 yesterday, and a police guard which had been stationed there Friday night was withdrawn.

An order has been issued to the Police Department for the arrest of Brady, who is missing. He is reported to have gone to Hot Springs, Ark. The Post-Dispatch, in its Night Sport Special Edition Friday, published exclusively the indictment of Nick and Brady.

It has been obvious to persons acquainted with Nick that he has enjoyed a large income.

$10,000 Collected in 1936.

The $10,000 payment alleged to have been made to Brady was collected in September, 1936, from local members of the Motion Picture Theater Owners' Association of Eastern Missouri & Southern Illinois, who were confronted at the time with a demand for a wage increase for movie operators which would have cost them in excess of $104,000 for the ensuing year. There was no such increase, but only a slight readjustment for men in the lower brackets.

In all, a $15,000 "defense fund" was raised by the association in 1936. No information has been obtained as to the disposition of the additional $5000.

There was a $7000 "defense fund" put up by the theater owners in 1937, when the next occasion arose for negotiating the annual contract with Nick's union. Investigators have sought to learn what was done with it. There has been a report that $6500 of it was given to a certain man, who has been identified only by name.

Dominates Four Unions.

Nick's local czardom comprises four unions, all part of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes & Moving Picture Machine Operators, of which he is international vice-president and power behind the throne. The locals, all of which pour a steady flow of cash into the coffers, are the movie operators, No. 143; the stagehands, No. 6; the miscellaneous theatrical employes, No. B-2, and the film exchange employes, No. B-1.

The movie operators are the chief producers, paying 5 per cent of their earnings in assessments every Monday morning, or no work—10 per cent in the case of men employed under union permit, not regular members. It has been estimated by persons familiar with the situation that the weekly payroll, including overtime, for somewhat more than 200 operators in a few more than 100 theaters in St. Louis and the St. Louis County suburban area, is $15,000 and the resultant assessment $1050 a week, or $54,600 a year. In addition there are flat dues of $30 a year for about 155 regular members, or another $4650 a year.

There are about 700 members of the miscellaaneous union, including ushers, ticket sellers, ticket takers and janitors. Their dues are said to be $1.50 a month each, or a total of about $12,600 a year.

Stagehands Close-Mouthed.

The well-paid stagehands, whose numbers are small, presumably pay substantial dues. They are close-mouthed, and remain loyal to Nick, in contrast to the revolt among the movie operators against his domination.

Dues of about 100 film exchange employes are nominal. All four

SWIFT ADVANCE PUTS INSURGENTS WITHIN 37 MILES OF BARCELONA

Franco, With 300,000 Men, Guns on World War Scale, Planes in Squadrons of 100, Trying for Decisive Victory.

DRIVE IS PRESSED, PYRENEES TO SEA

Capture of Peak in North Marks Day's Gains — Loyalists Deny Report of Fall of Walled Town, Air Base, Near Mediterranean

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), Jan. 14.—Spanish insurgents announced tonight they had reached the border of Barcelona Province and were only 37½ miles from Barcelona, Government capital, in their drive for a decisive victory in the civil war.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco has thrown an army of 300,000 men into action against Government lines defending Barcelona, with infantry reported supported by artillery fire on a World War scale and with airplanes massed in squadrons of 100 each.

Operations are reported being speeded up on a 100-mile front from the Pyrenees Mountains east of Andorra, near the French border, southward through Lerida and Tarragona provinces to the Mediterranean.

13-Mile Advance in Day.

Insurgents were said to have entered Barcelona Province on its western boundary through capture of Codom Peak in the Sierra de Queralt. This marked an advance of nearly 13 miles since morning for the northern column of the central army corps. The column sent back word of capture of important villages and towns in quick succession throughout the day.

Besides the occupation of Codom Peak, insurgents reported that 20 miles to the south their troops had captured the walled town of Valls, Government air base 12 miles north of the Port of Tarragona. Government reports denied this.

Moroccan troops operating along the Mediterranean were said to have swept up the coast toward Tarragona, capturing the port of Fangal. The insurgents also announced the occupation of Hospitalet, on the Mediterranean coast, 24 miles north of Tortosa and 16 miles southwest of Tarragona.

Maneuvers by forces east of Falset were reported to have cut the main coastal highway about 15 miles below Tarragona and to have blocked retreat northward of large forces of the loyalist troops.

The day's fighting was reported to have resulted in capture of considerable Government war stores and 1000 prisoners.

Diversion Moves Fail.

Government counteroffensives in Southwestern Spain and in the Brunete sector west of Madrid appeared to have failed as diversions.

The Government was reported pressing all Spanish citizens between the ages of 17 and 55, including women, into military reserves. A Government decree has authorized the defense Ministry to use the new reserves in any service.

The Government, which said its forces had effected an orderly withdrawal without suffering heavy losses, reported it was entrenching for a strong stand in the Tarragona region. The civilian population of this principal port of Southern Catalonia was said to have left, excepting only able-bodied men who could strengthen the fortifications.

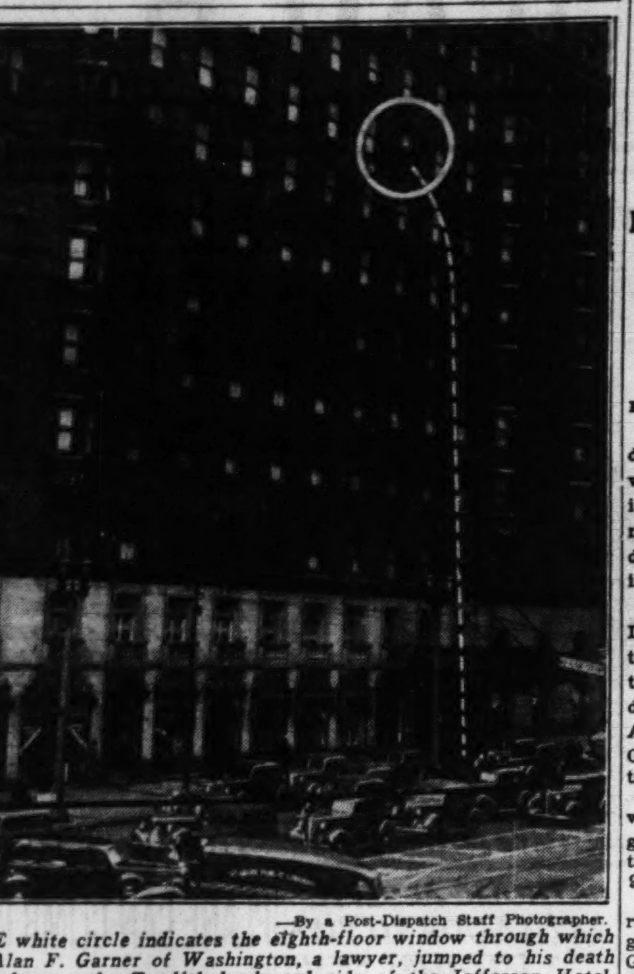
Where Attorney Leaped to Death



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

THE white circle indicates the eighth-floor window through which Alan F. Garner of Washington, a lawyer, jumped to his death yesterday on the Twelfth boulevard side of the Jefferson Hotel. The dotted line shows the course of his fall.

MAN JUMPS TO DEATH FROM 8TH FLOOR ROOM

Washington Attorney Plunges Through Glass of Jefferson Hotel Window.

Alan F. Garner of Washington, a patent lawyer, jumped to his death shortly after 1 p. m. yesterday through the glass of a window in his room on the eighth floor of the Jefferson Hotel. In St. Louis on legal business, he had suffered a recurrence of a nervous condition which resulted in a breakdown several months ago.

He grazed the marquee over the Twelfth street entrance of the hotel, breaking off some of the letters in the name "Jefferson," then struck the sidewalk just south of the entrance. A traffic policeman at Twelfth and Locust streets, and a woman at Twelfth and Olive saw him fall. A man about to enter the hotel did not see him, and the falling body narrowly missed him.

Garner's secretary, Miss Mildred Keyes, said she had been with him in Room 844, seeking to calm his nervous condition until medical aid arrived. While she was talking to him, she related, he lighted a cigarette and walked into Room 842. A moment later she heard a crash of glass and hurried across the hall to report to his associates in a lawsuit pending here, Wayne Ely of St. Louis and Albert L. Krey of Washington, one of Garner's law partners.

With the partner Garner had come here Monday for the trial of a trade-mark infringement suit set for hearing Thursday before United States District Judge Charles B. Davis. The trial was postponed until Feb. 13, however, because of Garner's nervous condition. Krey said Garner had disregarded the advice of a physician yesterday that he go to a hospital for treatment.

Garner was 47 years old, married and father of two sons. He was a partner in the law firm of Dorsey, Cole & Garner in Washington and resided at Falls Church, Va., not far from Washington.

WISCONSIN SENATE REPEALS SOME LA FOLLETTE REFORMS

26 Governmental Reorganization Shifts Discarded by G. O. P.-Democratic Coalition.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 14.—The State Senate, by a vote of 20 to 11, today repealed all the 26 governmental reorganization shifts enacted by executive order under former Governor Philip La Follette, Progressive.

The Republican-Democratic coalition performed what some members described as a funeral service over the major section of the 1937 reorganization act under which the last legislature delegated broad powers to the executive.

When legal formalities are completed, all departments and bureaus will revert to their former status, as disapproval of the Senate alone was sufficient to invalidate the orders.

STREPTOCOCCUS TRANSFUSION

Patient Given Blood From Person Who Once Had Infection.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14.—Mrs. Anna Schneer, gravely ill with a streptococcus infection, was given tonight a transfusion from a volunteer who recovered from the disease. Dr. William E. Robertson, who sent out an appeal for donors, said his patient had reacted favorably. He said a New Jersey person furnished the blood used.

He said many persons who had survived streptococcic infections responded, but that only a few of them had had streptococcus viridans, which he asserted was "almost 100 per cent fatal."

NEW G. O. P. GOVERNOR FIRES 1047 IN OHIO

500 More to Go This Week; Jobs Being Abolished to Avoid More Taxes.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 14. — The administration of Ohio's new Republican Governor, John W. Bricker, which has fired 1047 State employes in five days, planned tonight the discharge of 500 more next week.

Back of the shakeup lay Gov. Bricker's promise to avoid new taxes by eliminating what he termed "a needless waste of public funds."

Salary savings made thus far were estimated unofficially at $1,400,000 a year. There was no estimate of the amount saved by cancelation of orders for materials and supplies placed by former Gov. Martin L. Davey, and his Democrat administration.

Department heads, ordered by Bricker to "cut to the bone," abolished the positions of most of those fired.

Highway Director Robert S. Beightler eliminated today the positions of 465 workers, most of them maintenance and construction division employes. He predicted 500 more discharges in his department next week.

The Highway Department, regarded in the past as a major patronage unit, has been hit hardest by the "purge," losing 580 workers.

Discharges in other departments included: Liquor Store System, 265; Tax Commission, 170; Fire Marshal's Division, 14; Industrial Relations Division, 13; Welfare, 5.

Republican legislative leaders and others reputed to have political influence about the Capitol were swamped with telephone calls and telegrams imploring their aid to save as many jobs as possible.

The situation would not be so serious, they argued, if the Democrats were fired and their jobs left vacant for Republicans. In most cases the jobs themselves have been abolished.

One Republican legislative leader said he had informed all those seeking his aid that "nothing can be done."

Gov. Vanderbilt of Rhode Island Fires 122 for Economy.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 14.—Following out his pre-election economy pledge, Gov. William H. Vanderbilt ordered this week the discharge of 122 State employes, and indicated more dismissals would follow. Two weeks ago, 200 men in the Public Works Department were fired.

Meanwhile, the Governor's bill to reorganize the State's departments in an attempt to save $1,000,000 a year, was presented to the General Assembly and went to committee, with indications that it would be reported out next week.

The entire division of elections, including its $5000-a-year chairman, Robert E. Kelley, was dropped today.

BRAZIL ACCEPTS ROOSEVELT BID TO CONFERENCE

Foreign Minister Aranha to Discuss "Questions of Importance" in Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—President Roosevelt has invited Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, Brazil foreign minister, to come to Washington next month as the Government's guest to discuss "various questions of great importance" to the two countries.

This was disclosed today by State Department officials who indicated the conversations would center on trade expansion and on exchange difficulties which have restricted American exports to Brazil where Germany has centered its intense trade drive in Latin America.

President Roosevelt's invitation was sent to President Getulio Vargas on Jan. 9 and was accepted yesterday. Aranha will arrive Feb. 9.

"There have arisen during the recent months various questions of great importance in which our two Governments are equally interested," the President said in his telegram to the President of Brazil. "It would be particularly gratifying if these matters could be discussed in direct conversations between high officials of our respective Governments in that frank and friendly manner and in that spirit of mutual helpfulness which fortunately are traditional in the relations between Brazil and the United States."

Brazil Accepts.

Vargas readily accepted the invitation on behalf of Aranha who served for several years as ambassador to Washington.

Germanys' economic penetration in Latin America has been particularly impressive in Brazil where Germany thrust the United States into second place in 1938 in the sale of goods, although this country still is Brazil's best customer for exports.

In connection with Aranha's forthcoming visit, it was recalled that the Treasury Department recently announced it was investigating the possibilities of lending money in Latin America to stimulate American trade there.

This announcement followed a survey of trade possibilities made by Dr. Warren Lee Pierson, president of the Export-Import bank, who toured Latin America in 1938.

Previous Visit in 1914.

Dr. Aranha will be the second Brazilian Foreign Minister to come here as the guest of the Government. Dr. Laro Miller made a similar trip in the summer of 1914 and various Presidents, Presidents-elect and Prime Ministers have visited the United States as guests of the Government.

National defense problems also may enter into the forthcoming conversations. Brazil attempted to lease six destroyers from the United States in 1937 for training purposes, but the move was abandoned after some objections had been raised here and in Argentina. The United States, however, has lent naval and military missions to Brazil and is considering lending agricultural experts and advisers to that country.

Welles on Topics to Come Up.

Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, who is expected to take a leading part in the discussions, with Aranha, said there were two general types of questions to be taken up at the meetings which may last for a week or 10 days. These, he said, included certain matters to be discussed at the State Department including foreign exchange difficulties and ways and means by which the reciprocal trade agreement can be implemented to provide better flow of trade between the two countries.

Although today's announcement mentioned only the forthcoming Brazilian Foreign Minister's visit, it was thought likely by most observers that similar conversations might be undertaken with other countries in the near future.

Col. Fulgencio Batista, Cuban Chief of Staff, visited Washington last November as an official guest to discuss trade and other matters.

BILL TO REGULATE EXPORTS OF SCRAP METALS DRAFTED

Schwellenbach Says He Will Ask Senate Tomorrow to Act to Conserve Those Vital in Wartime.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Senator Schwellenbach (Dem.), Washington, who frequently has been a spokesman for the administration, proposed tonight Government regulation of all exports of scrap metals in order to conserve national supplies of those that are vital in wartime.

He said he had drafted a bill for introduction Monday to require licenses for such exports.

While there was no indication whether his measure had administration backing, it is known that War Department officials for some time have been considering a concerted movement to hoard supplies of secondary metals as a part of the national defense program. It was learned that the Bureau of Mines already has arranged to establish soon a secondary metals section to "formulate a sound public policy."

Rise in Scrap Iron Exports.

Licenses now are required for exports of tin and tin scrap, a metal which this country imports in large quantities. Some national defense experts have expressed concern, too, that the present heavy exports might drain possible military reserves of scrap iron.

Exports of scrap iron have increased from 227,500 long tons in 1932 to 4,095,000 in 1937. Japan alone increased purchases from 164,500 tons to 1,091,000. Great Britain, which had been taking less than 1000 tons five years ago, jumped purchases to 845,000. Italian orders increased from 6700 to 381,400 tons, and German from about 100 long tons to 88,000.

Control over all exports of scrap metals, in addition to conserving existing national supplies, would give the administration a powerful economic weapon in world affairs.

Schwellenbach, commenting on his bill, said scrap iron "is the same as bullets—a means to make war. It is not consistent with the policy of preparation for national defense to permit unregulated exports."

Against Limit on Air Force.

Meantime, it was reported in military circles that the administration would recommend removing all congressional limitations on the size of the army's air forces.

The army now has authority to increase the air corps to 4120 planes. Advocates of making "the sky the limit" said there was no thought that the air force would be built in the early future beyond the 3000-plane increase recommended by President Roosevelt, but only that no arbitrary limit should be set. Irrespective of any limit, Congress could control the size by the amount it appropriated for aircraft.

The Senate Military Committee will begin secret hearings Tuesday on President Roosevelt's recommendations for $552,000,000 in emergency expenditures for national defense. Army officials will be the first witnesses.

Chairman Sheppard (Dem.), Texas, said the committee would make an extensive study of national defense problems.

Dispute Over Neutrality Act.

Several informed legislators predicted strong bi-partisan support for the defense program, but said there would be sharp resistance to any proposal to revise the Neutrality Act. President Roosevelt hinted in his annual message that some revision of the act would be recommended.

Senator Johnson (Rep.), California, declared, "I am for defense, but I don't want to go beyond defense."

If the Neutrality Act were amended to permit the President to apply it only to aggressor nations, Johnson said, it would be tantamount to giving the chief executive "the power of declaring war."

Governor of Nyasaland Dies.

BLANTYRE, Nyasaland, Jan. 14.—Sir Harold Kittermaster, governor of Nyasaland protectorate, died today. He was 59 years old. He had been governor of British Somaliland from 1926 to 1931 and of British Honduras from 1932 to 1934.

France to Parade Its Strength In Mediterranean This Week

Fleet Maneuvers, Inspection of African Defenses, Launching of 35,000-Ton Warship Viewed as Warning to Italy.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 14.—France ordered today displays of force from one end of the Mediterranean to the other, apparently against what the Daladier Government considers the aggressive attitude of Italy.

The French Atlantic and Mediterranean fleets were ordered to show their strength off Africa's northwest coast in maneuvers which will coincide with the Mediterranean visit of the British home fleet on a regular spring cruise.

Three submarines received instructions to proceed to Syria, where demands for freedom from French control have caused rioting.

French army and navy commanders-in-chief were told to make tours of inspection of African colonial fortifications.

The Government prepared to make a big demonstration over the launching of the Richelieu, France's first 35,000-ton battleship, at Brest next Tuesday.

Bonnet and Halifax to Confer.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet was to leave for Geneva to confer with Viscount Halifax, British Foreign Secretary, before attending a League of Nations Council meeting beginning Monday.

Halifax, on his way to Geneva from Rome, will inform Bonnet on the "appeasement talks" between British Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Mussolini. Pessimism prevails in French official circles over the outcome of the Rome talks, and, therefore, over the possibility of clearing up the Mediterranean situation, clouded by Fascist territorial aspirations at French expense.

Little Accomplished at Rome.

The French government received from its ambassador to Rome a report indicating that little if anything had been accomplished in the conversations between Mussolini and Chamberlain despite the "cordial nature" of the visit. The report was based on an interview between Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and the ambassador, Andre Francois-Poncet.

Mussolini, it said, did not raise claims for French territory already advanced unofficially by Fascists, and when Chamberlain reminded him of the close link between France and Britain, Mussolini did not ask the British to mediate the French-Italian quarrel.

Concern also was felt over the swift drive of the Spanish insurgents toward Barcelona, carrying Italian influence closer to France's southern frontier, and over unconfirmed reports of new Italian troop concentrations in East Africa. One of the targets of Fascist territorial clamor has been Djibouti, France's strategic seaport on the Gulf of Aden.

Situation in Syria.

The three submarines were scheduled to leave Toulon Wednesday for Beirut, chief port for Syria and Lebanon, both under French mandate. Syrian Nationalist agitation for immediate separation from French rule led to clashes last night and today in Damascus and other towns in which at least 21 persons were injured.

(France promised Syria and Lebanon their independence this year in treaties signed in 1936. Because of disturbed Mediterranean conditions, however, France recently made it known she intends to revise the facts and keep a military and naval foothold in Syria. She has not ratified the treaties.)

Gen. Maurice Gamelin, chief of staff of national defense, and Rear Admiral Jean Darlan, chief of staff of the navy, will sail Thursday for Algeria and then proceed overland to Casablanca, French Morocco, where the combined Mediterranean and Atlantic fleets will make their rendezvous.

British Fleet to Sail Tuesday.

The British fleet will leave its home ports Tuesday. The next day the French Mediterrarean fleet will leave Toulon and the Atlantic fleet will sail from Brest. France's Mediterranean unit, at least, was expected to meet the British home fleet.

At the launching of the Richelieu on the eve of the fleets' departures, France also will lay the keel for another 35,000-ton battleship, the Clemenceau. Both are part of a program of four 35,000-ton capital ships. Ultimately, the Richelieu will carry eight 15-inch guns capable of firing a broadside of eight tons of projectiles a distance of approximately 35 miles.

Many Italians With Improper Papers Expelled from Tunisia.

By the Associated Press.

TUNIS, TUNISIA, Jan. 14.—A large number of Italians whose identification papers were found to be irregular were expelled today by authorities of this French North African protectorate. They were placed aboard ships bound for Italy and sent across the frontier into neighboring Italian Libya.

Refugees crossing from Libya into Tunisia reported Italian authorities had decreed fines of 500 lire ($26.30) for all Libyan Arabs discovered listening to French radio broadcasts from Tunisia. They said second offenders were liable to a month's imprisonment.

ITALIANS SAID TO HAVE FLOWN DEEP INTO FRENCH SOMALILAND

Plane Apparently Scouting Territory Into Which Reinforcements Were Sent.

By the Associated Press.

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Jan. 14.—An Italian airplane was reported today to have flown deep over French Somaliland territory, apparently scouting the area into which French troop reinforcements moved this week.

Reports from the interior said the plane yesterday flew over the strategic Dekkil Mountain district, about 50 miles from the Etthiopian border. The Dekkil area is north of the Djibouti-Addis Ababa Railroad, which has been one of the causes of friction between France and Italy. It lies to the south of the other main French line of communications in Somaliland, the road from Gobad, on the Ethiopian border, which runs northeast to the Red Sea.

The reports said the plane flew over the village of Alisabiet.

Detachments of Senegalese sharpshooters, sent from France to reinforce local garrisons, started moving up to the frontier two days ago. Almost simultaneously there were reports of Italian troop concentrations along the borders of the French colony.

U. S. DISCLOSES FIRM SENDING JAPAN PLANES

United Aircraft Named as the "One Outstanding Exception" in Unofficial Boycott.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. — The State Department said today the United Aircraft Corporation of East Hartford, Conn., was the "one outstanding exception" among airplane companies in not conforming to the department's policy, adopted six months ago, of keeping American aircraft out of the hands of armies bombing civilian populations.

The department announced it issued a license to this corporation in December to export to Japan 600 propeller blade forgings valued at $102,000.

In making the announcement the department called attention to a letter Secretary of State Hull addressed to all manufacturers and exporters of airplanes and airplane parts last July 1, in which it was stated the Government condemned bombing of civilian populations or its material encouragement.

Manufacturers and exporters were advised the department "would with great regret issue any license" authorizing exportation of any airplanes, engines, parts, accessories or airplane armament and aerial bombs or torpedoes "to countries the armed forces of which are making use of airplanes for attack upon civilian populations."

"As stated in the third annual report of the National Munitions Control Board," the department said today, "American manufacturers of aircraft and aircraft parts with only one outstanding exception have conformed to this policy. This exception is the United Aircraft Corporation of East Hartford, Conn."

It was explained at the department that it was necessary to issue the license inasmuch as no arms embargo applies to Japan.

Licenses totaling $3,101,767.82 were issued during December. The largest single order was for military aircraft, worth $1,159,860, for France. Munitions valued at $5,368,027.41 actually were shipped from the United States during December.

Aircraft Concern Head Won't Comment on State Department Charges.

By the Associated Press.

EAST HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 14.—Donald L. Brown, president of the United Aircraft Corporation, said today he had no comment to make at present upon a State Department announcement that the corporation was the "one outstanding exception" in not conforming to the policy of keeping American aircraft from those Powers bombing civilian populations.

POLICE PUT HEAD OF TENANT UNION OUT OF MISSOURI

J. R. Butler Led to Arkansas Line After He Urges Sharecroppers to Go Back to Farms.

LANDLORDS BARGAIN FOR THOSE WHO DO

Highway Patrol Declares Roadside Campers Are Health Menace and Tells Them to Move.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SIKESTON, Mo., Jan. 14.—Weariness and confusion, punctuated by occasional bitterness, marked tonight the end of the fifth day of the roadside encampment in Southeastern Missouri of 1200 evicted sharecroppers and tenant farmers.

The confusion was caused by uncertainty of the sharecroppers, most of whom are Negroes, on what to do about an order from Marvin B. Casteel, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, who told them to move or be forcibly ejected from their miserable roadside shelters.

Bitterness arose when Casteel's men escorted out of the State the president of the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union, J. R. Butler, who had come from his home in Memphis, Tenn., to advise the demonstrators, many of whom belong to his union, to go back if their former landlords would take them. Butler was summoned to a conference with Casteel and then put out of Missouri at the Arkansas line.

Bargaining for Tenants.

Irritability cropped out also when the landlords bargained with each other and with the sharecroppers as to who would take whom back.

A highway patrolman suggested to one Mississippi County landlord that he take a certain Negro back. "I don't want him back," the landlord said, "He's lazy."

"Oh, all right, I'll take him," another owner volunteered. When one farmer was asked to do likewise, he replied: "I didn't make them leave and I don't want them back."

With Butler gone and with O. H. Whitfield, Negro, the original leader of the demonstration, in St. Louis, the sharecroppers were without a head. They were divided as to what to do. One group was characterized by an aged Negro who said: "I'll go any place where I can get something to live on."

But another Negro, with a wooden leg, when told he would have to move, said: "I'm not going to be handled like a dog."

Casteel said that he had been ordered by Dr. Harry Parker, State Health Commissioner, to move the wanderers from the roadside because they "constituted a menace to public health."

"Are Shacks Healthier?"

Whitfield, when informed in St. Louis of the reason for the removal, said: "Do they think those shacks my people have been living in are any healthier?"

The unprecedented number of evictions in Southeast Missouri was caused this year, the sharecroppers say, because landlords wanted to get the full benefit of Government crop reduction checks. As long as they had sharecroppers, they would have to share the benefits with them.

If the sharecroppers go back to work as day laborers, they will get 75 cents a day for the days that they work.

By last night about 175 persons had been taken to various farms, by truck and Highway Patrol car, from camps on Highway 60, between Sikeston and Charleston. Patrol officers estimated 800 would remain at the roadsides during the night. Plans for housing those who would not, or could not, go back to farms were still incomplete.

Food Sent From St. Louis.

It will be another two or three days at least before all of the campers have been moved, Capt. A. D. Sheppard of the Highway Patrol, said. "They are stubborn and reluctant to make preparations to move," he added, "until we finally convince them there's no alternative."

Food, of which the campers have had little, was brought down last night from St. Louis by members of the Industrial Union Council and the Greater St. Louis Lodge of Colored Elks. About 70 persons got food orders from the surplus commodity depots at Charleston and New Madrid and others received food and money donations from motorists. Residents of Kinlock Park, St. Louis County Negro community, organized into an "emergency club," brought an automobile load of food and clothing and planned to return with more tomorrow.

Washington dispatches said yesterday the Department of Agriculture announced that first reports by its investigators indicated no public officials had a part in organizing the demonstration. Landowners had charged that Hans Baasch, manager of a Farm Security Administration project near Sikeston, helped make arrangements.

Evicted From Shacks, Now Driven From Roadside

STATE Highway patrolmen started clearing Southeastern Missouri roads of sharecroppers yesterday, providing trucks to take families and their belongings back to the planters who evicted them, or to temporary relief camps.

Czar Nick's Tax Returns Put Under Federal Inquiry

fields are thoroughly unionized. The foregoing partial estimates account for an aggregate of nearly $72,000 a year in union income, not allowing for initiation fees.

Expenses of the unions are not known. Each of the four locals has a paid business manager and there is a small headquarters office force. The unions also pay for operation of the rather elaborate headquarters on the second floor at 4 South Eighth street, corner of Market street. Some of the officers, besides the business managers, may be salaried. It is possible, in accordance with the practice of many unions, that part or all of Nick's salary may be paid by the international. He is business manager of the stagehands' local and president of the movie operators.

Elections and His Sideline.

Although there was an annual election of officers and a semi-annual audit of funds in the movie operators' union before Nick took control in July, 1935, members have complained that there have been no elections since and only one audit, which was read at a meeting in July, 1936. However, veteran members have asserted that they could not understand the report as it was read and there were no copies made available.

At one meeting, complainants have said, names of 47 members were not read. They took the stand that, if they were not sure how many members there were, they could not gauge the volume of dues and assessments.

Nick has a sideline in The Voice of Labor, a tabloid monthly labor paper. Nick is president of The Voice of Labor Publishing Co., incorporated for $3000, and is listed as owner of a quarter of the 300 shares.

The bench warrant for Nick, issued yesterday by Circuit Judge Edward M. Ruddy, was served at Nick's home, 2941 Russell boulevard, by Sheriff James J. Fitzsimmons. Nick, seriously ill with arthritis, lay in bed as the Sheriff read the paper. The police guard was stationed in the house Friday night, against the possibility of Nick's departure, although police were assured by Nick's physician that he could not be moved under any circumstances. Two city detectives were relieved by a deputy left in the house by the Sheriff for several hours until $25,000 bail was furnished by Nick.

Sureties on Nick's Bond.

Judge Ruddy fixed the amount of the bond on recommendation of Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller, but Nick's lawyer, Sigmund M. Bass, protested it was excessive. Six sureties qualified for it in court, then Judge Ruddy had the courtroom clerk, Bernard Schmidt, take it to Nick's bedside for the principal's signature. Thereafter, upon the formality of notice from the Judge, the guard was removed and the bond was effective.

The sureties and their wealth above liabilities, as stated by them, are: Walter P. Nick, newspaper distributor, the defendant's brother, and his wife, Catherine, 2711 South Kingshighway, $46,500; Arthur Dill, president of the Carondelet Brewing Co., and brother-in-law of John Nick, 4042 Quincy street, $60,000; Sam Silk, professional bondsman, 5966 De Giverville avenue, $34,000; Harry F. Renzenbrink, tavern owner, and his wife, Marie, 1300 North Market street, $24,000.

Bass announced that he was retained as Nick's attorney Friday night. He said to a Post-Dispatch reporter: "Nick has assured me he is not guilty. He told me he has represented the men of his organization to the best of his ability and did not take one cent from anybody that didn't belong to him."

Brady Absent for Week.

A bench warrant has not been issued for Brady, in view of his disappearance for the last week. It was reported in informed circles last night that a lawyer had told friends Brady would surrender tomorrow.

At the request of Chief of Detectives John J. Carroll, the State Highway Patrol looked for Brady Friday night at two undisclosed places in Missouri. Detectives were unable to find him at his home, 1425 Hills terrace, near Taylor and Easton avenues, or at any of his usual haunts.

Although the Legislature of which he is a member, is just getting into full swing, he has not been at Jefferson City since Monday, when he made a general denial to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he received the theater owners' money or knew anything of their fund.

Brady's automobile has been found in a public garage at 3740 Sullivan avenue.

Punishment Provided.

Punishment on conviction under the extortion charge may be two to five years in the penitentiary. The indictment is based on section 4060 of the Revised Statutes, covering the offense technically described as robbery in the third degree. This section deals with threats to do injury to person or property resulting in the extortion of money.

The $10,000 alleged payment to Brady was through a check, drawn to "Cash," signed by Clarence H. Kaimann and Louis Landau, theater owners who collected the 1936 "defense fund," and indorsed with the name, "Edward M. Brady." The money is said to have gone to Brady in new $500 bills upon cashing of the check.

Investigators, comparing this indorsement with signatures of Representative Brady on legislative pay vouchers, concluded there was no doubt the same hand had signed in both places.

Contributions to the fund were $150 or more from each theater involved. The St. Louis Amusement Co. was expected to pay $200 for each of 20 neighborhood theaters in its chain, but was reported to have given $3900—the largest single subscription.

Union Sought Pay Increases.

The union was seeking a pay increase of $10 a week for each operator, but abandoned the demand. There are two operators at each theater—one for each projector—by union rule and, in the city, by an ordinance sponsored by Nick. Thus the increase would have cost each house $20 a week or $1040 for the year, and all the houses in excess of $104,000 for the year, on the basis of full-time operation. On the other hand, the increase, had it been granted, would have added $5200 or more to the union's coffers under the percentage system of assessments.

In 1937, for its next annual contract, the union sought an increase to $75 a week for operators getting $40 to $55, but wound up with only a small raise in the lower pay brackets, the cost of which was offset by an extension of working time which reduced overtime pay costs.

The 1937 "defense fund" was collected, theater men have said, by Kaimann and Walter A. Thimmig, another theater owner. Thimmig has been a witness before the grand jury. In response to the question, "Who got the money?" he told a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday: "I've been asked that question quite a few times; I'm not talking." He said he contributed to the 1936 fund, but not the one in 1937. Pressed for details about his part in the 1937 activity, he said: "I've told my complete story and have shielded no one." Kaimann has denied he had anything to do with the 1937 fund, but admitted there was a collection the previous year.

Report of Bundle Payment.

The Post-Dispatch has learned of a report that $6500 cash, wrapped in a newspaper, was paid to a man, in Thimmig's parked automobile, a block from a South Side bank, in November, 1937. The identity of the recipient has not been made clear.

There was no "defense fund" last year and the union obtained a pay increase of $2.50 a week for operators in the lower brackets.

News of the 1936 fund was published first in the Post-Dispatch June 1, 1937. In recent weeks the Post-Dispatch has disclosed many additional developments in the relations between Nick and the theater owners.

Representative Brady, some time in the past, had a plastic operation on his nose, which eliminated to a considerable extent the smashed feature which gave him the sobriquet "Putty Nose." Old acquaintances, who had some difficulty in recognizing him after the operation, supposed the disfiguration was the result of too many collisions with clenched fists. Nick is known to associates as "Big John," because of his massive build.

Greens Direct Inquiry.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter by telephone from Washington yesterday that he had directed George E. Browne, international president of the union of movie operators and stagehands, to make a thorough investigation of the actions of Nick in running the local unions.

Browne, who was in Los Angeles when reached by Green by telephone earlier yesterday, told Green he probably would be in Chicago tomorrow and would come to St. Louis or send a "capable representative" to make the investigation, Green said.

"I suppose Browne's final action will depend on the facts," Green added remarking that he had been trying for several days to communicate with Browne.

Asked whether there was any action he would take other than relying on Browne's inquiry, Green declared: "Everything I can do will be done; wait and see." In response to another question, he said he was not familiar with the close working relationship between Browne and Nick. He had seen Nick, but did not know him, and recalled that Nick had opposed him in the contest in last August's Democratic primary between Congressman C. Arthur Anderson and A. J. Pickett. Green backed Anderson, who won; Nick was for Pickett.

Petition by Union Members.

A petition signed by a large block of members of the movie operators' union, asking for relief from Nick's domination, was sent by registered mail yesterday to Browne, whose office is in New York.

There were 106 members eligible to sign the petition, on the basis of having been in the union before Nick took command in 1935. By Friday night more than 90 of them had signed and those handling the paper indicated that the others would add their names. Omitting charges against Nick, the petition asks specifically that an election of officers be held and local autonomy restored.

At a recent stormy meeting of the union, when the business manager, Clyde A. Weston, Nick's lieutenant, forced through a vote of confidence in Nick, 49 names of members who joined after Nick took charge were reported to have been called.

Kaimann, the theater owner-collector, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter Friday that he had received a telephone call Thursday from a man identifying himself as a representative of the American Federation of Labor. The caller sought an interview with Kaimann.

OFFICER FIRES AT AUTO LEAVING CRASH SCENE

Bullets Miss Driver but Detectives Capture Him After Several-Block Chase.

A Negro motorist who fled after his automobile collided with another at Fourteenth and O'Fallon streets last night, under fire of a policeman who saw the accident, was arrested half an hour later by detectives after a chase of several blocks.

The occupants of the other machine, Richard Conigliaro and his mother, Mrs. Jennie Conigliaro, both of 1721 North Sarah street, were injured and taken to City Hospital. Mrs. Conigliaro suffered fractures of collarbone and wrist, her son lacerations and bruises.

Patrolman Fred Liekweg of the Carr Street District, who fired two shots at the car, got the license number, which was broadcast. The detectives saw the machine speed past a stop sign at Twentieth street and Cass avenue and followed it west, past another sign at Twenty-third street.

The driver, arrested at Jefferson and Sheridan avenues, said he was Alexander Stevens, laborer, 4341 St. Ferdinand avenue. He was booked for felonious wounding, careless driving, driving while intoxicated and failing to obey stop signs.

Mrs. Ann Busheau, 72 years old, 4544 Laclede avenue, suffered a fractured ankle last night when an automobile in which she was riding collided with a truck at Newstead avenue and Papin street. The truck driver abandoned his machine and ran away.

CANNON DEFENDS THE W P A

No Critic Has Offered Substitute, Says Missouri Congressman.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Representative Cannon (Dem.), Missouri, said tonight the Works Progress Administration was an honest, non-partisan organization for which no critic had offered a substitute.

"It has served the purpose for which it was created," he said in a radio address. "All over the country families have been rehabilitated—saved from suffering and tided over an abyss the depth of which can only be surmised."

HOW LINDBERGH CASE REWARD WAS SPENT

One Man Put His Share Into Bonds — Another Spent $5000 and Got Job as Laborer.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Most of the $21,500 paid to nine persons out of the $25,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of Bruno Richard Hauptmann is gone, a year after it was paid.

Cecilia Barr, theater cashier who swore Hauptmann gave her a Lindbergh ransom bill, spent almost all her $1000 on an illness that lasted seven months, her mother said today.

Charles F. Cody and William R. Strong, bank tellers who identified a ransom bill passed by Hauptmann, each got $2000. Cody spent some on an illness; Strong will build a house.

William J. Allen, the Negro truckman who found the baby's body, spent his $5000 with a free hand and became a laborer in Philadelphia.

Willard Whited, who placed Hauptmann near the Lindbergh estate, is missing, and so is his $1000. Hunterton County Prosecutor Lloyd Fisher, who defended Hauptmann at the trial, said Whited is accused of obtaining a load of wood by false pretenses.

Information about Amandus Hockmuth, who gave testimony similar to Whited's and got $1000, was lacking.

John J. Lyons, gas station attendant who received a ransom bill from Hauptmann, spent his $1000 in five hours on furniture, but Walter Lyle, the station manager who jotted down the number of Hauptmann's automobile license, put his $7500 into Government bonds.

Joseph Perrone, the taxicab driver who identified Hauptmann as the man who gave him a ransom note to deliver to John F. (Jafsie)) Condon, bought a new cab with his $1000.

AUTO PASSENGER KILLED WHEN CAR HITS PHONE POLE

Driver, Employer of Victim, Seriously Injured in Accident Near Jerseyville, Ill.

Theodore Caires, a cook, was killed yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which he was riding left U. S. Highway 67 and hit a telephone pole about three miles south of Jerseyville, Ill.

The driver, William Khlantzos, owner of a Jerseyville restaurant in which Caires was employed, was injured seriously and is in a hospital at Jerseyville. The automobile caught fire after Caires and Khlantzos were dragged out by passersby.

Caires, 53 years old, formerly operated a grocery and restaurant at Alton. His wife and two sons, who reside in Alton, survive.

MEETING OF WOMEN VOTERS

Directors to Discuss Legislation Program Tomorrow.

The board of directors of the Missouri League of Women Voters will meet tomorrow at the Missouri Hotel in Jefferson City to discuss measures being supported by the league in the State Legislature.

Included in the organization's legislative program are a teacher retirement law, an enabling act to permit establishment of housing authorities in larger cities and a merit system of appointment for State employes. The league also is supporting a measure for the appointment of a commission to survey the administrative organization of the State.

HEARS COURTHOUSE IS UNSAFE; TRIES TO DODGE JURY, DUTY

Man, Told He Must Report for Service in County, Says He'll See His Lawyer.

A man who said he had been summoned for jury service this week in St. Louis County, telephoned Circuit Judge John A. Witthaus yesterday and asked whether, in view of the fact that the county courthouse has been condemned as unsafe by the recent grand jury and by the Clayton Building Commissioner, he must report for jury duty.

Informed that he must, the caller answered: "I'm going to see my lawyer about this. I'll come if I have to, but it won't be at my own risk."

Collector Willis W. Benson received a telephone call from a resident asking whether he could have his tax bill collected in the yard. Benson said he informed the man that his office was in an addition built to the courthouse about 20 years ago and was relatively safe.

The grand jurors themselves have formed a social group, "Knights of the Quavering Dome," to keep alive the friendships they formed as fellow jurors. Headed by Fremont G. Elliott of Kirkwood as "Quavering Knight," the organization plans to meet every three months at the home of a member.

PROMOTER PLEADS GUILTY OF DEFRAUDING EUREKA BANK

Sentence of Harry E. Williams Deferred for Week; Indicted Cashier to Go to Trial.

Harry Eugene Williams, mine stock promoter, pleaded guilty of using the mails to defraud in United States District Judge Charles B. Davis' court yesterday. Sentence was deferred for a week.

Williams was indicted on 13 counts with James Franklin Mackey, former cashier of the Bank of Eureka, since closed. Assistant United States Attorney Henry G. Morris informed the Court that Mackey's attorney has indicated he will be ready for trial tomorrow.

A third defendant, Benjamin O. McReynolds, died a year ago. Williams was charged with defrauding the Bank of Eureka of $2500 by writing fictitious checks and securing bank credits through misuse of mails. Mackey is charged with embezzlement of $8215 from the bank.

HARLAND BARTHOLOMEW HIRED TO MAKE CLEVELAND SURVEY

St. Louisan to Help Put Long-range Public Improvement Program in Affect.

Harland Bartholomew, engineer of the City Plan Commission, has been employed to assist the Cleveland City Plan Commission in putting in effect a long-range program of public improvements, Mayor Harold H. Burton announced there yesterday.

Bartholomew will direct a study of the physical, financial and social problems of the city so that it may develop in an orderly manner, through a program covering the next 20 or 30 years, Mayor Burton said.

JESSE JAMES RIDES INTO TROUBLE AGAIN

Humane Society Asks Members to Outlaw Movie Over Killing of Horse.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. — Jesse James, even in the shadow, just can't keep out of trouble. In the old days it was Federal troops, railroad police, Pinkertons, posses and sheriffs. This week, as he rides again across the movie screens of almost every city of the nation, Jesse James, or at any rate his movie, is denounced by the American Humane Association.

The society's protest has it that a horse was killed in the filming of a scene at Lake of the Ozarks, near Camdenton, Mo., in which a horse and rider jump from a cliff. Whether it was killed by Jesse James himself, as impersonated by Tyrone Power, is immaterial, as it is history now that Jesse in life was blamed for every misdeed in his bailiwick. To make the scene, the rider directed the animal to a chute on the cliff facing the lake. With the chute greased, the horse couldn't stop and took a 75-foot drop. The rider came up and was pulled safely to land, but the horse after appearing once on the surface of the water, went down and stayed down.

Supported by affidavits of spectators, Sydney H. Coleman, president of the American Humane Association, asserts that Twentieth Century Fox executives then "ordered hired hands to get that body." The movie makers didn't want the animal's body to make decent disposition of it, it is charged, but recovered it with grappling hooks for the saddle and bride, which were placed on a substitute horse. The scene was shot, this time with injury to none, although reports set forth that the horse struck a rock projecting from the cliff on the way down.

The finished picture, "Jesse James," released yesterday, so strongly supports the affivadits, Coleman said, that the association is urging the nearly 600 anti-cruelty societies in the United States and their respective memberships to protest to the film makers, to Will Hayes, and to local theaters against hurling of horses over a cliff and of the violent throwing to the ground of horses in two other scenes in the picture.

In his reference to other parts of the film, Coleman refers to scenes made during a six-week interval at Noel, Mo., where the cast, technicians and equipment were sent presumably for local color.

MAN'S BODY TAKEN FROM RIVER

About 65 Years Old, 5 Feet 9 Inches; In Lavender Shirt.

The body of an unidentified man, about 65 years old, was taken from the Mississippi River at the foot of Chouteau avenue yesterday.

The man was five feet, nine inches tall, weighed 130 pounds and had gray hair and a gray mustache. He wore a dark suit coat, gray trousers, a lavender shirt, and black shoes.

BRITISH PREMIER ENDS ROME VISIT; ACHIEVES LITTLE

Mussolini's Promised Aid in Meeting Jewish Refugee Problem Is Most Concrete Result.

BOTH PREMIERS SAY THEY SEEK PEACE

Chamberlain Declares That 'European Collaboration' Will Be Furthered by Meeting.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Jan. 14.—British Prime Minister Chamberlain left Rome today satisfied that Premier Mussolini would co-operate in settling the problem of what to do with Germany's and Italy's Jewish refugees.

Italians expressed the opinion that the way had been opened, by British dealing with Italy as an imperial equal, to a new deal in the Mediterranean where Italy makes claims on France.

Both Mussolini and Chamberlain expressed determination to follow policies aimed at maintenance of peace.

Those points emerged as a result of the three days Chamberlain devoted in Rome to the appeasement travels he started during the September crisis over Germany's quarrel with Czecho-Slovakia.

Promised Italian co-operation on the Jewish problem was the most concrete achievement of the British-Italian talks, but Chamberlain gained no idea as to what lines Mussolini's co-operation in the matter would take.

Before his departure Chamberlain, in a statement to the Italian press, said he was "more than ever convinced of the good faith and good will of the Italian Government" and that the visit would further "European collaboration." He said he had not come for specific accords but "to obtain through personal contacts more intimate understanding of the points of view of the two countries. "That objective has been fully realized," he concluded.

Chamberlain Leaves Rome.

Chamberlain left Rome at 12:05 p. m. by special train. Mussolini, Ciano and other brilliantly uniformed high officials were at the station. Mussolini and Chamberlain smiled genially as they reviewed an honor guard and took a salute from a company of Fascist boys armed with muskets.

A band played "God Save the King!" and the Fascist anthem.

Chamberlain waved his hand from the door of a car as the train drew slowly from the station.

Halifax had previously left Rome for Geneva at 7:40 a. m. At Geneva he will detail the Rome conversations to Georges Bonnet, French Foreign Minister.

Italian Communique.

An official Italian communique said:

"These conversations have been marked by the greatest cordiality and have led to frank and full exchange of ideas. The intention of developing existing relations between the two countries in the spirit of friendship of the pact of April 16, 1938, was mutually reaffirmed.

"It was also agreed to conclude at the earliest moment possible special accords contemplated by this agreement.

"During the conversations there has emerged once again the determination of Italy and Britain to pursue a policy which is directed effectively to the maintenance of peace, a policy for which the efforts of the two governments have been and continue to be exerted."

The agreements to which the statement referred deal with the demarcation of the frontiers between Italian East Africa and British Kenya, Somaliland and Sudan.

Press Comment.

The British impression that Mussolini would refrain from war with France was strengthened by the newspaper Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, frequently mouthpiece of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano. The newspaper said Italy's denunciation of its 1935 Colonial agreement with France shoulid not be taken to mean that Italy definitely wanted to make war. A way could be found to settle the claims, Il Telegrafo said, if France "calmed down" and assumed neither a bullying nor provocative attitude.

Virginio Gayda, editor of Il Giornale d'Italia, who usually writes with authority, gave an outline of Italy's future policy which may have been that which Mussolini laid before Chamberlain. Gayda wrote: First, Italy intends to withdraw her remaining troops from Spain when foreign militiamen are withdrawn from the "Red (Government) side." It is waiting for the London nonintervention committee to settle the problem. But the attitude of France and Soviet Russia runs conrary to such settlement.

Second, a new deal is necessary between Italy and France. France's "threats and obstinate intransigeance" can only aggravate the risks and dangers for France rather than dispose of the disputes.

Third, Italy is in "perfect agreement" with Germany to bring eastern Europe and the Balkans under the influence of the Rome-Berlin axis.

Fourth, Italy's policy toward Japan's course in China is "no mystery." Italy and Japan, along with Germany, are allied in the anti-Comintern pact.

JERUSALEM OLD CITY DISTRICT PUT UNDER 24-HOUR CURFEW

Authorities Say Arab Rebels' Effort to Force Closing of Shops Caused Action.

By the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, Jan. 14.—A 24-hour curfew in Jerusalem's old city district was imposed today by authorities who said Arab rebels had attempted to intimidate shopkeepers into closing in protest against the death sentences imposed on six Arabs by a military court Jan. 10.

By the Associated Press.

BEIRUT, Syria, Jan. 14.—Exiled Nationalist Arab leaders from Palestine decided today to participate in the proposed London conference on means of settling the dispute among Jews, Arabs and the British over control of the Holy Land.

The decision was reached during conferences headed by the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Amin Effendi Al Husseini, who has made his headquarters here since fleeing Jerusalem.

British authorities proposed the London conference when the government announced last Nov. 9 the abandonment of its plan to partition Palestine into Arab, Jewish and British-mandated states.

G. O. P. LEADERS MAKE ATTACKS ON NEW DEAL

Gov. Saltonstall, Senator Wiley and Congressman Mundt Address Women.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Leverett Saltonstall, newly elected Republican Governor of Massachusetts, said today the November elections had demonstrated the nation's "renewed confidence" that the "Republican label is a guarantee of a liberal, progressive type of government, rather than a government of reaction."

Saltonstall, Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin and Representative Karl Mundt of South Dakota addressed the eighteenth annual luncheon of the Women's National Republican Club. Wiley and Mundt also are new Republican officeholders.

Wiley, saying the Republican organization was "alive to the national, to the economic, social and humanitarian responsibilities which a modern political party must carry," asserted New Deal policies "are leading us away from, rather than toward, the objectives of an industrial democracy."

"Our immediate problem—unless we are Communists or Fascists—is to show how the march to these objectives can be resumed within the framework of our political democracy," he added.

Wiley also referred to foreign affairs, saying that "coming from Europe and Asia are a million resurrected false ideas and concepts of government seeking for trial on this continent. Thank God America is becoming increasingly aware of this enemy. We are not downhearted. We accept the challenge these errors present. We will not succumb to force or false political and economic thinking."

Mundt asserted the New Dealers of today were "preaching the Tory tenets of centralized control."

"I want to go back to sound American principles of government," he said. "I want to go back for a new start in the American way which will let America forge ahead in the future as we have always forged ahead in the past."

"Nationally," said Gov. Saltonstall, "firm notice has been served that the Republican party proposes to go forward, not back, in helping to achieve the goal of a well-adjusted society."

The functions of government, he said, had broadened greatly since the early days. He added: "We must make certain, as we climb the hillside, that Government is serving each and every individual."

Sponsors of the luncheon included Mrs. Herbert Hoover and widows of three Presidents—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Sr., Mrs. William Howard Taft and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. More than 1500 reservations were made.

Speakers for G. O. P. Victory Rally in New York Feb. 13.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Former President Herbert Hoover heads the list of speakers published by the National Republican Club, under the auspices of which a Republican victory dinner will be held in New York City Feb. 13, the day after Lincoln's birthday. With him on the program are six Republican Governors elected in November. Thomas Dewey, Republican candidate in the close governorship race in New York, will be honorary chairman. The Republican Governors are: Bricker of Ohio, Fitzgerald of Michigan, Heil of Wisconsin, Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Baldwin of Connecticut and Bottolfsen of Idaho.

Their selection stresses a situation within the party which tends to make Republican Governors in politically strategic states possibly even more important factors in the shaping of party doctrines for 1940 than new Senators or House members.

That the list of speakers was made up with some idea of furnishing a sort of national cross-section view of Republican Governors in action is obvious. That it was made up, also, on the theory that it would not unduly emphasize anybody's potential claims to consideration for the 1940 Republican presidential nomination is equally obvious. Hoover's selection to head the list does not appear in that light as significant.

Director of Health Cites Finding in Seeking to Direct Smoke Control, Food Inspection.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 14.—Dr. I. Hope Alexander, City Director of Health, reported today a study of this city's death rate disclosed that the average mortality age for Pittsburgh is 50 years minus, as against 60 years plus for the remainder of the country:

He said: "There is some reason for it which we cannot explain just now . . ." He announced the results of his study in connection with a fight to have City Council restore to his department the bureaus of sanitation, smoke regulation and food inspection. In an economy move, Council recently merged these into a separate bureau of inspection.

138th Infantry Moving Into $1,347,000 Armory

Mayor Turns Over Key to Col. Kingsland, Commander of Historic Regiment, in "Temporary" Quarters for 31 Years.

Within the week the historic 138th Infantry will be established in its $1,347,000 Armory, with removal completed from the old First Regiment Armory, Grand boulevard and Market street, "temporary" National Guard quarters since Jan. 1, 1908.

The move, a block west to the new 1.97-acre building on the south side of Market, from Prospect to Bernard avenues, began immediately after Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann turned the master keys over to Col. Lawrence C. Kingsland yesterday at City Hall.

Mayor Dickmann appointed Col. Kingsland, Deputy Comptroller Charles L. Cunningham and Public Safety Director George W. Chadsey to serve with himself in management of the new building. It was financed by $1,000,000 bonds in the $16,000,000 issue of May 15, 1934, with a 30-per cent PWA grant. Construction began Feb. 23, 1937, and on the following Armistice day, the cornerstone was laid by Gov. Stark, with Mayor Dickmann holding the mortar bucket.

Seal on Bronze Door.

The structure is finished in dull yellow-brown brick trimmed with Bedford limestone. The entrance bears the State Seal over bronze doors, and 10-foot limestone eagles in relief dominate the wings.

Indoors, regimental offices and company suites, each with an inside stairway to second-floor locker and supply rooms, are built facing a drill hall 142 feet by 258, only a little smaller than a football field. Skylights are 83 feet above the polished wooden floor.

A bank of 134 750-watt floodlamps, 75 feet aloft, simulate outdoor brilliance—at this season they put it to shame. Walls above a surrounding balcony, with the 138th insignia worked in the metal railing of a reviewing stand, are concrete blocks, glazed yellow tile below.

The basement, similarly, consists of storage and building service rooms built around garage space 160x200 feet. A small arms range and two handball courts are provided there, as well as a 75-foot swimming pool, at the northwest corner of the basement, and the spacious, richly appointed officers' mess and clubroom. Over the mess, on the main floor, is the large officers' assembly hall, and above it are class rooms.

On the second floor, above the terrazzo-paved entrance lobby, is a memorial hall dominated by a huge trophy case, beside it is the regimental library on the east, and on the west side, the custodian's apartment. Down the hall are band quarters with sound-absorbent ceilings.

Streamlining for KP's.

KP loses some of its ancient dread in the kitchen adjoining the officers' mess. It is ready equipped with triple gas range, ¾-horsepower electric mixer, 1-3-horsepower food chopper, a barrel-like steam cooker, a refrigerator somewhat smaller, perhaps, than the drill hall itself, and a machine peeler that, whirling a bushel of potatoes between abrasives, is designed to protect the enlisted man, and limit wear and tear to the spud.

The old Armory site, 296 feet on Grand by 266 on Market, was put up for sale in November by the First Infantry Army Association, which issued stock in 1907 to finance the two-story building, which has a drill hall only 100 by 200 feet. Its 31 years as "temporary" quarters included memorable days in the history of the 138th, which stems from a line of St. Louis volunteer units beginning with Capt. Pierre Chouteau's cavalry and Capt. Benjamine Wilkinson's infantry, organized in Yosti's Tavern on Aug. 21, 1808.

Long before the "temporary" Armory went up, the First Missouri originated in 1846 as the First Missouri Mounted Volunteers—with Company E, known as the "Laclede Rangers" from St. Louis—in Doniphan's 6000-mile march to Mexico. The First Missouri was captured, with the Second, at Camp Jackson, May 10, 1861, and, ordered to disband, individually enlisted in the Confederate as well as the Union army.

Scene of World War Muster.

But it was from the First Regiment Armory that World War mustering went on. The Fifth Regiment filled its ranks there a month after the declaration of war, and was merged with the First at Camp Doniphan, Ok., to form the 138th.

Outstanding then was the advertisement of Company A, Fifth Regiment, for a Murphy to volunteer—the name was lucky. Murphys responded by dozens, failed on medical examination, and gave way to a Byrne, "wrong name but right nationality," who later came on a cache of German grenades, tinkered until he learned how they worked and used them to wipe out a machine-gun nest.

And it was at the old Armory, after the war, that the old First Regiment assembled again, on a Saturday afternoon in June, 1919, to march to Forest Park and there, in a public ceremony, be mustered out.

EAST SIDE YOUTH'S 25-YEAR PRISON SENTENCE SET ASIDE

Judge Acts on Plea George Ladas Understood He Would Get Lighter Term for Attack.

A 25-year penitentiary sentence, passed last Oct. 31 on George Ladas, 20 years old, of East St. Louis, on his plea of guilty of criminal assault of a 17-year-old girl, was set aside yesterday by City Judge William F. Borders of East St. Louis, who sustained an application for a writ of error on the ground the defendant had pleaded guilty under the misapprehension he would receive only a three-year term.

Ladas' application for the writ, filed by an attorney he engaged after entering Menard Penitentiary, alleged he had been led to believe, both by his earlier counsel and by Assistant State's Attorney R. V. Gustin, that his penalty would not exceed three years. The petition asserted he was innocent of the crime but pleaded guilty on advice of his lawyers that a jury might fix a much higher term than three years.

Gustin opposed the application and declared he had told the youth he would be satisfied with not less than three years. Judge Borders, in approving the application, said he was convinced there had been a misunderstanding and declared he intended "to see that no more misunderstandings of this kind occur in my court."

Ladas, who has been in St. Clair County jail at Belleville since the hearing on the writ a month ago, was charged with assaulting the girl in a room at the rear of his father's saloon in the "Valley," East Side vice district.

GLASS PLANT ORDERED TO BARGAIN WITH C I O

N L R B Names Union as Agency for 1600 at Crystal City, 5000 in Other Shops.

The National Labor Relations Board, in a decision announced at Washington yesterday, ordered the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. to recognize the CIO-affiliated Federation of Flat Glass Workers as the sole collective bargaining agency for 1600 employes at its Crystal City (Mo.) plant and about 5000 workers in six other plants.

Although Crystal City's CIO local has been trying to organize the plant there for four years, it represents less than half the production workers. In noting this situation, the board remarked that "the very inexperience of the Crystal City employes in collective bargaining is a cogent reason for giving them the benefit and use of the services of the more experienced employes at the other plants by having them bargain together with such employes."

Has Majorities Elsewhere.

The board declared the CIO union represented a majority of employes in the other six plants and a majority of all company employes, including those at Crystal City. Two of the plants are at Ford City, Pa.; the others at Mount Vernon, O., Clarksburg, W. Va., Henrietta, Ok., and Creighton, Pa.

Immediately after the decision was made known here, Fred J. Hoffmeister, attorney for the Crystal City Glass Workers' Union, an independent organization, told the Post-Dispatch the order would be appealed. The independent, barred from collective bargaining with the company by a stipulation signed by the firm and the CIO local last July, claims to represent 1300 Crystal City employes. Hoffmeister said the organization had remained intact and planned to resist all moves by the CIO union to represent its membership.

The stipulation was signed after the board had ordered a hearing after the CIO local charged the company with unfair labor practices. In the stipulation, the glass firm agreed to withdraw recognition from the independent union and to stop fostering activities of citizens against organizational efforts of the CIO union. One CIO member, alleged to have been fired for union activities, was rehired with back pay.

Evidence presented at a hearing in Pittsburgh, Pa., last October, the board said in the order, showed that since 1934 the federation had proposed inclusion of Crystal City employes in a multi-plant unit and that the company had included the Missouri employes with those in other plants prior to 1937 in dealing with workers.

Comments on 1936 Strike.

Commenting on the importance of the Crystal City plant in collective bargaining, the board said the company filled orders from there in 1937, when all other flatglass plants were closed by a strike. The order stated: "Thus, to give effect to the wishes of 1300 Crystal City employes for a separate bargaining unit . . . would inevitably hamper and obstruct the far larger number of the company's employes at the other plants in their efforts to organize and to bargain collectively with the company."

In this connection, the board stated the Crystal City workers, though not members of the CIO, got a 5-cent wage increase as the result of the strike and collective bargaining efforts of the union at other plants. Under those circumstances, the board stated, the wishes of 1300 employes could not be regarded as decisive of the issue. It added that it was not impressed by the argument that the absence of any "union" background differentiated Crystal City from the other plants.

PASTOR GETS YEAR IN PRISON FOR ATTACKING SECRETARY, 17

The Rev. A. L. Gregg Files Notice of Appeal When Plea for New Trial Is Denied.

By the Associated Press.

DUNCAN, Ok., Jan. 14.—The Rev. A. L. Gregg, 46 years old, Baptist minister, was sentenced to a year in McAlester penitentiary today for assaulting his 17-year-old secretary, Helen Magnusen.

The Rev. Mr. Gregg was convicted New Year's day by a jury which heard the girl recount 100 assaults during the two years she served as his volunteer secretary.

Notice of appeal was filed when motion for a new trial was denied.

AMERICA'S NEW PIANO
Thrilling Style . . . Inspired Beauty . . . Glorious Tone
at a Price Within the Reach of Everybody
Here, at last, is a truly inspired interpretation in modern piano design. The culmination of over two centuries of fine musical instrument building experience, this new Wurlitzer Spinette sets a vogue in artistic piano design that will endure for years to come. The graceful simplicity of its sweeping lines; the sparkling beauty of its colorful, soft textured finish; the space-saving economy of its practical compactness—all harmonize perfectly with the present-day trend toward smart, attractive home furnishing and decoration.
An Instrument of Superb Tone and Volume
This new 36-inch full scale 88-note compact piano possesses the most advanced features of construction. Included are Wurlitzer's exclusive augmented sounding board; calibrated element between the bridge and sounding board; acoustic tone chamber; even tension scale and responsive action. These create tone of such quality and purity as to excite the admiration of the most critical musician. Such performance has hitherto been available only in much higher priced pianos.
"Kordevon" Finished
Exclusive! Wurlitzer is finishing this new piano in Kordevon, a remarkably durable new finish of leather-like grain and unlimited color possibilities. Kordevon, unlike ordinary wood, is unaffected by heat, cold, humidity or dryness. It will withstand an unbelievable amount of abuse without showing signs of scuffing or scratching.
$245
Available in Mahogany, Walnut, Maple and Blonde Maple with a wide choice of Kordevon.
Easy to Buy
Only a small down payment is necessary to own this wonderful new piano. Balance can be taken care of on our very attractive piano payment plan. If you now own a piano, it will be liberally appraised and accepted as part payment. You will be more than pleased with our generous budget terms. Investigate this new piano tomorrow!

GUARDS FAIL TO FIND SAWS AT ALCATRAZ

U. S. Prison Director to Join Inquiry Into How Five Cut Through Bars.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 14. — Alcatraz prison guards moved portable magnetic detectors over the island prison today in an effort to find saws used by five convicts in yesterday's attempt to escape.

Arthur (Doc) Barker, once listed by the Department of Justice as Public Enemy No. 1, was wounded fatally, and Dale Stamphill, 27-year-old Oklahoma kidnaper, was gravely wounded when shot in the attempted escape.

Rufus McCane, kidnaper; Henri Young, 28, bank robber, and William Martin, 25, postoffice robber, apparently were in the prison "hole" today, Stamphill in the prison hospital. The convicts were discovered on a small beach of the island, and the two who refused to surrender were shot.

Warden James A. Johnston said James V. Bennett, Federal Director of Prisons, was expected here Monday to participate in the investigation.

Prison officials indicated they were intent on learning where the saws came from, where they are now, and how five convicts in separate cells could cut the bars in so short a time and without the sawing being heard. The cells are checked hourly.

Johnston said these and other questions remained unanswered despite a thorough prison "shakedown."

Conclusion on Crime and Depression

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 14.—Dr. Ernest R. Mowrer, professor of sociology at Northwestern University, concluded today that crime does not increase during depressions nor decrease in more prosperous times. His conclusion was announced on completion of a section on criminality of an extensive study of the sociological aspects of the depression in Chicago.

THIRD DEATH IN FIRE AT ROOMING HOUSE

Mrs. Addie Olds, Who Was Burned Dec. 7, Succumbs in Hospital.

Mrs. Addie Olds, a widow, 4429A Page boulevard, died yesterday at City Hospital as a result of burns suffered Dec. 7 in a fire in a rooming house at 4343 Delmar boulevard in which two other persons were killed.

Mrs. Olds, 53 years old, was visiting Mrs. Bessie Cunningham at the Delmar boulevard address when the fire broke out. The women were trapped in a third-floor room and Mrs. Cunningham was burned to death. Sam Robinson, 51, a World War veteran, was killed when he jumped from a porch roof to escape the flames.

Mrs. Rosa Zatlin, owner of the rooming house, was named in a Coroner's verdict of criminal carelessness returned in the deaths of Mrs. Cunningham and Robinson.

CENTRAL BUREAU TO HANDLE ALL U. S. RELIEF PROPOSED

cent for Public Works Administration projects.

The report said that while the committee did not believe investigation of political activity in the WPA was within its scope, it thought, nevertheless, future relief appropriation bills should contain specific prohibitions against such activities. It recommended provisions to prevent officials from bidding for votes by offering jobs or threatening the discharge of workers who did not vote as they demanded. The committee also proposed a specific prohibition against use of relief funds for political purposes.

The report was signed by Chairman Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina, and Senators Clark (Dem.), Missouri; Hatch (Dem.), New Mexico, and Frazier (Rep.), North Dakota. Senator Murray (Dem.), Montana, concurred in all the recommendations except the formula for distribution of relief funds, reserving judgment on that.

Senator Lodge (Rep.), Massachusetts, announced that he was preparing a minority report to which Senator Davis (Rep.), Pennsylvania, the other committee member, had agreed.

Emergency Relief Next.

Hatch said he thought there was no disposition on the part of the committee to attempt to put its recommendations into effect in the emergency relief bill, on which hearings will be begun Monday by a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee.

He said the committee's report, carrying also recommendations for specific legislation to prevent politics in relief, would be pressed when the appropriation for the WPA for the next fiscal year comes before Congress later this session.

Byrnes is a member of the Appropriations Subcommittee handling the relief appropriations bill. Chairman Adams (Dem.), Colorado of the Appropriations Subcommittee said before the Unemployment Committee submitted its report that his committee "would be disposed" to hear Byrnes' views.

Sentiment existed among some Senators for further trimming the size of the relief appropriation bill, in addition to throwing still more restrictions about the administration of the fund. The measure called for a $725,000,000 fund when it passed the House yesterday.

Speaker Bankhead insisted, in an interview today, that the House action was not a rebuff to President Roosevelt but merely represented the ideas of individual members on the size of the fund needed for WPA.

Roosevelt obviously is hopeful that the word from the voters at home will be one of displeasure with the prospective WPA curtailment. Such a reaction would help him in any effort he may make to overturn the House verdict.

Republicans and conservative Democrats are just as hopeful that the letters from constituents will back up their view that the country is tired of the President's spending for recovery philosophy.

The reaction will not be registered in the congressional mail bag as directly as it might otherwise have been because there was no record vote on the question of cutting the $875,000,00 fund asked for by the President. Anyone who wants to write his Congressman about the matter may have difficulty determining just where he stood, unless the Congressman made his views clear in a speech on the floor.

The procedure which the House followed undoubtedly reflected indecision on the part of many members as to whether constituents really want economy.

Confirmations to Come Up.

Although the relief issue claimed the major share of attention in Congress, the Senate made ready for final action on confirmation of some of President Roosevelt's nominees.

The Judiciary Committee arranged a meeting for Monday to consider the nomination of Felix Frankfurter to be a member of the Supreme Court and of Frank Murphy, former Governor of Michigan, to be Attorney-General. Both nominations have been approved by subcommittees.

The Senate Commerce Committee will vote Wednesday on the nomination of Harry L. Hopkins, former relief administrator, to be Secretary of Commerce.

The Monopoly Investigating Committee will resume on Monday its study of patents. Several industrialists and Government officials have been asked to appear.

The Senate Military Committee will begin secret hearings Tuesday on President Roosevelt's national defense recommendations.

Edward E. Wall to Be Honored.

Edward E. Wall, Director of Public Utilities and former Water Commissioner, will be one of five engineers receiving honorary memberships in the American Society of Civil Engineers, at the annual meeting in New York Wednesday. He will not be present.

12 PCT. OF BARNES PATIENTS PAY IN FULL

About 10 Pct. Get Free Treatment — Deficit for 1938 Is $44,000.

Only 12 per cent of the more than 10,000 patients who were treated at Barnes Hospital last year paid the full cost for their care, it is stated in the annual report of the trustees made public yesterday.

Of the remainder about 10 per cent received free treatment and the others paid part of the cost in varying percentage. The hospital closed the year with a deficit of $44,646, which is $12,819 more than the deficit for 1937.

Cost of operation was $707,486, with $566,394 coming from paying patients. Income from endowments, gifts and the hospital's allocation from United Charities totaled $96,445.

Service to free patients was curtailed by 24 per cent as compared with service of the previous year, the report states, due to lack of gifts and endowment income, but a slight increase in paying patients made the cut less than would otherwise have been necessary.

The daily number of patients handled has increased about 50 per cent in the last six years. In 1932 the average daily number was 209; last year it was 304.

Trustees of the hospital are Frank C. Rand, Albert M. Keller and James M. Westlake.

Simply Take the Day Off...
Go to Church This Morning...
Take Dinner at the Forum, and Actually SAVE. Here's How→

ONLY 42¢! IS THE AVERAGE FORUM SUNDAY DINNER CHECK—ISN'T THAT LESS THAN IT WOULD COST YOU TO COOK DINNER AT HOME!

HERE, YOU READ THIS FORUM AD!
SEE, SHE LOCKED UP THE KITCHEN RIGHT AFTER SUNDAY MORNING BREAKFAST!
LET'S READ POPEYE

1- Here's how you can "sell" your husband the amazing fact that a day off with Sunday Dinner Out, at the Forum, actually costs him less than a dinner at home! Just take these "tips" and show him how the whole family can enjoy the happiest Sunday in months.

SO THAT'S WHY WE HAVEN'T BEEN GOING TO CHURCH?
COOKING SUNDAY DINNER JUST KILLS MY WHOLE DAY.

2- Remind him of "the reason why" you seldom have time to go to church. Why you're "tired out" on Sunday. And how you would love a day off to visit with and enjoy your family! Tell him how long it takes to plan and cook Sunday dinner—and why it takes so much of Sunday afternoon to wash that sink full of dirty dishes! Then say, "Come on, we're all going to church together, this morning!"

LOOKS LIKE THE CHECKS ARE ON ME, BUT THESE FORUM CHECKS ARE EASY TO TAKE—— $1.58 FOR ALL 4!
THAT'S DARLING OF YOU, DEAR!

3- And as a final argument, you're perfectly safe in telling him that you'll pay the checks, at the Forum, if they amount to even as much as $2 for all four of you. (The average Forum Sunday check is actually less than 42c on thousands of meals.) And folks select just what they like best here, and see it first!

IT'S THE HAPPIEST SUNDAY WE'VE ALL HAD TOGETHER IN MONTHS!

4- Now that food costs are way up, can you actually plan, and cook a Sunday dinner as reasonable as the Forum? Figure it up right now, in the space (below left). Then isn't this a pleasant way to make money on Sunday? A care-free happy day with the family. A long drive out into the country this afternoon. Try it today, or come down for an evening meal this week to prove it—TO THE FORUM. "He" will think you're really clever to discover it.

CHAMBERLAIN TO TELL CABINET OF TALK AT ROME

Calls Meeting for Wednesday — Next Effort Expected to Be to Ease French-Italian Tension.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Prime Minister Chamberlain is expected to try to ease the strain between Italy and France after he reaches home tomorrow evening after his talks at Rome with Premier Mussolini. He has called for Wednesday the first Cabinet meeting since the Christmas recess of Parliament to hear his report on his conversations with Mussolini.

Chamberlain apparently refused to become an official mediator on his three-day visit to Rome and made it plain that Great Britain fully backed France against Italian territorial aspirations. But Chamberlain now has first-hand information on the Italian point of view.

His Foreign Secretary, Viscount Halifax, was expected to make an approach to France for negotiation on the more moderate Italian complaints when he meets with French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet at Geneva this week-end. They will attend sessions of the League of Nations Council, opening Monday.

Italy's Attitude Indicated.

An indication that Italy was open to negotiation came from the Fascist newspaper Il Telegrafo which is close to Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Il Telegrafo said "the Fascist Government would not be averse to opening new negotiations but that is not completely possible with or without mediators in the atmosphere created by the French Government and press."

Before negotiating, however, Italy hoped for an early insurgent victory in Spain—something which became a greater possibility today with Generalissimo Franco's armies moving still closer to Tarragona and the Government capital, Barcelona.

An insurgent victory would give Italy a stronger argument for extracting territorial or other concessions from France. Italy's claims have remained nebulous and unofficial. Talk of "justice" for Italy's "natural aspirations" has been mingled with clamor over France's highly-prized Tunisia, Savoy, Corsica and Djibouti.

Next Moves Uncertain.

Aside from an attempt to smooth out Italian-French relations, Chamberlain's next diplomatic moves under his appeasement policy were uncertain.

France's bargaining position was most recently affected by rioting against French rule in Syria, its eastern Mediterranean mandate. Three French submarines were ordered to Syria today while the French Mediterranean and Atlantic fleets prepared for extensive war games off Africa's northwestern coast.

France wants to keep Syria as a military and naval foothold despite 1936 treaties promising independence to Syria and adjacent Lebanon this year. France has never ratified the treaties.

The apparently firm stand Chamberlain took at Rome was regarded here as evidence that he was encouraged by the United States policy toward dictators and had set his face against further concessions to threats of force.

British Request to Japan.

This view was strengthened also by the British request to Japan for a full statement of Japanese intentions toward British commerce in China. The Ambassador to Tokyo presented the request today.

Whatever Chamberlain learned about the 1939 plans of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo-Comintern axis to be widened next week with inclusion of Hungary, British public opinion toward Germany made difficult any further appeasement approaches to Reichsfuehrer Hitler at this time.

In some British quarters reports were circulated that Chamberlain had invited Mussolini to visit London in the spring and that a four-Power conference on outstanding problems between the democracies and dictatorships might be sought. But the aversion of dictators to foreign travel except on totalitarian soil and French fears over the price France might have to pay in a four-Power conference made both projects doubtful.

Chamberlain has more than two weeks before he will face Parliament to tell what the Rome trip accomplished.

More critical for him than a possible attack on his Rome mission, however, was the growing campaign against the slow pace of British rearmament and defense preparations.

To ward off further assaults on this score Chamberlain was thought in some quarters to be planning a cabinet reorganization before Parliament convenes Jan 31.

While this was expected to involve a shift of Sir Thomas Inskip from the Ministry for Co-ordination of Defense, there were indications the Prime Minister intended to keep Leslie Hore-Belisha in the War Ministry, despite political attacks.

A WHALE OF A STORY, IF TRUE

Fisherman Says He Hit 75-Footer With Oar, Drove It Away.

BEAUFORT, N. C., Jan. 14.—Fishing Capt. James Styron tells this story of an encounter with a whale yesterday.

The whale, a 75-footer if an inch, he said, nosed up to his small sink net boat, apparently with the plan of coming aboard. He hit it a terrific blow across the nose with an oar. The whale dived, came up on the other side of the boat, and headed for the open sea.

YOU NEVER KNOW WHEN THIS MAY HAPPEN

It may be within an hour from now . . . or tomorrow, next week, or next year. But when danger suddenly looms ahead, wouldn't you give anything in the world for every safeguard that you could possibly get? For safety's sake, don't wait another day to investigate the extra protection that you can get only in a Hudson. Tomorrow might be too late.

IF A FRONT TIRE AND TUBE BLEW OUT AT 60!

YOU'D BE SAFER WITH HUDSON'S EXCLUSIVE AUTO-POISE CONTROL

WHY? Because this revolutionary mechanical invention (patent applied for) automatically helps to keep wheels on their course—on rough roads, in heavy side winds, even when a tire blows. The operation of AUTO-POISE CONTROL does not require special tires, tubes or extra equipment of any kind. It is a built-in feature—STANDARD AT NO EXTRA COST on all 1939 Hudson passenger cars; no other car has anything like it.

IF HYDRAULIC BRAKES SHOULD FAIL!

YOU'D BE SAFER WITH HUDSON'S EXCLUSIVE DOUBLE-SAFE BRAKES

WHY? Because, even if hydraulics should suddenly fail through accident or service neglect, the driver of a Hudson just pushes farther on the same foot pedal and STOPS. Thanks to Hudson's exclusive Double-Safe Brakes—two braking systems (finest Bendix Hydraulics and a separate reserve mechanical system) working automatically from the same foot pedal. Many letters in our files tell of accidents prevented by Double-Safe Brakes, standard in all 1939 Hudsons.

YOU'RE SAFER IN A HUDSON

HUDSON 112 • HUDSON SIX • HUDSON COUNTRY CLUB SIX AND EIGHT

With widest, safest windshield vision. With the new Dash-Locking Safety Hood, hinged at the front—wind can't blow it open. It locks from a lever inside the car, so battery and engine parts are safe from theft. With extra sturdy bodies all of steel. See the beautiful new Salon Interiors—and the really amazing amount of room for passengers and luggage. Enjoy the luxury of Hudson's Airfoam Ride—newest, most thrilling ride in all the world today. SENATOR GERALD P. NYE

SENATOR NYE TALKS ON U. S. PREPAREDNESS

Not Much More Needed, He Says, Unless We Mean to Fight Abroad.

United States Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, in St. Louis, to address a meeting in Centenary Methodist Church tonight on the subject of President Roosevelt's armament proposals told a Post-Dispatch reporter at Hotel Mayfair last evening, the first question to be answered was that of the purpose for which military preparedness is desired.

"If we are determined to do our fighting on this hemisphere only," he said, "we do not need much further preparedness. But if we are going abroad to fight again, the sky is the limit.

"It is agreed that we need progressive preparedness in the air, and I am sure Congress will take this view. Whether it will give everything asked for, I cannot say, but there will be a substantial increase of the air force. This will result in an increase in the army, possibly an addition of 20,000 to the present strength of 168,000. A part of this additional army strength will be needed for the handling of anti-aircraft guns.

"The Navy, I believe, is adequate to our needs." President Roosevelt, in his national defense message of Thursday, asked for a minimum of 3000 airplanes, and for expenditure of $65,000,000 on the Navy.

Questions Neutrality Act Changes.

Senator Nye discussed proposed amendments of the neutrality law. One proposed amendment, he said, would give the President power to declare an embargo on sale of foodstuffs and munitions, and on the extending of credit, to nations decided by him to be aggressors in war. At present, such an embargo must apply to all belligerent nations.

"There will be an early challenge to any such amendment," he said. "If this nation gets a taste of war profiteering, as in the last war, it will be hard to keep out of ultimate participation, especially if the line-up, as now seems likely, is England and France against the Berlin-Rome axis. Even with the present neutrality act, it would be difficult enough for us to keep out."

War and Democracy.

Nye expressed his belief that the United States could not go through another war, win or lose, and preserve democratic institutions.

Commenting on European events, Senator Nye said he thought a false impression had been given as to Germany's strength in the air, that the same planes had been moved from field to field and shown to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and other observers, and that other tricks had been used to give an exaggerated idea of the size of the German air forces.

The Senator spoke favorably of a pending proposal for new farm legislation, to do away with restricted production and price control, and to guarantee prices on farm products sold for domestic consumption. The surplus would be handled separately, and sold for foreign consumption at whatever price could be obtained.

The meeting in Centenary Church, Sixteenth and Pine streets, is under auspices of the Metropolitan Church Federation, and is open to the public. Pastors of several St. Louis churches will be present. Sunday night meetings, with visiting speakers, are to be held nightly in various churches.

SOLDIER'S HEROISM MEDAL AWARDED TO 3 PRIVATES

Two Honored for Life Saving at Chicago, Third for Extinguishing Burning Plane.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. — The War Department announced today the award of the soldier's medal to three enlisted men for acts of heroism.

Private Frederick H. Wilson, air corps mechanic, was rewarded for heroism in extinguishing a burning airplane at Mitchell Field, N. Y., last July 5.

The medal was given Privates John Gimson, Fourteenth Cavalry, and Richard Gieras Second Infantry, for saving two civilians from drowning in Lake Michigan at Fort Sheridan, Ill., Aug. 20.

NAZI PAPERS SAY RED MENACE IN U. S. IS MAJOR WORLD PERIL

Refers to 'Friends of Moscow' in America; Predicts Expansion of Fascist Pact.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—The Government-controlled Nazi newspapers jubilantly welcomed Hungary to membership in the German-Italian-Japanese anti-Communist pact today while the semiofficial mouthpiece of the German Foreign Office took a thrust at the United States.

The Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz declared that "the Communist menace in the United States is one of the major perils threatening the world today."

It predicted that Hungary's affiliation with the pact would "exert a powerful force of attraction upon other similarly-minded states, large and small."

After citing Spain, China and Czecho-Slovakia as hotbeds of Bolshevist activities, Korrespondenz said:

"The last but not least baneful influences of the friends of Moscow in the United States, which assert themselves even in speeches and measures by members of its Government, show in what great danger the world is standing."

Miami Restores Traffic Gongs.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 14.—Gongs on overhead traffic lights at downtown intersections which clanged when lights changed red and green were removed recently on complaint of hotel men against noise. Now Inspector W. J. McCarthy is having them replaced. He says traffic policemen are getting stiff necks from having to look up at lights and watch traffic, too.

HIGH WIND, SNOW, RAIN, WHEN PLANE FELL, KILLING FOUR

Witnesses Tell of Flashes of Light in Air, Differ on Time of Explosion in Montana Crash.

MOTOR TROUBLE AS THEORY OF FALL

Woman's Body Almost Consumed in Flames, Another Is Hurled Hundred Feet Away.

By the Associated Press.

MILES CITY, Mont., Jan. 14.—While Federal investigators searched the charred wreckage of a Northwest Airlines plane today for clews to the cause of the crash in which three men and a woman were killed last night, witnesses told of seeing flashes of light in the sky before the fall and motor trouble was suggested as a possible cause of the tragedy.

George E. Gardner, operations manager of Northwest Airlines, said it was "obvious from the evidence the pilot took off and circled the field (Miles City Airport) as if he intended to try to get back to land." A high wind was blowing when the plane crashed. A light snow mixed with rain was falling.

Coroner Ralph H. Bray of Custer County called an inquest for tonight into the accident.

Fire After the Crash.

While earlier reports differed as to whether the plane burst into flames before it struck the ground, investigators expressed the opinion tonight the fire started when the 10-passenger Lockheed Zephyr transport crashed into the Sunday Creek bottomlands two miles west of Miles City.

Gardner discounted witnesses' accounts that the pilot had dropped two flares before the accident, declaring the covers were on both flare boxes in the plane. Witnesses' reports differed as to whether the plane exploded in the air or after striking the ground.

Witness Tells of Flashes.

William P. Schafer said he saw a blaze of light before the plane fell which he believed to be falling flares. After the plane dropped behind a hilltop near his home, two miles west of the airport, Schafer said there was a second blinding flash followed by the sound of an explosion. Schafer, a tinsmith, said he believed the plane exploded when it struck the ground.

L. H. Bliven, airport manager at Miles City and first to reach the wreck, declared he saw a flash of light in the overcast sky which he believed indicated the plane exploded in the air.

Clinton M. Hester, administrator for the Civil Aeronautics Authority, who personally directed an examination of the wreckage, declined to comment on the contradictions by witnesses.

Hester said he would not discuss the crash of the St. Paul-to-Seattle transport until two CAA inspectors from Chicago and Air Safety Board members from Washington arrived to make the CAA's official investigation.

Both Pilots Lose Lives.

Those killed when the plane plunged into the creek bottom, a few minutes after a reported normal take-off from the Miles City airport were: C. B. (Cash) Chamberlain of Minneapolis, the pilot; Raymond B. Norby, Minneapolis, co-pilot; Richard S. Zahniser, 52 years old, Billings (Mont.) truck line representative and former Montana State highway engineer, and Mrs. Morgan Morris of Mandan, N. D., wife of a Northern Pacific Railroad conductor.

The body of Mrs. Morris, caught in the flaming plane, was almost consumed, Coroner Bray reported, and her body was not taken from the wreckage until today. One body was hurled 100 feet from the wreck.

Pilot's Wife Heard His Radio Call, "Dispatcher! Dispatcher!"

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 14. — A radio in her home brought her husband's last words to Mrs. C. B. Chamberlain, wife of the pilot of the Northwest Airlines plane that crashed last night near Miles City, Mont., killing four persons.

The words, frantically spoken, were:

"Dispatcher! Dispatcher!"

Mrs. Chamberlain was listening to the radio, tuned to the wave length of the plane's short wave set, according to her custom when her husband was flying.

"I sensed that something was wrong," she said today, "when he put in the call for the dispatcher. I didn't hear any more. I just knew something had happened."

LIST OF HOUSEHOLD PROPERTY LEFT BY MRS. SARAH WILSON

Furnishings and Other Goods Valued at $6173 in Partial Inventory.

A partial inventory of the estate of Mrs. Sarah L. Glasgow Wilson, which was filed in Probate Court at Clayton yesterday, lists the furnishings and household goods in her home at 4 Brentmoor Park, Clayton, at $6173.

The largest item is an Oriental rug carried at $1000. There are other Oriental rugs valued at $200 and $300. Most of the objects listed are silverware.

Mrs. Wilson, a noted benefactor to Washington University and Mary Institute in her lifetime, died Nov. 19. She left her estate in trust for four nephews and nieces and in part ultimately to Washington University.

SALES TAX COLLECTIONS UP

December Only 1938 Month With More Than in a 1937 Period.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 14. — December sales tax collections exceeded those of December, 1937, by $73,806, the first time a 1938 month had produced more revenue than a corresponding one in the preceding year, the State Auditor's office said today. The December collections were $1,836,636 as compared with $1,762,830 in December, 1937. November, 1938, collections were $1,721,243.

Warner White, assistant sales tax supervisor, said the 2 per cent levy produced $20,144,959 in 1938, the first complete year it was in effect. The tax was increased from 1 to 2 per cent by the 1937 Legislature, effective in June of that year.

HIS FLOCK KEEPS 47TH BIRTHDAY OF PASTOR NIEMOELLER

Service by Congregation of Minister Now in Nazi Concentration Camp.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—A sad congregation filled the Lutheran Jesus Christus Church in suburban Dahlem tonight to commemorate the forty-seventh birthday of the pastor, the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, who has been held for more than 10 months in a Nazi concentration camp.

Several pastors of the Confessional (Oppositional) Church participated in the tribute to the militant Protestant minister whose outspoken protests against the Nazi church program got him into difficulties with the authorities.

Women wept when reference was made from the pulpit to the incarcerated pastor who was described as "watching the months pass by in enforced idleness."

Prayers were offered for Mr. Niemoeller and 190 fellow pastors who have been suspended or are suffering other disabilities under present conditions.

Pastor Niemoeller was convicted March 2, 1938, on charges of attacking leaders of the state and using his pulpit improperly. The eight months he had been in jail awaiting trial canceled his seven-month sentence and a $600 fine was paid immediately. He was sent to a concentration camp, however, secret police asserting his release might lead to demonstrations against him.

Auto Wrecks 3 Gasoline Pumps.

By the Associated Press.

DE KALB, Ill., Jan. 14.—William Zscheneker's automobile left the highway and mowed down three gasoline pumps at a crossroads oil station near here late yesterday. The car caught fire, but it was extinguished before it spread to the gas pumps. Zscheneker, a Chicago salesman, escaped with a cut under one eye.

WITH GRAND JURY ADJOURNED, EAST SIDE GAMING RESUMES

100 Men and Women Flock to Dice and Roulette Tables at Club in St. Clair County.

Dice rolled and roulette wheels were spinning again last night at the Harlem Club in Brooklyn, Negro community north of East St. Louis. The club had been dark and deserted most of last week, while the St. Clair County grand jury was in session, but the jury adjourned Thursday.

More than 100 men and women gathered around the playing tables last night and a stalwart guard swung the entrance door wide as the customers approached. Inside, the guests were invited to check their wraps, and offered round-trip tickets for passage across the Eads Bridge. A large lot west of the club building provided spacious accommodation for parking under direction of attendants.

The club opened a month ago with equipment from the Hyde Park Club in Venice, closed because a reform administration in Madison County has frowned on commercialized gambling.

13,000 JOBLESS FILE CLAIMS

Total in City and County Seeking Unemployment Compensation.

About 13,000 unemployed persons in St. Louis and St. Louis County have filed unemployment compensation benefit claims at the six offices of the Missouri Employment Service, C. R. Kammerer, supervisor, announced yesterday.

The unemployment compensation act, which became effective Jan. 1, will provide temporary aid to persons who have lost their jobs through no fault of their own. Kammerer said the claims filed so far had been mailed to the State commission at Jefferson City for investigation and action.

U. S. PLANES REACH FLORIDA

18 to Leave Miami Today for Maneuvers in Cuba.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 14.—Eighteen amphibian navy planes from San Diego, Cal., arrived here today on the way to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, for maneuvers. Commander A. I. Price said they would leave at 9 a. m. tomorrow, weather permitting. The amphibians left San Diego last Tuesday, but were delayed two days in Texas by a zero ceiling and a heavy rainfall.

"We had to wait until Friday the thirteenth to get good flying weather, believe it or not," Commander Price said.

ROOSEVELT WON'T RISK COURT TEST, GOV. AIKEN SAYS

Vermont Executive Declares He Doesn't Oppose U. S. Dams but Won't Yield States' Rights.

By the Associated Press.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Jan. 14.—Standing pat in his fight over states' rights with the Federal Government, Gov. George D. Aiken (Rep.), asserted tonight that President Roosevelt was "unwilling to risk" a court test of the 1938 Flood Control Act.

His statement followed a declaration in Washington by Stephen Early, presidential secretary, that the President was willing to drop a proposed $2,000,000 flood control dam on the Ompompanoosuc River, near the small community of Union Village, rather than contest with the State over the acquisition of necessary lands.

"If Vermont doesn't want the flood control works it doesn't have to have them," Early said. "Other states want and can use the money."

Aiken replied: "I hope the President is not again trying to becloud the real issue. It is not flood control dams that we oppose. It is the surrendering of state sovereignty and resources to the Federal Government as a price for building these dams that we object to."

Favors Amendment.

The Governor has urged the amendment of the disputed 1938 act, by which the Federal Government was given power to acquire land for flood control projects.

The nub of the controversy is the acquisition of the necessary land for the Nnion Village dam site and reservoir.

The Governor told the Vermont legislature earlier in the week, in effect, that the State was willing to give the War Department the land, through procedure outlined in a written agreement. He branded as a violation of "sovereign rights," however, any effort by the Government to take the land through eminent domain or similar procedlure.

Aiken brought the controversy to a head after Secretary of War Woodring declined to sign the written agreement, already signed by Vermont, by which the State agreed to deed title to the land to the Government. Woodring said he was unable to sign because of unspecified restrictions.

Backed by Other Governors.

The Governor urged his legislature to petititon Congress to force Woodring to sign. He asked for and received from the legislature, a $67,500 fund "for the defense of our sovereign rights." Yesterday New England's five other Republica Governors backed him with a demand for Federal co-operation in flood control "without demanding the complete surrender" of states' rights.

In his statement today, Aiken said he would urge the New England congressional delegation to press again for the ratification of a 1937 flood control compact by which four states—Massachusetts, Vermont, Connecticut and New Hampshire—agreed to share with the Federal Government the cost of a flood protection system. Congress previously refused to approve the compact.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Senator Austin (Rep.), Vermont, said he would introduce an amendment to "restore" the rights of states in the 1938 flood control act. He charged the law was unconstitutional.

Fight in Congress Threatened Over Flood Control Program.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The State's rights stand taken by Gov. George D. Aiken of Vermont in behalf of Union Village, Vt., a hamlet with a population of 50, threatened tonight to precipitate a congressional fight over revamping the Government's $386,500,000 flood control program.

Senator Austin (Rep.), Vermont, said he would introduce Monday a bill to "restore to the states the rights they exercised before the Flood Control Act of 1938 was passed." That act gave the Government broad powers to condemn lands for flood control without the consent of the states.

There were indications, too, that some Democrats might support Austin's demand for amendment of the act. It was recalled that last session Senators O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, and Burke (Dem.), Nebraska, opposed the condemnation provision, contending it violated the rights of the states.

The hub of the controversy is the question whether the Government can take enough land at Union Village to construct a $2,000,000 flood control dam and reservoir on the Ompompanoosuc River.

With regard to that question alone, the White House said President Roosevelt was ready to drop the $2,000,000 project rather than contest the right to Federal acquisition of the lands. That brought immediate replies from Gov. Aiken in Vermont and Senator Gibson (Rep.), Vermont, and Representative Ball (Rep.), Connecticut, here.

Aiken, who got his Legislature to vote him a "war chest" of $67,500 to fight "seizure" of State lands, hailed it as proof that the President "is unwilling to risk a court decision on the 1938 Flood Control Act."

Ball said he could "hardly believe" the statement credited to the President. "The damage to public and private property has been appalling and the failure of the Government to proceed with flood control measures in New England will mean untold suffering to thousands of people," he said.

Gibson said the President was "attempting to place the blame for the delay, in the public's opinion, on Vermont."

Other New England governors have indorsed Aiken's stand.

WOMAN KILLED BY BUS IN SOUTH ST. LOUIS

Mrs. Anna Lehmann, Widow, Ran in Front of Machine, Chauffeur Says.

Mrs. Anna Lehmann, a widow, 3620A Bowen street, was killed by a Gravois line bus at Grand boulevard and Bowen street at 5:50 o'clock yesterday morning.

Gayford Miller, 3624 Meramec street, the chauffeur, said he was driving north when Mrs. Lehmann ran in front of his bus, which she apparently sought to board. Miller swerved, but she was knocked to the pavement.

At the Lehmann home, a daughter, Dorothy, 11, said her mother left a few minutes earlier to go to the home of another daughter, Mrs. Arthur Klasing, 33 South Maple avenue, Webster Groves, who, police were told, was expecting the birth of a baby. The body was identified at the morgue by a third daughter, Mrs. Otto Kruse, 2 Adams lane, Kirkwood.

Mrs. Lehmann, 52 years old, was the widow of August Lehmann.

Dedication of Organ.

The organ of Bethany Evangelical and Reformed Church, which was recently modernized at a cost of $5000, will be dedicated at a special service tonight at 8 o'clock.

COUNTY GROUP TO HELP DRAFT ANTI-FEE BILL

Non-partisan Committee Named, Also Will Seek Better Policing.

A non-partisan committee of 15 St. Louis County officeholders and representatives of civic groups to assist County legislators in drafting bills to abolish the fee system and improve policing of the county was appointed by the legislators following a public hearing at the Courthouse at Clayton yesterday.

The hearing was attended by about 150 persons, consisting mostly of County and township officeholders and representatives of various organizations. Legislators present were Representatives Forrest Mittendorf, First District, and Howard Elliott, Second District. State Senator Raleigh McCormick and Representative Hartwell G. Crain, Third District, were unable to attend.

Most of the discussion centered on the question of adequate policing. No voice was raised against elimination of the fee system, the only question left for settlement being the amount of salaries which should be paid officers now supported by fees.

Constable's Restriction Proposed.

The discussion on policing centered about a proposal, under consideration by the legislators, by which police powers of the Constables would be transferred to the Sheriff, whose staff of 20 deputies would be doubled. The Constables would be restricted to the serving of processes and other matters connected with civil litigation.

Sheriff A. J. Frank, who was Constable of old Central Township for several terms, protested vigorously against the proposal and declared that if the Constables were deprived of police functions the Sheriff would need 100 more men rather than an extra 20. One of the principal functions of Constables and their deputies is traffic duty in school zones, he said.

Frank agreed that Constables and their deputies should be on a salary rather than a fee basis, but expressed doubt that Justice of the Peace court costs which would be turned into the county treasury would be sufficient to pay their salaries. The Constables' fees now comprise part of the court costs.

Asked by Mittendorf what he thought would be fair compensation, Frank said he thought that the pay which Central Township officers would now be receiving, had that township not been subdivided several years ago, would be adequate—$3000 for the Constable and $1500 each for two deputies.

$2000 "Enough to Live on."

Justice of the Peace Leslie T. Lewis said that the $2000 salary he received in Central Township had been "enough to live on," though not entirely adequate. He suggested that after the 1940 census both Clayton and Jefferson Townships probably would come under the law affecting townships having more than 75,000 population, in which case Constables and deputies would receive the amounts mentioned by Frank in connection with old Central Township.

There was little discussion of the proposal of the recent grand jury, that a county-wide police force, separate from both the Sheriff's and Constable's office be established. Representative Elliott, however, after the meeting said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that such a plan would be considered under a proposed charter form of government for the county which he is planning to introduce in the Legislature.

Members of the committee named by the legislators were Girard V. Varnum, president of the County Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. J. M. Hutchinson, president of the County Women's Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. W. W. Griffith, president of the County Council of the League of Women Voters; Mrs. Oscar Dorman, representing the Women's Civic Institute of the County; Mayor Charles A. Shaw of Clayton, representing the League of County Municipalities; Collector Willis W. Benson, Assessor Martin L. Neaf, Prosecuting Attorney Stanley Wallach, Presiding Judge Clifford Cornell of the County Court, Treasurer Maurice Dwyer, Recorder of Deeds Gerald J. Donworth, Circuit Judges John J. Wolfe and Julius R. Nolte, Constable Arthur C. Mosley of Clayton Township, representing the County Constables' Association, and Justice of the Peace A. G. Jannopoulo of Carondelet Township, representing the Justices of the Peace Association.

PUBLIC SERVICE CO. REORGANIZATION IS READY FOR COURT

Plan Provides for Shrinking Capital Structure to Point More in Line With Concern's Traffic Volume.

TREATMENT OF DEBT ISSUES IS OUTLINED

Merger of Bus Assets—150 Modern Street Cars, Like Number of New Busses for Transit Improvement.

A reorganization plan for the St. Louis Public Service Co., soon to be submitted to United States District Judge Charles B. Davis, will provide for reduction of the first mortgage interest-bearing debt of the transportation system from $38,338,000 to $13,199,050 as a step toward shrinking an excessive capital structure to dimensions more in line with the present volume of traffic.

The plan has been in preparation for months by a reorganization committee representing security holders, with W. L. Hemingway, president of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., as chairman. The company went into receivership April 15, 1933, when it was unable to meet demands of banks for payment of a $10,000,000 collateral loan. Former Mayor Henry W. Kiel was appointed receiver by Judge Davis and was continued in charge of the system as trustee after the corporation filed reorganization proceedings under the amended Bankruptcy Act.

After having reached tentative agreements with representatives of various groups of security holders and creditors, the committee has had the plan printed. Before submitting the plan to the Court the committee will confer with Mayor Dickmann and other city officials concerning treatment to be provided for holders of the company's present common and preferred stock. The city is the largest owner of the preferred stock, holding 15,812 shares which were accepted in 1927 at the conclusion of an earlier receivership in settlement of claims for delinquent mill taxes.

Bond Obligations Plan.

The plan proposes to treat the present bond obligations as follows:

United Railway 4 Per Cent First Mortgage Bonds—Out of a total issue of $36,300,000 the public holds $17,894,000. These bonds matured July 1, 1934, and no interest has been paid on them since then. Owners of these bonds are to receive $84 in cash, $360 par value of new first mortgage bonds, $400 par value of "income" bonds, and two shares of stock for each $1000 bond.

City & Suburban 5 Per Cent First Mortgage Bonds—The amount of these in the hands of the public is $3,263,000; they matured July 1, 1934, and no interest has been paid since. Owners are to receive $80 in cash, $350 in new first mortgage bonds, $550 in income bonds, and two shares of stock for each $1000 bond.

The new first mortgage bonds would bear interest at 5 per cent. There would be no obligation on the company to pay interest on the "income" bonds except to the extent that earnings were available for that purpose after full provision for interest and sinking fund charges for the first mortgage bonds. The maximum that might be paid on these bonds is fixed at 4 per cent.

Other claims would be treated as follows:

Bank Creditors—A group of banks made a $10,000,000 loan in 1927 to promoters who reorganized the old United Railways into the St. Louis Public Service Co. and took it out of receivership. The collateral was United Railways first mortgage bonds, and the banks now hold $16,626,000 of these bonds pledged as security. The plan of the promoters was to get a new franchise, sell securities to the public, and pay off this loan out of the proceeds. It fell through when the company failed to get a new franchise.

Principal of this loan is now $8,899,654, and accrued interest is calculated at $2,662,400, making a total obligation of $11,562,054. It is proposed to settle this obligation on the basis of the $16,626,000 United Railways bonds held as collateral, giving these bonds the same treatment that such bonds in the hands of the public are to receive, with certain modifications agreed to by the banks in order to effect a compromise of a contest as to the validity of the pledge of a portion of the bonds.

The net result of this plan would be that the banks would receive $1,304,504 in cash, $5,615,160 in the new first mortgage bonds, and $4,200,655 in collateral trust notes, and as security for the collateral trust notes there would be deposited the $6,160,950 of income bonds and the 33,250 shares of stock which would accure to the banks under terms of the plan applicable to the United Railways bonds.

Public Service Co. 6 Per Cent Notes—The principal amount of these is $2,448,875, and they are unsecured. They would be replaced with income bonds to the extent of 30 per cent of par value.

Tort Claimants—These are holders of judgments and recognized claims against the system for damages and personal injuries. The aggregate is $2,191,067, which it is proposed to settle in full for 35 per cent of the face amount in cash, or a total of $766,873.

Preferred and Common Stock—There are outstanding 70,848 shares of preferred and 343,620 shares of common, for which some provision, not yet announced, is to be made. This will be participation in new stock.

The plan limits the amount of new first mortgage bonds to $13,199,050 and the income bonds to $16,500,000.

No Franchise Request.

The committee does not propose to ask for any new franchises, taking the position that, if the company gives satisfactory service, it will be permitted to continue operation.

A board of nine directors would be established to administer the reorganized company. The committee expects to select the first board subject to the approval of Judge Davis. This board would serve for one year, and directors thereafter would be elected by stockholders. The board would employ the operating manager.

The plan provides for the People's Motor Bus Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of the Public Service Co., to be dissolved, and its assets merged with those of the reorganized company.

Cash for the consummation of this plan is in the hands of the trustee, having been accumulated since the beginning of the receivership through non-payment of bond interest and from excess of depreciation charges over expenditures for replacements.

This cash fund now amounts to approximately $7,000,000. Cash payments required under the plan aggregate $3,835,513, and in addition expenses of the reorganization will have to be paid out of the fund. It is expected that there would remain approximately $3,000,000 in the treasury of the reorganized company for working capital and for improvements.

For Improved Service.

On the question of improved service the plan states:

"In order to properly meet the transportation needs of the city, the company will have to purchase new street cars of the most modern type to improve the service on some of the main arterial lines. A sizeable amount of track reconstruction will also be necessary. While bus equipment has been well maintained, it is probable that new busses will be needed to provide additional bus service."

The plan suggests there would be available $5,000,000 in a three-year period, which would make possible purchase of 150 new street cars and 150 new busses and provide for other needed capital improvements.

Procedure after submission of the plan to Judge Davis will be for the court to hold a public hearing on it, after which, if acceptable to the court, it would be submitted to all classes of recognized creditors. To become effective it must have the assent of two-thirds of the creditors in each of the various classes. These steps probably will take several months.

Members of the reorganization committee, in addition to Chairman Hemingway, are James H. Grover, Tom K. Smith, I. W. Kurtz, Craig MacQuaid and Walter W. Smith.

Georgia Postoffice Cut in Two in Dispute —Associated Press Wirephoto.

MRS. MARION E. BROWN, postmistress of Canoochee, Ga., standing beside what remains of her postoffice. Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Leon Cowart couldn't agree on what use should be made of their jointly owned building so they dissolved partnership. Then Mrs. Cowart decided to cut away her half of the building. Then Mrs. Brown countered with a warrant charging Mrs. Cowart with dismantling a postoffice, but not until the structure was half gone. Now Mrs. Brown distributes the mail from her car.

'SAILOR PRINCE' VALDEMAR OF DENMARK DIES AT 80

Also Known as "The Uncle of Kings," He Once Refused Throne of Bulgaria.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 14.—Eighty-year-old "Sailor Prince" Valdemar, who refused the throne of Bulgaria in 1887 to follow his naval career, died today of bronchial influenza.

Known also as "the Uncle of Kings," Prince Valdemar was related to most of Europe's royal families and was a great-uncle of Britain's King George VI. His resemblance to the late George V was so striking that crowds at the wedding of the Duke and Duchess of Kent in 1934, the last time Valdemar was in England, mistook him for the British monarch.

Born Oct. 27, 1858, Valdemar was the son of King Christian IX and Queen Louise. He was the youngest brother of Queen Alexandra, wife of Edward VII of Britain.

His nickname of "Uncle of Kings" arose from the fact that at one time his nephews were on the thrones of five nations—Russia, Norway, Denmark, Greece and Great Britain.

$300,000,000 AIRPORT PLAN LISTS 5 MISSOURI FIELDS

Civil Aeronautics Society Includes St. Louis in Expansion Program It Seeks.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. — The St. Louis municipal airport and five other Missouri flying fields are listed in the $300,000,000 airport expansion program to be urged on Congress next month by the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

A preliminary report on a national survey made public today by the CAA indicated the construction of three paved runways 4500 feet long would be recommended for St. Louis. Other Missouri beneficiaries listed in the program are Kansas City, Columbia, Kirksville, Poplar Bluff and St. Joseph. It was indicated that no changes would be recommended at Joplin and Springfield.

Maj. Ralph W. Page, municipal airport manager, said last night the Works Progress Administration was already lengthening the field's east-west runway from 3300 to 5560 feet. The north-south runway was recently lengthened from 3200 to 3800 feet. The WPA has been asked to build a new runway 4500 feet long parallel to Natural Bridge road and to extend the north-south runway to 5500 feet.

TWO WALLS COLLAPSE IN FIRE AT FEED MILL

Flames Brought Under Control in Mill Creek District After Several Hours.

The three-story brick building, occupied by Viteena Feed Mills, 701 South Theresa avenue, was wrecked by fire early yesterday. The building was just south of the Mill Creek Valley Railroad tracks.

Fire Chief Lawrence Cornoyer estimated damage to the building at $25,000. No estimate of damage to the contents was available.

The alarm was turned in at 4:15 a. m. by a policeman who saw flames on the roof. By the time firemen arrived a few minutes later the flames were shooting high into the air through the penthouse of an old elevator shaft and smoke was pouring from the building. The firemen turned in second and third alarms, summoning 15 engines, four ladder trucks and a water tower.

Not long after the arrival of firemen the north wall and part of the front wall on the east collapsed. Parts of the east wall crashed onto Theresa avenue at a point from which a fire engine had just been removed on Chief Cornoyer's order.

Working with the aid of spotlights firemen played streams of water on the burning building from roofs of one-story buildings to the south and west. The fire was under control after several hours.

Although several hose lines were laid across the tracks of the main lines of the Missouri Pacific, Frisco and Wabash railroads, the only train delayed was a Missouri Pacific fast freight bound for Kansas City. That train did not get through for more than two hours. It passed after firemen had succeeded in passing the hose lines under the tracks through a small space at the edge of Theresa avenue. No passenger trains were due at the height of the fire.

What caused the fire was not determined. The building, insured, was owned by the Herman Miller family, 5312A Itaska street. John F. Krey, vice-president and general manager of the Krey Packing Co., is president of Viteena Mills. The other chief officer is Lester L. Duncan, also connected with the Krey company.

Viteena Mills manufactured animal and poultry feed. The building contained machinery and considerable quantities of grain and feed.

EARL OF LINDSAY, 72, DIES

Brother, 67, Is Heir to Title of Scotch Peer.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The Earl of Lindsay, one of the 16 Scottish peers in the House of Lords, died today at the age of 72. He was the twelfth Earl of his line and had been a representative peer for Scotland since 1917.

A 67-year-old brother, Archibald L. Lindesay, of Manchester-By-Sea, Mass., is heir to the family title.

LEGISLATOR-COUNSEL RACKET UNDER FIRE

Kansas City Judge to Seek Inquiry Into Practice of Such Continuances.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 14.—Circuit Judge Allen C. Southern announced today he would request State Bar Association and county grand jury investigations of a practice of defendants in criminal cases employing legislators as their attorneys and then asking for continuances because the attorneys were occupied with legislative duties.

Provoked by three successive requests for continuances by accused persons whose attorneys were legislators, Judge Southern placed other attorneys and court attaches on the stand and questioned them.

Records in two of the cases showed State Representative Thomas J. Gill had replaced other attorneys on Jan. 6, shortly after the Legislature convened, and in a third that State Representative Samuel C. Hayden had replaced another attorney on the same date.

Henry E. Whitney, court clerk, testified that Gill had tried no criminal case in two years and that he had known of no instance in that time in which Hayden tried such a case in this court.

Judge Southern reset the three cases. He asked that the original attorneys of record be in court on the dates set and said he would confer with Attorney-General McKittrick in the interim.

Osteopaths to Meet.

The St. Louis Osteopathic Association will meet Tuesday evening at the Forest Park Hotel. Discussions will include public health bills pending in the State Legislature.

AERONAUTIC SOCIETY TO CONVENE TODAY

Louis A. Johnson and Others Will Address National Meeting in St. Louis.

Government officials, ranking officers of the Army Air Corps, and leaders in commercial aviation will be the principal speakers at the annual convention of the National Aeronautic Association which opens today at Hotel Jefferson.

Among the main topics under consideration will be America's air defense, air safety, regular transoceanic flying, and the application of the Civil Aeronautics Act to domestic flying and airplane manufacturing.

Louis A. Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War, who has been making many recommendations lately for a greatly increased air force, will deliver the key address of the convention at the annual banquet Tuesday night. Also on the program that night will be Clinton M. Hester, administrator of the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

Business Sessions Start Tomorrow.

An informal buffet supper today will open the convention program. The convention will be called to order tomorrow morning by Charles Horner of Washington, president of the association. At a luncheon tomorrow the speakers will be Major-General H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps; Oswald Ryan, member of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, and Hester. Horner will deliver the president's address at the afternoon meeting.

Horner told reporters last night the nation's present aviation facilities were inadequate to carry out President Roosevelt's proposed air training program. If the United States is to achieve the goal of 20,000 trained pilots a year he said, there must be a tremendous increase in the number of instructors, planes and ground facilities.

Lower Requirements Suggested.

He suggested that it might be necessary to lower requirements of army and navy training schools. Horner declared that not more than 1 per cent of the population took part in aviation, as passengers or pilots, and that steps should be taken to increase interest.

At dinner tomorrow night the speakers will be Congressman Dow W. Harter of Ohio, Major-General Frank M. Andrews, chief of the Air Force G. H. Q. at Langley Field, Va., and Commander Ralph Davison of the Navy Department's Bureau of Aeronautics.

Some of the principal speakers at section meetings and at luncheon Tuesday include Maj. A. B. McMullen, chief of the airport section of CAA; Mabel Walker Willebrandt, chairman of the American Bar Association's aeronautical law committee, and Edgar S. Gorrell, president of the Air Transport Association.

Noted Flyers to Attend.

Among some of the noted flyers who will be present are James H. Doolittle, Roscoe Turner and Jacqueline Cochran.

The luncheon Tuesday will combine serious speeches with a stunt in that all of the food served will have been flown here especially for the event. There will be turkeys from Texas and California, shrimp from New Orleans, peas from California, cranberries from Boston, butter from Minnesota, celery from Michigan, potatoes from Idaho, apples from Washington, oranges from Florida, pecans from Texas and coffee from Brazil.

Among the recommendations which President Horner said he would ask the convention to adopt are the establishment of a federally supported airport system, expansion of the army and navy reserve air forces, inauguration of a youth training program in flying and extension of air transport by the establishment of feeder lines.

OWNERSHIP OF BANK SHARES QUESTIONED IN $246,000 SUIT

Never Listed as Property of Closed Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co., Witness Says.

The 2467 shares of stock in the closed Grand National Bank, on which J. Buckner Fisher, bank receiver, is seeking to collect $246,700 from partners in the defunct brokerage house of Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co., as double liability, were never listed in the brokerage firm's books as its property, it developed yesterday in cross-examination of Fisher's principal witness, A. E. Spellman, examiner in the office of the Comptroller of the Currency.

In direct testimony, before United States District Judge George H. Moore, Spellman had traced the disputed shares from the time of their issuance in 1928 in the name of the late Arthur C. Hilmer, chief partner in the Anderson firm, through a long series of transactions, and had expressed the opinion the stock actually belonged to the company. Cross-examination by Frank A. Thompson, attorney for several defendants, elicited the statement that the stock had never been carried in the company's books as an asset of the company.

The defendants contend they were not partners in the brokerage business and were never owners of the Grand National shares. Buckner filed the suit under the old double liability provision of national bank charters.

Congressman's Body Here Today.

The body of Representative Ben Cravens of Fort Smith, Ark., escorted by a congressional party, will arrive in St. Louis at 4:40 o'clock this afternoon, and will be taken to Fort Smith on a train leaving Union Station at midnight. Congressman Cravens, who was 66 years old, died in Washington Friday of pneumonia. His funeral will be held in Fort Smith tomorrow.

SANFORD BATES TO BE SCOUT DINNER SPEAKER

Former Head of Federal Prisons Will Address St. Louis Council Jan. 30.

Sanford G. Bates, executive director of the Boys' Club Federation of America and former superintendent of Federal prisons, will speak on the relation of scouting to crime prevention at the annual dinner meeting of the St. Louis Council, Boy Scouts of America, Jan. 30 at the Chase Hotel.

About 700 Scout leaders and their wives are expected to attend. The business program will include election of officers. E. D. Nims is retiring as president after six years. He will receive from Scout Commissioner H. D. McBride a scroll listing all scout troops, cub packs, sea scout ships and other senior scout units which have fulfilled special requirements.

John D. Wright will report on the extension of scouting to underprivileged boys during the past year. Membership has risen to 11,000, the greatest enrollment in St. Louis scouting history.

Entertainment will be supplied by the tunaphone band of Troop 198, St. Roch's Church, and the Boy Scout choir of Vashon High School, in its first public appearance, presenting a program of spirituals.

The Insurance Board of St. Louis will pay tribute to the scout movement in a special broadcast on Radio Station KSD tomorrow evening from 6:30 to 7 o'clock. Episodes in the history of scouting will be dramatized.

Scouts and Cubs are making arrangements for the observance of National Boy Scout Week, Feb. 8 to 14. Scout Sunday will be Feb. 12.

An introductory course on Girl Scout activities will open the spring training program of the St. Louis Girl Scout Council Jan. 23 and 30 at Second Presbyterian Church, Taylor avenue and Westminster place.

The St. Louis Girl Scout Council will give its annual dinner Friday evening at the Kings-Way Hotel.

The council has gained 501 Girl Scouts and 320 Brownies during the year. There are now 4652 Scouts in the city and county and 1508 Brownies.

CENTRAL STATES LIFE SUED BY KENTUCKY HOME MUTUAL

Petition Asks for Accounting of Sums Claimed Under Reinsurance Agreement.

The Central States Life Insurance Co. was sued in United States District Court yesterday by the Kentucky Home Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Louisville, Ky., which asks for an accounting of sums claimed due under a reinsurance agreement.

In the petition the Kentucky Home Mutual says its predecessor, the Home Life Insurance Co., entered a reinsurance agreement with the Inter-Southern Life Insurance Co. of Little Rock, Ark., in 1930, which provided that Home Life would pay Inter-Southern 3 per cent of renewal premium income and 15 per cent of the gain from mortality savings. Inter-Southern, it is stated, paid Home Life $50,000. On April 3, 1931, the petition continues, Central States reinsured Home Life, assuming its obligations, but has not paid the 3 per cent or the 15 per cent.

Judgment is asked for the amounts found due in an accounting and for interest at 6 per cent on $50,000 from Jan. 1, 1931.

BROOKLYN COAL DEALER WITH BRITISH TITLE DIES

Sir Montrose Stuart Graham, Born In U. S., Had Kept Inherited Baronetcy a Secret.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Sir Montrose Stuart Graham of Esk, retired Brooklyn coal dealer and one of the few Americans to hold a British title, died Thursday after a long illness. He was 63 years old.

Sir Montrose was eleventh Baronet of Esk, Cumberland, England, a 300-year-old inherited title which he kept a social and business secret.

"We don't believe much in titles," a member of the family explained tonight. Sir Montrose's son, Sir Montrose Stuart Graham Jr., now becomes the twelfth Baronet of Esk. He works for a bank here.

Sir Montrose was born in Brooklyn. His family, noted in Scottish history, traced its ancentry back to Robert Bruce, an early King.

DA VINCI EXHIBIT TO INCLUDE MODELS OF INVENTIONS

Some of the most important models of machinery invented by Leonardo da Vinci, the great fifteenth century sculptor and painter, have been reconstructed and will be shown in the Leonardo da Vinci Exhibition which is to be opened in Milan next May.

The entire ground floor and part of the first floor of the Palace of Arts in the Milan Park are being prepared for the exhibition which will include, in other galleries of the palace, an exhibition of inventions dating from Leonardo to Marconi.

All the activities of Leonardo will be illustrated in the exhibition. He will be revealed through his works not only as a great painter and sculptor, a distinguished architect and engineer, but in his widely varied capacities as poet, botanist, anatomist, physiologist, astronomer, geographer, musician and, above all, as a pioneer of human flight.

In addition to the machine models reconstructed for the exhibition, there will be shown six models of flying machines executed in accordance with the artist's sketches and notes. There will also be six contemporary portraits of the great master taken from paintings, sculptures, drawing and casts, valuable documentary evidence concerning his life and work. All of his scientific drawings will be on view.

The work of assembling material for this exhibition has been in progress for more than three years and has been drawn from private and public collections in Italy, other countries of Europe, England and America.

FLAG-RAISING CEREMONY ON WORLD'S FAIR PAVILION

The flag raising ceremonies on Jan. 13, on the French Pavilion which is part of the 1939 New York World's Fair, were attended by Governor-General Marcel Olivier, commissioner general of the French section and chairman of the board of the French Line. With him were the architects Robert Expert and Pierre Patout who planned the pavilion.

The French Pavilion is being erected on a plot of ground 107,640 feet square. A great part of the plot will be given over to entrances and landscaped gardens. The three-story structure will show all phases of French activity in art, science and industry and include exhibits of Sevres china, Gobelin tapestry, and Aubusson rugs. French progress in industrial works will also be shown, as well as exhibits of fashions, literature, science and invention.

CENTURY OLD TRADE STILL IN OPERATION

Nutmeg Industry of West Indies Once Controlled by Native Planters.

West Indies cruise passengers who sail into the brilliant-colored bowl that is the harbor of St. George, Grenada, on the Gdynia American "Pilsudski," will see and smell a trust-busting industry some centuries old and still in full and flagrant operation.

Long ago, the early explorers of the East Indies found growing on the Banda Isalnds a tree that was appropriately named Myristica Fragansa. It bore a fruit that resembled an apricot. The seed inside the fruit was surrounded by a covering that yielded a spice called mace, and the seed itself was a nutmeg. It was also a veritable gold mine, because nutmeg, so delightful when powdered on the top of an eggnog, became precious in Europe. Treasured-up nutmeg was inventoried in dowries and wills, like jewels.

To keep a stranglehold on the marketing of this profitable commodity, the planters organized annual expeditions to nearby islands to exterminate any nutmeg seedlings that might have sprung up. The fruit pigeon, the Cassowary and the Hornbill sometimes smuggled seeds out by air route, but the plantation owners managed to keep the market pretty well cornered.

Brought to Grenada.

Then, still a long time ago, someone sneaked out some Fragansa seeds to Grenada in the Western tropics, and it was found that the plant flourished there, each mature tree producing around 5000 "megs" a year. That broke the market, and now we can all have mace to savor turkey stuffing and nutmeg to grate into hot rum toddy and for other purposes, without waiting for a rich uncle to bequeath us a few nutmegs.

Today nutmegs are the chief export of the little island that is the pearl of its own little archipelago of some hundreds of other Grenadines. Grenada also produces mace, cocoa, kola nuts, cotton and coffee. Its characteristic tree, however, is the Madre de Cacao, or cocoa mamma, that was planted originally to shelter cocoa trees, but now is purely an ornamental shrub whose flaming blossoms dominate Grenada's color scheme.

Commercially minor but highly interesting herb products are also sold in the native markets. These are guaranteed, severally, to prolong life, win the affection of loved ones, endow users with vivid personalities, and keep husbands and wives constant. Whatever Northern strangers may think about these mystic seeds and drugs, it is said that some of the drugs and healing ointments of Grenada's "obi" men and women have actually proved very effective.

Old Iron Works.

Reminder of the days when iron working was one of North Carolina's prominent industries is an old chimney, all remaining of the Washington iron furnace located near Bessemer City, N. C. The furnace was active during the late eighteenth century and during the first part of the nineteenth, and many hinges, andirons and other wrought iron fixtures were manufactured. During the battle of Kings Mountain, which occurred just a few miles away, cannon balls were cast for the American army. None of these could be used, however, as the British had already been put to rout by the time the heavy balls had cooled off sufficiently for use.

What Prof. Frankfurter Thinks Of Supreme Court and Functions As Stated in His Own Writings

Checkrein Necessary in American Form of Government and It Should Be Court, Not Congress or Executive.

BY RICHARD L. STOKES
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.

NOW that it is settled Felix Frankfurter will succeed the late Benjamin N. Cardozo as a Justice of the United States Supreme Court, widespread interest continues regarding the attitude of the James Byrne Professor of Administrative Law at Harvard University toward many public questions which were touched on not at all or only lightly during Prof. Frankfurter's examination before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee Thursday.

Throughout the two periods of his service as a member of the Harvard faculty, Prof. Frankfurter never granted an interview. His explanation was that scholarship is a kind of priesthood, with its own vows and sanctities, among them a limitation of public utterance to the form traditionally accepted as appropriate to a scholar—his own responsible writings published in books or magazines.

But it happens that about 15 months ago, when the administration's assault upon the Supreme Court was approaching its debacle, I spent several hours with Prof. Frankfurter, both at his home on Brattle street, in Cambridge, and at his office in the library building of the Harvard Law School. He agreed readily to quotation or any information he might supply regarding himself as a private individual—the facts of his career, for instance, and the men and books that have exerted influence on his intellectual evolution.

Considered Opinions.

But his response to all questions of a public nature was unprecedented. As one interrogation or another was put, he took his own books from the shelves, and in an instance or so opened them at the pertinent page and paragraph. These writings were available to any person with recourse to a library. The results of the colloquy were published in the Post-Dispatch of Oct. 3, 1937. Since the "interview" dealt with Prof. Frankfurter's position on numerous subjects now exercising public interest, and since he took pains to affirm that the opinions expressed were considered, long-time judgments, as valid as on the day when they were written, the Post-Dispatch takes this occasion to present once more such portions of the article as remain of current significance.

No doubt was left as to his vigorous faith in democracy. He had written that "democracy is the reign of reason on the most extensive scale," and that "the ultimate justification of democracy still remains the lack, in the long run, of a decent and workable substitute." The statement provided that "one hears from time to time much shallow talk about politics, as though politics—the free exchange of opinion regarding the best policy for the life of a society—were not the essence of a free and vigorous people. A dictatorship means precisely the prohibition of politics."

Appraisals of the Great.

Asked to name the most original political mind that has appeared in America, he instantly replied: "Alexander Hamilton." The great adversary of Jefferson, according to Prof. Frankfurter, "possessed a precocity of genius—that is, the quality of being different from other men—which arouses a constant sense of the miraculous."

John Marshall, declared the Harvard savant, was the greatest creative statesman to adorn the Supreme Court, but pre-eminence goes to Roger Brooke Taney, Chief Justice from 1835 to 1864, for "sheer cerebral virtuosity, for classic lucidity of thought." In view of Taney's notoriety as author of the Dred Scot decision, no little independence of judgment was required for Prof. Frankfurter's declaration that he "adapted the Constitution to the emerging forces of modern economic society" and that "eventually it will become intellectually disreputable to see him predominantly as the judicial defender of slavery."

"But the man into whose presence I return with most pleasure," said Frankfurter, "is Abraham Lincoln. Many other rulers, such as Gladstone, had greater intellects and profounder learning; but I find him the most satisfactory human being of them all. Perhaps, all-round, he was the wisest reflector on the actual art of government that ever lived. He had a strange combination of shrewdness and tenderness, and was a true lover of his kind."

Extension of Democracy.

It was stated in the article that Prof. Frankfurter wishes to see the democratic process completed by its extension to industry and commerce, and that he has imbued successive waves of young men with his ideals of social justice. It is also recorded that "he has written censorious phrases about Socialism, and accepts the capitalist order as an existing fact." The economist who has most influenced him was named as being not John Maynard Keynes but Walter Bagehot, a Tory of Tories and London banker, who wrote "Lombard Street" and "The English Constitution." Bagehot's merit, in Prof. Frankfurter's eyes, was that he was no theorist, but a man of vast practical experience in politics and the money market.

A conscientious brain-truster, the writer ventured to say, would tabulate as mid-Victorian the list of thinkers given by the Harvard professor as those who had most profoundly affected his own mentality. They include John Morley, Thomas Henry Huxley, Edward Gibbon and Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Authoritative Rejoinder.

As Prof. Frankfurter is about to ascend the highest bench, his views as to the functions of the Supreme Court are of even more concern today than they were in October, 1937, when President Roosevelt had just declared his resolution of fighting the court battle to a finish.

In the books which the former took from his shelves was to be found probably the most crushing and authoritative rejoinder ever made to Mr. Roosevelt's principal contentions.

It may be recalled in this connection that the President did not consult Prof. Frankfurter before dispatching to Congress his famous message and bill on court reform, although the latter was an intimate friend and trusted adviser, and ranked as the country's foremost historian and analyst of the Supreme Court. The President's action, the article affirmed, aroused in Prof. Frankfurter the liveliest consternation. There was no definite parting of the ways, but contact between the White House and the law school professor, until then close and constant, virtually ceased for several months. The latter, while refusing publicly to oppose the measure, resisted all pressure to indorse it. Even now, more than a year later, it is reliably reported that Frankfurter owes his appointment entirely to the last-moment and fervent intercession of Senator Norris, Solicitor-General Robert H. Jackson and the new Attorney-General, Frank Murphy—after the President had made up his mind to confer it on another.

Frankfurter's Words.

Prof. Frankfurter's views, founded on his written works, were summarized as follows, in his own language:

The membership of the court should not be enlarged. By decades of experience, nine has been approved to be the number ideally practicable for assuring group deliberation and at the same time a keen sense of responsibility on

Hapsburg Pretender's Valiant Offer to Take Helm in Vienna

DEATH OF AN EMPIRE

Chancellor's 'No' Coldly Courteous With Nazis at the Door

Text of Young Archduke Otto's Letter Asking That He Be Given Power and Schuschnigg's Refusal Just Before His Downfall Made Public for First Time.

THE inside story of a dramatic last-minute attempt by Archduke Otto of Hapsburg to replace Chancellor Schuschnigg of Austria and so try to block the Nazi invasion of Austria is revealed herewith in the publication of two history-making letters exchanged between the Pretender to the crown and the now-imprisoned Chancellor.

In this exchange of private correspondence, now brought to light with a complete text of the two letters that will go down in history as probably the most revealing documents behind the scenes of the Austrian conquest, the fate of a nation was sealed. The originals of these letters were smuggled out of Chancellery archives in Vienna at the time of the Nazi invasion and taken to Paris by an Austrian diplomat, now residing there in exile. The Nazi government has issued a warrant charging Archduke Otto with high treason, the penalty for which is death; but Otto is safely beyond Nazi frontiers—an exile in Belgium and well out of Hitler's reach. He is the son of Empress Zita and the former Emperor Karl, who abdicated at the end of the war and died in exile in 1922.

PARIS, Jan. 14.

A FEW short weeks before the fateful morning of March 11, 1938, when Europe shook at the sound of Adolf Hitler's legions goose-stepping into Austria, a suave young man with a proud old title wrote a long letter to the Chancellor at Vienna. It was not the first time that he did so. It was probably the last.

Today, the suave young man, by name, Otto von Hapsburg, legitimate pretender to that crown that ruled the Danube for seven centuries, is just another exile, living in obscurity. A swastika flies over the palace that was some day to be his, and the chancellor to whom he wrote is imprisoned in the very city that he ruled, bowing to the will and pleasure of a foreign dictator.

History may have known cases like that before. Some day—much later, to be sure—it will also pass impartial judgment as to what occurred in the present instance; but today no one can say who was right and who was wrong. Archduke Otto's letter and Chancellor Schuschnigg's reply, written within the sound of the approaching storm, belong to the future student who will attempt to delve into the maze of intrigue, contradiction, patriotism and pathos that together went into the making of one of the most remarkable dramas in modern political history.

Impassioned Appeal; Cold, Courteous Denial

The two letters are being made public below for the first time.

Dated Feb. 17, 1938, Otto's letter to Schuschnigg urges him to resist further encroachments on the part of Germany; to seek the aid of the Western democracies, and, as a supreme measure, to turn over to him the chancellorship of Austria as a first step toward the restoration of monarchy which alone would render the anschluss definitely impossible. The pretender makes a passionate plea for the maintenance of free Austria as a last stronghold of true Germanism and Catholicism in a Central Europe gravely menaced by the neo-pagan Nazi ideology.

Schuschnigg's reply, cold, courteous and somewhat shorter, denies Otto's knowledge of the real facts of the situation, claims that the slightest step in the direction of restoring the Hapsburgs would prove immediately fatal to Austria, and seems to be inclined to let history take its course, in the hope that, some day, after another war perhaps, Austria may again emerge great and free.

Text of Otto's Letter to 'Dear Mr. Schuschnigg'

The text of Archduke Otto's letter follows:

"My dear Mr. Schuschnigg,

"Events of the past few days oblige me to write you. I am not doing this to speak to you of the past. You know better than anyone that in my contacts with you I have always maintained the viewpoint that the earliest possible restoration of the monarchy could alone afford an adequate guarantee of the definite independence of Austria. In spite of your personal loyalty to the legitimist cause, which I never questioned for a moment, and which I am not questioning today, you felt that it was your duty to delay this definite solution of the Austrian problems. You also know that I never approved either the spirit or the letter of the agreement of July 11, 1936. (See Footnote One, at end). Finally, you know that I have always been strongly in favor of giving the largest possible satisfaction to the laboring masses, and that I condemn a policy of concessions to National-Socialists who betrayed their people and their country.

"The events of the past few days have opened a new phase in the life of our people. The enemy of Austria has succeeded, by an act of unparalleled violence, in forcing your government into a dangerous situation, which gravely compromises our chances of subsequent resistance. He has succeeded in imposing a new convention which widely opens the door to his future intervention. A precedent has thus been created which cannot fail to alarm greatly all true Austrians.

Plea for Preservation of Germanism in Austria

"At this grave hour I must speak to you, who carries before God and the people the heavy responsibility for my fatherland. This responsibility is enormous. You owe it to the people who believe in you as the champion of their independence and who are ready to support you in this policy. You owe it to the age-old Austrian idea, which has maintained through the centuries its power to cement the peoples of the Danubian basin into a strong and united whole, and which even today still has sufficient force to reassert itself. You owe it to the spirit of true Germanism which today, because of the neo-pagan theories of the Reich that are totally foreign to it, has its true home in Austria, where it has preserved all the ancient strength of the basic tradition of the Holy Roman Empire. For if real Germanism is to survive at all, it can only do so in Austria, whence it will emerge one day as the salvation of Germany itself.

"Finally and above all, you owe this responsibility to our greatest possession: the Catholic faith. In the German Reich a systematic struggle rages against Catholicism, which may some day be completely stamped out among the population. Of all the territories of German culture, Austria today remains the last stronghold of the faith, by which our people will stand or fall. If this last bastion should surrender, the Church, outside of which there is no salvation, shall be destroyed in Central Europe, and millions of souls shall be lost to it forever.

"But you are not the only one to carry this responsibility. I also have my share. As the legitimate head of a dynasty which protected Austria for 650 years, as the son of a father who, on a far-away island, gave his life for his people, I cannot fail to do my duty, I have not the right to do so.

'Duty to Submit Plan for Preserving Fatherland'

"Fully aware of the importance of what I am now going to say, and after having fully weighed the grave consequences that might result, I consider it my duty, dear Mr. Schuschnigg, to submit to you the following plan for the salvation of my endangered fatherland—a plan for which I assume full responsibility as the legitimate Emperor of Austria:

"The first point of this plan concerns our foreign policy. In Austria, we are at present exposed to the pressure of a powerful neighbor, who seeks to destroy our very existence. We must therefore seek around us other Powers capable of counter-balancing this pressure. Our choice, of course, can only fall upon those Western countries whose attitude is sympathetic to our country.

Secret Rapprochement With the Western Powers

"To be sure, their internal structure does not correspond to our ideal, but faced with the question of 'to be or not to be,' this should not matter in the slightest. Naturally, this necessary rapprochement with the Western Powers should remain secret as long as possible. That is why you should undertake this task personally, not only because of the confidence you enjoy abroad but also because I cannot trust Minister Guido Schmidt (Foreign Minister in the Schuschnigg Cabinet). He is certainly not liked by the Western Powers, and I know that he has not always acted very loyally toward them. Also, his personal predilection for Germany is only too well known. It would therefore be indispensable that you should personally take the matter in hand, avoiding official routine, and you may rest assured that I shall always help you as much as I can. I am convinced that this is the only way to secure adequate guarantees for the future of our foreign policy.

"From a military standpoint, Austria should bend all its efforts to re-arm as much as possible, and to subordinate to this urgent duty all other financial considerations, no matter how pressing. If we have a strong army, we won't run as great a risk in the future as we have in the past. In this respect, I can only congratulate you upon the energy with which you have maintained at his post Gen. Zehner (Footnote 2), in spite of the terrific pressure to the contrary. His personality is our best guarantee that our army shall remain thoroughly Austrian in the future.

Internal Policy: Action in Three Directions Urged

"In the matter of internal policy it shall be necessary, for the salvation of the country, to act in three directions, which you should find quite easy owing to your unlimited powers as head of the Fatherland Front. First, you should actively work to give a measure of satisfaction to the elements of the Left.

"In the course of the past few days the workers of Austria have proved that they are, above all, patriots. The laboring class cannot be contaminated by National Socialism and will always remain one of the safest mainstays of the nation, wherefore your government should give it a possibility of taking an active part in the organization of the country for which it is ready to fight.

"Another force which so far has not been utilized is legitimism. This movement—and I can vouchsafe for that—will follow you anywhere, so long as it has the assurance that in doing so it is serving the cause of Austrian independence. Finally—and I don't think I have to stress this point—it is ex-

Analysis of Roosevelt's Statement That Gross Debt of U. S. Economic System Is No Higher Than in 1929

Total Same, but Structure Has Been Changed Fundamentally With Government Taking on More and More.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S immediate "spend for recovery" program, as formally announced in his recent messages to Congress, can be traced to two books which obviously have influenced the financial and economic advisers now in favor at the White House.

Paradoxically, the two books present conflicting programs for governmental direction of the national economy. One is a scholarly 360-page study of the changes in the internal debt structure of the United States from 1929 to 1937, titled "Debts and Recovery," published by the 20th Century Fund; the other is a 91-page popularly phrased brochure, written by seven Harvard and Tufts economists, called "An Economic Program for American Democracy," published by the Vanguard Press.

J. Lionberger Davis, chairman of the board of the Security National Bank Savings & Trust Co., of St. Louis, headed the committee in charge of the investigation made by the 20th Century Fund. Included on this committee were Jacob Viner, professor of economics at the University of Chicago; W. W. Waymack, editor of the editorial page of the Des Moines Register and Tribune; Maurice Wertheim, senior partner of Wertheim & Co., investment bankers, and Stillman F. Westbrook, vice-president of the Aetna Life Insurance Co.

Wide Variance.

While the 20th Century Fund investigators agreed with the seven Harvard and Tufts writers on some details, such as the desirability of eliminating tax exempt securities, and the need of forecasting future governmental and private spending, they were at wide variance on the extent of governmental participation in national "investing."

But the seven economists—and the present Roosevelt advisers—found much to suit their purposes in the facts compiled by the 20th Century Fund authors. In his message on the state of the nation President Roosevelt said:

"Despite our Federal Government expenditures, the entire debt of our national economic system, public and private together, is no larger today than it was in 1929, and the interest thereon is far less than it was in 1929."

This statement was a summarization of the introductory paragraphs of "Debts and Recovery" which said:

"At the time the great depression began, in 1929, the total amount of outstanding debts in the United States was well in excess of $250 billion. To mention a few of the major items, there were about $32 billion of tax-exempt securities, representing debts of Government bodies, outstanding, and corporations reported a total bonded debt of $47 billion. Mortgages on farms and urban property are estimated at over $40 billion. Short-term debts receivable at banks and nonfinancial corporations totaled some $53 billion. Commercial banks had debts in the form of deposits of about $47 billion (of which some $4 billion were interbank debts). Life insurance companies owed their policyholders over $12 billion; mutual savings banks owed depositors $9 billion; and building and loan associations owed "shareholders" over $5 billion.

Debt Structure Changed.

"Since 1929, the debt situation has changed greatly. By 1937, the tax-exempt debt had risen to nearly $53 billion, and corporation bonds probably amounted to some $50 billion. The mortgage debt was reduced to less than $[illegible] billion. Short-term debts receivable at banks and corporations were in the neighborhood of $30 billion, an enormous decrease. Deposits at commercial banks were about $46 billion ($6 billion being interbank debt). Life insurance obligations to policyholders had risen to $20 billion, and mutual savings bank deposits to $10 billion; while building and loan liabilities were down to less than $4 billion. The total of these items—again about $250 billion—was not very much changed; but the alteration in structure was fundamental."

The same above thought was used by Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve System in his reply to the assertion of Senator Byrd of Virginia that the time had come for national economy. It was also paraphrased by the seven Harvard and Tufts program makers.

'Only a Breathing Spell.'

J. Lionberger Davis and his associates, however, did not recommend increased governmental spending to bring and maintain prosperity. Declaring that their committee was "emphatically of the opinion that while sounder debt policies can help to forestall depressions and ease crises they cannot alone bring recovery," they concluded:

"In an emergency, governmental refinancing can give hard-pressed debtors a breathing spell—as it did in 1933—and thus prevent gross injustices. But sustained recovery calls for new financing to pay for new houses, factories and the like. While a certain proportion of new financing is commonly debt financing, most of the funds for business expansion must be obtained from stockholders or other investors in direct ownership. Furthermore, debt financing can be safely absorbed only if equity funds are also being invested. Devices for encouraging debt (such as the recent reduction of owners' equities under the Federal Housing Authority insured mortgages from 20 to 10 per cent) may bring a spurt of recovery, but it can scarcely be more than temporary. For durable recovery, the committee is convinced, means must be found—or known means must be used—to make equity investments more attractive to investors."

Threat to Future.

The 20th Century Fund Committee was primarily concerned with private debts but it found that "expansion of the Government debt in the recent depression has damaged investment opportunity . . . and the threat of higher taxes in the future to carry the debt, is a threat to future profits."

It is this conclusion that President Roosevelt, Chairman Eccles and the college economists rejected.

In technical language, President Roosevelt's present spending or "investing" program calls for "an expanding economy," which broadly interpreted means that debts, public and private, continuously grow larger, and the returns on the investments increase faster than the debt service.

"Expansion fed upon itself in the past; contraction feeds upon itself in the present," the "Economic Program" declared. "These are the basic changes which underlie the reversal of trend from 1929 to the present."

To the 20th Century Fund argument that the Federal Government should retire from some of its business activities and regulation, the college economists replied:

"The conception of government as the organized expression of the collective strength and the aspirations of the great mass of people has come to stay. The New Deal has not failed. Rather its great weakness has been a wavering adherence to its own principles."

Immediate Problem.

The "Economic Program" foreshadowed many of the President's utterances in the state of the nation and the budget messages. Outlining the immediate problem facing the country its authors declared:

"The Government must assume

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Nick Union Men Urge Real Clean-up.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial on Mr. Green's attitude, in response to the demand for a clean-up of the theatrical unions dominated by John Nick, was excellent. And we, who will be directly influenced by Mr. Green's attitude, feel that it can be summarized to this: Mr. Green's sincerity.

If President Green is sincere in his declaration about cleaning up the labor situation in St. Louis, let him hold an investigation that will be an investigation. It must not be an investigation that will ultimately result in a whitewash for those now in power. It must be an investigation that will take secret testimony of the members.

Mr. Green can, if he is sincere, approach this clean-up for the good of union labor and the public at large. If he is insincere, he can do a lot of harm by holding an investigation and appointing stooges to bear the titles while Nick continues to reign.

It will do no good for Mr. Green to appoint a committee from local unions because Nick's extensive influence is so great among the labor element that an impartial consideration would not be rendered. Nick through his various ramifications has bestowed many a plum on local union officials, and they would be adverse to any decision that would hew down their plum tree.

If Mr. Green's attitude is sincere, his only course is to select a committee of honorable, outside, unprejudiced, impartial leaders to conduct this inquiry. Any other procedure will be indefensible and a smearing of justice. There must be a thorough cleaning, not just a change of clothing for the wolf and his pack.

THE SAME LOCAL 143 MEMBERS WHO WROTE MR. GREEN.

Putty-Nose, Jelly Roll, etc.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A REPUBLICAN wants to comment: Note the chairmen selected for the important legislative committees at Jefferson City which will control the destinies of the many proposed reform measures.

From St. Louis—Putty-Nose Brady, Jelly Roll Hogan, Maurice Schechter. Among those out-State—Lauf of Jefferson City, one of the big boys in the insurance fee grab; Edgar Keating of Kansas City, lawyer for Nellie Muench, and so on.

And the State Senate ruled by Casey, Kinney and Brogan!

And shall we call the roll in St. Louis—Finnegan, Hannegan, Padberg, Joynt—Liberals all, Democrats all. "Friends of the Peepul!" "Humanitarian policies and social progress!" "The more abundant life!" "Forward with Roosevelt—no retreat!" Fooey!! IMA TORY.

A "Scurrilous" Editorial.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE always regarded the St. Louis Post-Dispatch as a very excellent newspaper. It is impossible, however, to reconcile the spirit of fair play which the Post-Dispatch always advocates with the scurrilous editorial of Jan. 12, attacking the ruling of Judge Aronson in the Dunlavy case.

No fair-minded individual will deny that a free press should have the right to criticise judicial rulings. But no fair-minded individual will say that a free press should have the right to impute dishonesty to a Judge whose ruling does not please the editors of the paper.

In the first place, the statement in your editorial that Judge Aronson is a former partner of Robert Hannegan is entirely inaccurate. Judge Aronson merely rented office space in the same suite of offices. In the second place, the many people who know Judge Aronson personally have the highest regard for his integrity and his legal ability. The clear implication that the demurrer in the Dunlavy case was sustained because Judge Aronson was a "former law partner" of Robert Hannegan is entirely unwarranted, inaccurate and misleading.

The Post-Dispatch could serve the community much better by adhering to its usual policy of constructive criticism rather than resorting to occasional destructive mud-slinging.

EARL M. FISHGALL,
Attorney-at-Law.

It's a Mystery.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT'S a deep, dark mystery to me how our editor or anyone else can object to Izzy and his pin stripes as long as we the people spend and spend, tax and tax to elect and elect Jelly Roll Hogan and Putty-Nose Brady to our Missouri Legislature. MARY J. MANNING.

Red Cross and the Sharecroppers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I CANNOT help much, but I have always managed to give to charitable organizations. But I shall give no more to the Red Cross, since I read in the papers that it was not in that field where it was needed most—the relief of those poor sharecroppers herded along highways, hungry, cold and without shelter.

Why does the Red Cross say that isn't in its field? The Red Cross sends aid and money to Spain and China to help victims of war. But here at home, where people are starving, its poor, lifeless excuse is that those people are "not in our field" of charity. It would take only a few dollars to take milk and food to those helpless people.

MRS. JOHNSTONE.

QUESTIONS FOR THE PRESIDENT.

Few of Mr. Roosevelt's presidential utterances have stimulated more thoughtful discussion than his statement of America's attitude toward foreign affairs, in his message to Congress. In that statement, he said that storms from abroad directly challenge three institutions indispensable to Americans—religion, democracy and international good faith.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke of religion as the source of democracy and of good faith among nations, because "religion, by teaching man his relationship to God, gives the individual a sense of his own dignity and teaches him to respect himself by respecting his neighbors." The utterance is heavy with meaning.

In the totalitarian countries of Europe, the individual has forfeited his dignity to the state, and with it all the liberties that men cherish. It follows naturally that, because religion can never surrender the fundamental principle of human dignity, it becomes the subject of attack by the dictators.

What Lenin and his successors did to religion in Russia is a matter of common knowledge, and now Germany offers a perfect laboratory to show the incompatibility of religion and totalitarianism. We have witnessed Herr Hitler's attempt to invent a religion based upon Germanic mythology, in which the principles of Christianity are replaced by worship of race and of brutal force. We have witnessed the attacks on Cardinal Faulhauber in Munich and on Cardinal Innitzer in Vienna, and it is not too much to say that the world has wept at the fate of the gallant Pastor Niemoeller.

In the light of these and other happenings, this statement of the President assumes deep significance:

> There comes a time in the affairs of men when they must prepare to defend not their homes alone but the tenets of faith and humanity on which their churches, their governments and their very civilization are founded. The defense of religion, of democracy and of good faith among nations is all the same fight. To save one we must now make up our minds to save all.

Mr. Roosevelt could not have spoken with such solemnity unless he, as director of the country's foreign relations and as the possessor of superior information concerning them, were convinced that the democracies of the world, including the United States, must now resist the threat of totalitarianism.

This, however, raises the question as to how he proposes to do so. The question is partly answered by this statement: "There are many methods short of war, but stronger and more effective than mere words, of bringing home to aggressor governments the aggregate sentiments of our own people." It is further answered in part by a passage in the President's defense message in which, after calling attention to our unpreparedness in the last war, he says he does not "remotely intimate that the Congress or the President have any thought of taking part in another war on European soil."

What are the methods short of war? Is the President referring to the recent loan to China and of possible future loans to other nations threatened by the dictators? Is he referring to the proposal to lift the Spanish embargo, by which the loyalist Government would be permitted to buy munitions in the United States on a cash-and-carry basis? Is he thinking of possible economic blockades? Is he referring to plans for the stimulation of trade and friendly relationships with Latin America to offset German and Italian penetration?

We believe the country is behind the President in his declaration that religion, democracy and international good faith must be protected from the "storms from abroad," but the country would like to know what implications are involved and how we can go about it. If the President has such a program, is it not time for him to reveal it so that the people may ponder its wisdom?

THE LATINS HAD A WORD FOR IT.

The Latins had a word for it—this slip of the tongue by which a North Carolina prosecutor demanded a verdict of not guilty for two defendants for whom he really meant to ask conviction. It happened at Wilmington. The prosecutor, until lately, had been a general practitioner of the law, most often representing the defense in criminal cases. So, forgetting himself, he asked acquittal in this case, and the jury obliged him.

It brings to mind an incident that happened at a Roosevelt victory dinner in the South two years ago. The toastmaster, veteran of many a political campaign, arose and turned loose a flood of that flowery oratory which, next to fair women and fast horses, is Dixie's most prideful product.

After a few grandiloquent flourishes, the toastmaster came to the climax: "And so, fellow-Democrats, I give you that most vibrant leader of the people, that most gallant champion of democracy that this or any other age has known—I give you . . . Woodrow Wilson!" When the laughter had died down, there was nothing the orator could do but blush.

The Latin phrase was lapsus linguae (slip of the tongue) or lapsus memoriae (slip of memory). In any language, it is an embarrassing experience, but there's always the consoling thought that it happens sooner or later to everybody.

MORE HAIRSPLITTING ON THE WAY?

In 1932 the people of Missouri adopted an amendment to their State Constitution in the belief that they were providing the means for requiring a decennial revision of Missouri laws. The 1929 session, which was a session so charged under the Constitution, had done little more than go through the motions. To prevent such flouting of the Constitution in the future, a statewide organization was formed to work for the adoption of an amendment which would force revision. Such an amendment was drafted, submitted to the voters as the protection they needed and in due time took its place in the basic law of the State.

The present session is the first decennial revision session to be held since the adoption of the amendment. This is the first test of the new constitutional guarantee. How is it going to work out? Will the legislators revise State statutes as experience requires and the State Constitution orders? Or will some means be found to evade the plain intent of the people in adopting the amendment?

The first indication of an answer comes in the word that legal minds in the Legislature are studying the amendment and coming to the conclusion that nearly every bill in the session will be a revision bill and that virtually all legislation will be on the same footing. If this interpretation is accepted, the amendment will be killed dead as a doornail, for it was designed, or so the voters thought, to give real revision bills special attention after the run of legislative matters had been attended to.

As there are no court rulings on this amendment, an interpretation therefore is obviously necessary. Why not interpret it in accordance with the plain intent of the voters who adopted it? Why not take the side of the people for a change? Has it become an inviolate rule in Missouri that interpretations of laws must be legalistic hairsplittings?

ORPHANS OF THE A A A.

The encampment of evicted sharecroppers along the highways of Southeastern Missouri has been ended by the State Highway Patrol, but not before this remarkable demonstration had a chance to impress itself upon the conscience of the people of this section, and, to a lesser degree, of the whole country.

Some of the campers are going back to their cabins—not to resume their old status of sharecroppers, under which they could demand a part of the Government farm subsidies, but as day laborers, with the prospect of perhaps 100 days' work a year at 75 cents a day. Others are being moved into vacant buildings in the nearby towns.

Something like this was clearly implicit in the crop control program from the very beginning. On a typical cotton plantation in Mississippi County, the acreage devoted to cotton has been cut exactly in half. Each tenant family has slightly less than eight acres to cultivate, although the typical family could easily care for twice that large a crop. The planter we have in mind is keeping all his tenants, but it would be naive to expect a similar sense of obligation to prevail among planters as a whole, whose income will be something less than munificent when they have taken every possible step to gather it all to themselves.

How does Secretary Wallace explain his failure to provide safeguards against just such a situation as this, when he must have seen it coming? Is it not embarrassing when he has to say, as he did the other day, that there is nothing in the law to prevent the landowner from changing the status of his sharecroppers to that of day laborers for the single reason of being able then to keep the Government "benefit" payments to himself?

The deep-lying moral of all this is that crop control does not, as we have said repeatedly before, offer any long-range solution to our agricultural problem. Long continued, it can only intensify our difficulties.

Meanwhile, what do the WPA and the relief authorities propose to do about the sharecroppers who have not returned to the farms even as day laborers?

Having been orphaned, economically speaking, by the AAA, their right to be adopted by the Federal relief agencies is incontestable.

HITLER CURBS MUSSOLINI.

Mussolini isn't kicking up a tantrum over his colonial demands on France, and there's a reason: Hitler has advised him to try peaceful methods for a year before getting tough about it.

The Fuehrer, as proved last fall, gets his best results by yelling loudly, calling out all reserves and threatening to march unless his demands are met by 2 p. m. next day. For Mussolini, who is a pretty good screamer and saber-rattler himself, sitting around at conference tables for 12 dreary months will be a terrific strain.

It just goes to show, too, what a one-sided partnership the Rome-Berlin axis has become. One partner gets vast increases in territory and power by registering frenzy, while the other partner is compelled to act the perfect gentleman and wait for nature to take its course. Mussolini's compliance will be the test of a beautiful friendship.

THE PADBERGS: JOB-HOLDING CHAMPIONS.

A definite mark of distinction is conferred upon a family when one member gets on the public payroll. A family with two such fortunates is not only rare but distinguished. But when a family contrives to land seven of its members at the public trough, it takes on all the glamour of royalty.

St. Louis has such a family, the Padbergs. It isn't news any more when another Padberg gets on a payroll financed by the taxpayers, but it is a distinctly rare occurrence when one voluntarily severs himself therefrom. This unusual circumstance has just occurred, with the resignation of Louis R. Padberg, nephew of the Circuit Judge, as chief radio operator of the Police Department, at $235 a month.

That still leaves plenty of Padbergs, however, and their net take is something more than $19,280 a year. The family now answers to roll call as follows:

Padberg, Eugene L., Circuit Judge — —	$ 8,000
Padberg, Louis R., brother, Coroner — —	4,000
Padberg, Walter F., nephew, field manager, property management dept., HOLC	2,000

THE CRACKING LARYNX.

A Philadelphia doctor found himself in Chicago the other day, and, with nothing much to talk about, squared away at the larynx. What he said was startling. The American larynx is, he said, cracking under the strain of incessant talk. At this minute, laryngitis has the nation in its hoarse, almost voiceless grip. There is nothing sectional about the affliction. Brattleboro, Vt., has as much laryngitis, on the basis of population, as Muncie, Ind., or Ponca City, Ok.

A phase of the plague which the Philadelphia physician evaded, though it might well have been tendered a remark or two, is the fact, if fact it is, that, where one woman is suffering from laryngitis today, 10 men are sitting in the specialist's waiting room. The inescapable conclusion seemingly is that men are the chatterboxes, that woman, contrary to the derisive supposition that has tumbled jocularly down the ages, is comparatively the silent partner. Another inference is possible, of course: the lady larynx may be of sterner stuff, better able to withstand the wordy gales.

As we have said, the learned Philadelphia doctor did his popping-off in Chicago. Everyone knows that Chicago is the home of the Chicago Tribune, whose friends and admirers must be anxiously wondering how much longer that journal's editorial larynx can survive the Roosevelt administration.

Among the Evicted Sharecroppers

By Josephine Johnson, Author of "Now In November," Pulitzer Prize Novel.

This sketch, Miss Johnson explains, "is a first-hand account of some conversation I listened to down near Hayti, Mo., a few days ago. It isn't exaggerated or changed in the least."

"I LOVE you folks just like you were my own children," the Planter said. "And if I had jobs, I'd take every one of you down on my own little farm! But this is all a big mistake," he said. "You folks ought to go right back to work and get off this highway!"

The ragged, silent crowd of sharecroppers moved and murmured. "Ain't no place to go!"

The Planter stood above them on the edge of the ditch and looked down at their faces. "Now what worries me," he said, "is, some of you folks get sick and die out here in the cold. Why, suppose you all got sick—then what're we gonna do in cotton plantin' time when we need you again? You got no right to do this!"

"Ain't no place to go. Can't go back."

"Well, I guess no planter'd want some of you on his place! I bet I couldn't pick out 10 men here lived longer than four months any place! Shiftless—moving out just to get a nickel more somewhere else!"

"I live four years . . ."

"I live three years . . ."

"I live 10 years . . ."

"Well then, why'nt you go get you a job some place?" the Planter said.

"Ain't no jobs . . . ain't no work . . ."

"Lissen!" the Planter said. "You folks didn't need to do this, and you know it. You could've stayed right on an'——"

"I ask my boss, and he said, 'I can't use you no mo,' he said——"

"Lissen, nigger," the Planter said, "this is a white man talkin'. And don't you forget it."

"Yes suh."

"Now, the trouble with you people is every time you get a little money, 'stead of savin' it, you go right out and spend it! Isn't that so?" He turned around and looked at the Northerners—the Outsiders, come down from 200 miles away. "You folks don't understand us down here. If you want to know what it's like, you ought to buy you a farm and live down here a couple of years. You don't know what we got to contend with.

"Why—" and he turned and pointed at the dark, quiet faces, "these people are ignorant. They can't even write. They're just like little children. You don't want your Government run by this kind of people!"

"They don't want to run the Government," the Foreigner from up North said. "They want something to eat and a place to stay—"

"That's right," came back the chorus. "That's right—that's what we want."

"Well," said the Planter, "you ain't going to get it by stayin' out here—and you know it."

"Might as well starve out here as starve where nobody can see us. . . . Rain might as well come out of the sky as come through the roof! . . ."

"Now," said the Planter in an aside to the Foreigner, "you see what we got to contend with? You ain't never been really hungry, I bet. You don't know what it feels like to be starvin'! Why, these niggers'll do anything! You folks don't understand what we got to look out for down here!"

He turned around to the crowd again. It was getting colder and clouds were coming together. A feeling of snow in the air. "You folks can't stay out here," he said. "Why, you'll all get sick and die out here!"

"Ain't no place to go. No place to go. . . . My wife got sick and my boss said he couldn't keep us no more because she was sick and couldn't work no more. . . . My boss said he didn't have no more work for me. He said I'd have to get off because he didn't have work. I ask him for a dollah for flour and he said he didn't have no dollah."

"Now look," the Planter said. "I know you all. I know you real well, and as soon as a nigger gets a nickel, he goes out and spends it on whisky. Now isn't that so? Now mind you, I ain't grudging you a little fun, but don't complain when you ain't got anything left!"

"Ain't got nothin TO spend." . . . "I put up 10 bale of cotton; Boss said he don't owe me nothin'. I owe him. . . ." "My boss say he's gonna lay by my land this year. . . ." "My boss tearin' down his shacks." . . . "Mine fillin' his with corn . . ." "My boss bringin' in another family . . ." "My boss just say, 'Git out!' . . ."

The Planter turned and talked confidentially with the Outsiders. "These people," he murmured, "they didn't have to do this! They could've stayed on. There's more ways than one to skin a cat," he said, "more ways than drownin' 'm in cream. And we don't have to turn niggers off the land to get that check!"

Then he turned and talked out loud to the crowd again, thumping his fist in his palm and smiling. "What I was afraid of," he said, "was you all been listenin' to some radical preacher and thinking about a union. Unions won't do you no good. Unions just stir up trouble."

He started to move away and then turned back and looked at the ragged croppers, the fences hung with old quilts, the cold ditch full of brown water and the children huddled around the stove. He turned to the outsiders, the people who didn't seem quite to be getting his point of view, and waved his hand toward the Negroes and whites standing together in the ditch.

"Publicity is all those people want," he said. "Just a lot of publicity! Now when you folks really want the facts, you come to me!"

Then he drove away.

A CURB ON ALIEN PROPAGANDISTS.

From the Dallas Morning News.

THE State Department's publication of a list of paid foreign agents in the United States, incomplete as it was, has had a salutary effect in exposing propaganda from overseas. These foreign agents, some of whom are American citizens, may still speak and write, but their assertions will be discounted as propaganda rather than being received as expressions of unbiased opinion.

In New Jersey, for instance, a luncheon club canceled a scheduled address by a pastor after disclosure that he was in the pay of the Japanese Government. A former missionary to Japan, he had been giving lectures at $25 each on the Sino-Japanese war. His exposure as a propagandist probably will end his usefulness to Japan.

There should be no objection here to any country's sending lecturers here to court American good will for its policies. But such propagandists should be labeled as to their true colors and should not be camouflaged in any kind of sheep's clothing. When Americans attend a lecture on some foreign country, they have a right to know whether the speaker is voicing his own opinions or is expressing views that some foreign Power is paying him to promote.

Depression Diagnosis

Books in the News

WHEN an economist prefaces his book with the statement that, "in terms of centuries, capitalism has not been with us very long, and the mere probabilities would indicate that it will not be with us much longer," the reader is likely to suspect a radical bias. But in the case of "Capitalism in Crisis," by James Harvey Rogers (Yale University Press, New Haven, Conn.), the surmise would be wrong. The author's theories are those of the Middle Road.

Mr. Rogers, Sterling professor of political economy at Yale, and at one time an informal monetary adviser to President Roosevelt, values democracy and realizes that it is incompatible with "state capitalism" of either the Moscow or Rome-Berlin brand. Accordingly, he analyzes the causes which have brought capitalistic democracy to its present state and makes suggestions as to how the crisis may be averted.

Our troubles, in his opinion, spring from five main causes. First, there are rigid prices, caused partly by monopolistic business policies and partly by rigid labor costs. So, when demand drops and requires the stimulus of lower prices, this requisite factor for recovery is not forthcoming. For a remedy, he suggests a combination of education, persuasion and legal compulsion.

A second and somewhat related reason for depressions is the hoarding of savings, sometimes incorrectly referred to as the "strike of capital." The author would make the rewards for investment and private enterprise more attractive, at the same time pursuing fiscal and taxation policies designed to bring idle capital back into the investment market. He is somewhat critical of the way the administration has handled the securities and Stock Exchange situation.

Another ingredient of the depression is the condition of the national budget. In the main, the writer adheres to J. M. Keynes' theory of compensatory spending, but, to allay business apprehension, he favors the Swedish device of having both an "investment" budget and a "current" budget.

The increase in trade barriers is a fourth factor in holding business back. The Hull reciprocal trade pacts are a curative influence for this in the international field. Interstate tariffs should be rooted out by Federal legislation. A fifth cause of business and industrial apathy will be removed when business, government and labor stop their name-calling and learn that their interests are served by co-operation. There has been too much emotionalism on both sides.

Unless these conditions are corrected, "American capitalism is probably doomed." The people, searching for security, will turn to other economic and governmental forms. The book is written in informal style, in terms which should be intelligible to a reasonably bright high school sophomore. C. E.

LAST summer's flying sensation, Douglas (Wrong-Way) Corrigan, recounts his career in "That's My Story" (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York). It is a simple, unpolished narrative, in which, the publishers vow, no ghost-writer had a hand. Corrigan sticks doggedly to his yarn about following the wrong end of the compass needle, but forgets himself at one point, describing his San Antonio reception, and says: "I laughed at the people because I thought they were believing the story I had just told them." Still, his isn't the first autobiography in which fiction played a part. F. G.

Government Spending Started Too Late, but Meets Economic Need, In Opinion of Marriner Eccles

Meant Only to Stimulate Private Investing—Wealth Not Money, but Manpower, Machinery and Raw Materials.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The old maxims of thrift are under a cloud. A new view of the nation's economic system—basis of recent administration policy—has led some officials to conclude that a modern nation cannot be run solely on rules like:

"Always save something for a rainy day."

"Save the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves."

"Neither a borrower nor a lender be."

Instead, these economists contend that the sayings of Benjamin Franklin and other philosophers, however suitable for the individual, need to be qualified in guiding a democracy in the modern world. Thus:

If everybody had rainy day reserves, we'd always have rainy days.

If everybody was thrifty and saved and stayed out of debt, we'd have economic paralysis.

If it is good for people to save—that is, to practice the virtues of thrift and frugality—it must also be good that someone should borrow money and put it to productive uses.

These men are not opposed to saving, but they declare it is not an end in itself but an important part of the economic machine. The problem, they say, is to maintain a flow of savings into production of real wealth. Failure to maintain such a flow, they contend, means a loss of real wealth and a decrease in the nation's total wealth and income.

Views of Eccles.

Marriner S. Eccles, the Mormon-trained capitalist from Utah who heads the Federal Reserve Board, is one of those who believes in this analysis of the problem.

He has defended the Government's depression spending of borrowed money as a necessary means for keeping the wheels turning when private business slackens. But he declares such spending is not a substitute for private business expenditures, but at best only a supplement to stimulate private enterprise.

Other experts contend that a large national debt stagnates business, and may even be a serious threat to constitutional government.

Here, however, is the way Eccles pictures the problem:

To the nation, real wealth is not money, but man power, machines for producing goods, and raw materials. These are the only real wealth we have. As long as we have idle man power, idle machines, unused raw materials, there is waste, and an irretrievable loss to the nation's economy. The problem is to keep the man power, machines and raw stuffs working full time.

All the goods produced in the country make up the national income. This is divided up, as it comes out of the hopper, among workers, farmers, bankers, industrialists and Government.

Savings Defined.

The pay-off is made in money, collected from those who bought the goods created. And much of this money goes to buy other goods—food, clothing, homes, but some of it is saved or invested.

Savings are that part of income that is not spent for consumption by the nation.

If too much of the national income goes into savings—instead of into the purchase of goods—then the economic machine may bog down, Eccles says. Spending money puts it into circulation, and thus gives employment to others. If a man just holds the money he gets, and does not put it to work by buying goods or lending it to somebody who will spend it, then the flow of cash is stopped.

Investment is another way of keeping the economic machine rolling. But a substantial part of investment takes the form of debt. That is, if a man buys bonds or notes with his savings, the corporation he buys from owes the value of the securities. If he puts his money in a savings bank, or in insurance, it is invested for him in bonds or mortgages. By borrowing savings, corporations get money to start new enterprises which put men to work.

After the corporation once has its new plant, however, the further buying and selling of already-issued stocks and bonds adds nothing to the country's real wealth.

When Money Accumulated.

In the late 1920's, Eccles says, the nation had more savings than could be profitably invested in new productive facilities. Money accumulated in the hands of individuals and corporations. It was loaned out for stock market buying at ever-increasing prices, he says, until the stock market at the peak was absorbing more than $9,000,000,000 of such funds, but this did not primarily create new jobs or new goods. It was more like passing money from person to person without trading goods or work in the process. At the same time, he says, additional funds went into speculative real estate loans and into foreign loans, a large part of which have proved to be uncollectible.

In other words, Eccles contends, not enough of our money was going for consumption of food, clothes, houses.

Trouble came late in 1929, he says, not because people had all they needed of food, clothes and good homes, but partly because too much money of the national income was going into speculative channels and not enough into consumption.

The result, he says, was that the nation's facilities for producing goods were greater than the public's buying power for taking goods away and using them. So people with idle capital were further discouraged from investing in new enterprises, preferring to get the high rates for speculative loans on the stock market.

Keeping Economics System Moving.

Eccles says that, if the economic system is to keep moving, people generally cannot take in more than they are paying out. The result of such a situation would be deflationary unless the government paid out more than it takes in to compensate.

The individual and the corporation are actuated in spending money by the self-interest of the profit motive, he declares. If they cannot see a profit in spending or lending, they will not pay out their money to produce goods or start new enterprises.

When the flow of money stops through an unwillingness or inability of the people to spend or invest, unemployment develops. When men are not working, they cannot buy the products of factories. So the factories close, and more men are laid off.

Something else happens, Eccles says: With unemployment, production decreases, and so the national income decreases, and the government, which takes a share of national income through taxes, finds its revenues cut. So, in depression, the Federal budget may be unbalanced even when the nation is not spending on such things as public works and relief.

Spending Policy.

But the Government may stem the tide of deflation, when no one else will, Eccles says, by paying out more than it takes in. When there is no profitable outlet for a person's savings in the expansion of business, he cannot pass the money along into production by private enterprise. The individual does not put his money into bridges, schools or highways. But the Government can do that by borrowing the savings and also by creating new money by borrowing from commercial banks.

In public works projects, Eccles says, the Government is doing for social reasons what industry otherwise would do for profit. It uses manpower, money and raw materials that otherwise would not be used.

Thus, he says, Government, by borrowing private savings that can't find a place in private enterprise, can help to maintain the economic system, protect existing savings and put people to work.

Thinks U. S. Waited Too Long.

But the longer Government waits before moving, and the farther the national income falls, the greater is the Federal deficit necessary to help bring national income back to a place where most of the population will have jobs. Eccles thinks the Government waited too long before starting to spend.

He says the recovery of 1934-35-36-37, and the recovery after the collapse in the fall of 1937 (when Government spending was curtailed — and later increased) both prove the effectiveness of Government spending in reviving lagging business. When Government spending puts men to work, they have money to spend again. And this creates a new demand for the products of industry, according to Eccles.

He says that until national income is much higher than it is now, and unemployment less than it is, it cannot be said that Government spending is displacing private enterprise. Broadly speaking the Government only competes with private enterprise when Government uses manpower and resources which private enterprise would be using if the Government were not, and that will not occur until sufficient people have money to buy the products of private enterprise.

Supplement to Private Spending.

Government spending, he says, is not by any means a cure-all or a substitute for private spending, but merely a supplement to it. When too much of the national income is laid aside in idle savings, and private enterprise slows down, the Government can keep things moving—men, machines, raw materials—by building public works. And when a demand is created again for the goods of industry, the Government should step out.

To keep the national income from getting out of line again—with too much money going into unproductive savings and not enough into buying goods—he would tax savings more during the peak of prosperity.

Eccles has summed up his views this way: America cannot go back to the "let 'em alone" philosophy of Government-business relations in the twenties. The American people are unalterably opposed to the "planned economy" of dictatorship. So the best alternative, as he sees it, is for Government to provide a compensating factor to help take up the slack in private enterprise under the profit system, provided Government does all that it can at the same time, through monetary, taxing and regulatory policies, to encourage a maximum of private enterprise. This calls for careful timing and directing of public expenditures, avoiding competition with private business and avoiding, as far as possible, favoritism and the coddling of the shiftless.

Felix Frankfurter

Prof. Frankfurter's Views On Court and Its Functions

the part of individual justices for their collective verdicts.

The problem of relieving congestion in the Supreme Court's docket has been met not by increasing its membership but by decreasing its business.

The Supreme Court is today less a forum of fact and law than an arena in which the most passionately controversial issues of the day battle to the death. Divided decisions are not only inevitable, but signify that the tribunal continues to operate as a vital organism.

The system of separate and independent powers distributed among the Executive, Congress and the Supreme Court, is necessary as a bulwark against excessive centralization.

Subject only to the will of the people, as expressed, say, in a constitutional amendment, the Supreme Court is the final arbiter between the nation and the states, among the 48 states, and between the citizen and the nation and the citizen and the states.

Its function has been from the outset, and remains today, essentially political and policy-making. Its important decisions, however disguised as settlements of mere lawsuits, are in effect deeds of statecraft.

Amplifying Excerpts.

In specific support of the above epitome, the article quoted copious passages from Prof. Frankfurter's pen which appeared in such works as "The Public and Its Government," "The Business of the Supreme Court" (written in collaboration with James M. Landis); "The Commerce Clause Under Marshall, Taney and Waite" an article on the Supreme Court in the Enclycopedia of Social Sciences and Frankfurter's essay on "Mr. Justice Holmes and the Constitution." These dealt with the independence of the judiciary, the enlagement of the Supreme Coprt, its authoritative position in the American federation and its function as an organ of statecraft.

Some of the outstanding citations are presented as follows:

"The doctrine of the separation of powers . . . embodies cautions against tyranny of government through undue concentration. The environment of the Constitution, the debates at Philadelphia and in support of the adoption of the Constitution unite in proof that 'the purpose was not to avoid friction, but, by means of the inevitable friction incident to the distribution of the governmental powers among three departments, to save the people from autocracy.'" (The quotation within the quotation is from the dissent of Mr. Justice Brandeis in Meyers vs. United States).

"Life tenure for United States judges grew out of the doctrine of the separation of powers. An independent judiciary was part of the scheme of counterpoises of government."

Independence and Advice.

"The Court very early in its history refused to give merely advisory opinions. Partly this was an assertion of its independence, a refusal of the role of subordinate either to legislature or executive." (Prof. Frankfurter holds that the proper adviser of Congress on legislation is the conference of senior Federal Circuit Judges, who meet annually under the presidency of the Chief Justice of the United States).

After the Civil War "a larger membership of the court was proposed, ranging from 15 to 24, so as to permit shifts in the sittings of the court or work by standing divisions . . . either of these devices would be fatal for the special functions of the Supreme Court . . . happily, these devices never attained enactment."

"Despite the country's phenomenal increase in population and wealth and the resulting extension of government activities, the duties of the Supreme Court have been kept within limitations appropriate for nine Judges who are not supermen."

"If the Thames is 'liquid history,' then the Constitution of the United States is most significantly not a document, but a stream of history. And the Supreme Court has directed the stream."

Some Checkrein Necessary.

"Some mechanism for adjusting the conflicts between the center and the constituent units is indispensable . . . if any Federalism is to endure, it must provide some checkrein on the constituent units, and the history of the American colonies and states made it inevitable that that checkrein should be a court and not Congress."

"In a federated nation, especially one as vast in its territory and varied in its interests as ours, the authority must be lodged somewhere to make necessary accommodations between the states and the central Government. The Supreme Court is that ultimate arbiter."

"Most of the problems of modern society, whether of industry, agriculture, finance, racial interactions or the eternal conflict between liberty and authority, are sooner or later legal problems for solution by our courts and, ultimately, by the Supreme Court of the United States."

"With the great men of the Supreme Court, constitutional adjudication has always been statecraft."

"The essentially political significance of the Supreme Court's share in the operations of the Union can hardly be over-emphasized."

Judicial Statesmanship.

"Throughout its history, the Supreme Court has called for statesmanship—the gifts of mind and character fit to rule nations."

"The accents of statesmen are the recurring motif of Supreme Court opinions. From the beginning, the Court had to resolve what were essentially political issues . . . These political problems will persist as long as our federation endures . . . Now the still more subtle conflicts of economic forces also press for answers from the nine Justices in Washington. To wisdom in political adjustment, talent for industrial statesmanship must be joined."

ART MUSEUM ACTIVITIES FOR ADULTS AND CHILDREN

Lectures and Gallery Talks Include Discussion of American Art Exhibition.

Lectures and gallery talks by members of the staff at the Art Museum this week will be as follows:

Tuesday, 11 a. m., Friday, 10 a. m., and Saturday, 3:30 p. m., talk on the exhibition of paintings by American artists; Saturday, 1:30 p. m., drawing period for children; 2 p. m., museum games for children; 2:30 p. m., story hour, "A Picture of Glass," and talk for older children, "Three Architects—Richardson, Sullivan and Wright."

Vicki Baum to Speak Here Tuesday.

Vicki Baum, novelist and lecturer, will speak Tuesday and Wednesday evenings before the Washington University Association at Soldan High School. John B. Kennedy, editor, originally scheduled for those dates, will not appear because of illness.

ORGANIZATION PLANS TO ATTRACT TOURISTS

St. Louis Travel Council Would Bring Visitors to City, Advertise State.

A new organization, the St. Louis Travel Council, is being formed for the purpose of stimulating travel to the city and State. One of the council's first acts will be to submit to the Legislature a bill for a $250,000 appropriation to advertise Missouri nationally.

"For some reason," Russell F. Meyer, president of the council and secretary of Optimist International, told a reporter "notwithstanding that the State of Missouri has the Ozark regions, it is one of the 12 states of the 48 that does not spend any money to advertise or stimulate tourist interest. The State of Pensylvania appropriated $500,000 one year for that purpose and found it received back, in increased sales tax and gasoline tax, seven times that amount. There is too much of a tendency for St. Louisans to undersell their city. We want to dispel the idea that everyone in St. Louis melts in the summer and that we always have to go around with lanterns in the winter because of smoke."

One plan being considered by the council is to have a homecoming week, as is done in many smaller communities. Meyer said he believed such an event, through postcard invitations sent to former St. Louisans by relatives and friends, would attract 200,000 persons to the city.

The organization, he said, does not expect to raise any funds and will not ask for money. It will attempt instead to have money spent through other channels for advertising the city. Also, he continued, the council will support projects for beautification of the city and State to make them more attractive to visitors.

The council has a membership at present of 30 men interested in the hotel business or in transportation. Officers, in addition to Meyer, are Charles F. Hatfield, executive secretary of the St. Louis Convention, Publicity and Tourist Bureau, honorary president; Parker Woods, coal dealer and Municipal Theater publicity director, vice-president, and John M. Reinhardt, executive secretary of the Hotel Association of St. Louis, secretary-treasurer.

The executive committee consists of Carl E. Roessler, manager of the Jefferson Hotel; J. E. DeFlandre, Greyhound Bus Line regional manager; D. M. McNamara, assistant passenger agent, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad; H. Nulsen Baur, Automobile Club of Missouri; Andrew Mungenast, Streckfus Steamers sales manager, and D. D. Walker, vice-president, Chicago & Southern Airlines.

Roosevelt Debt Statement Under Analysis

responsibility for maintaining the national income at a sufficiently high level to assure full and effective utilization of our human and material resources if needless hardship and suffering are to be averted and a decent standard of life for the common man attained. The notion that public spending can be safely resorted to only as a temporary, emergency device must be abandoned. A program must be developed which recognizes the necessity of permanent public investment."

National Income Estimate.

Using the same figure for the desired national income—$80,000,000,000—that the President used in his messages to Congress, the college economists likewise predicted that present tax rates on this income level would bring in more than $8,000,000,000 annually. This desired level, they continued, would be reached gradually by a continuously growing Federal debt.

"We advocate," they concluded, "a long-run program of public investment financed through the borrowing of savings which would otherwise go to waste. This investment will increase the real wealth of the country, both directly and indirectly, by increasing the demand for the products of industry. Having a market for its products, industry will be able to introduce the improvements in technology and methods of production which are continually being discovered. The result will be a steady increase in national income accompanying the increase in the public and private debt. If the policies advocated here are steadfastly pursued, the national income can reasonably be expected to increase at a sustained rate of $4 to $5 billion a year. This increase in the national income will be accompanied by a rise in the interest charge on the public debt of at most $100 million a year."

The seven exhibited no fear of the size of the national debt or of threatened inflation.

"It is ridiculous," they asserted, "to maintain that debt in general must be repaid. The mere attempt to repay debts all around would involve a liquidation of assets which would result in complete economic paralysis."

Should investors refuse to take more Government securities, the college economists would have the Government take over the entire banking system. In this plan, the Federal Reserve banks "would provide a first line of defense."

Even the "timing" references in the President's message were foreshadowed in the "Economic Program," when the authors declared:

"The dangers of delay are strikingly brought home to us by the experience in other lands, where governments which refused to accept the responsibility for proper functioning of their economies have, in case after case, fallen victim to their own inaction, and where, in all too many instances, democracy itself has perished.

Saving Democracy.

"Here in America we can save our free democratic institutions only by using them to expand our national income. For private enterprise, left to its own devices, is no longer capable of achieving anything approaching full employment of our human and material resources."

No "big names" were signed to the "Economic Program." The authors listed were Richard V. Gilbert, George H. Hildebrand Jr., Arthur H. Stuart, Maxine Yaple Sweezy, Paul M. Sweezy, Lorie Tarshis and John D. Wilson. The preface explained that in addition several others took an active part in the preparation of the book "who, because of their present connection with various branches of government service, did not feel free to affix their signatures to recommendations on questions of policy."

Perhaps it is mere happenstance that the authors' views coincide with the present views of President Roosevelt and Chairman Eccles, but as the dust jacket advertises, their book is "breath-taking in its simplicity and freshness of approach."

Death of the Austrian Empire

tremely important to check, as quietly and speedily as possible, the obnoxious activity of our own supernationalists.

"Such are, briefly, the measures which, in my opinion, it is necessary to take immediately to save Austria from the danger which threatens its independence. I am convinced that you are in agreement with me on these points.

For the Future.

"And now, for the future: The crucial point will come on the day Germany, by threats or intimidation, will demand new concessions. I take it I am not mistaken in assuming that, like myself, you feel that Austria has reached the extreme limit of what it can possibly grant to Germany in the way of concessions. Any new step back would only mean the annihilation of Austria and of the great constructive effort accomplished with so much difficulty by Dollfuss and yourself. My father the Emperor will have died in vain, hundreds of thousands of men will have fallen in vain, all the sacrifices we made since 1933 will, too, have been made in vain. But this, we Austrians, cannot accept. Anything rather than lose our fatherland.

"I was told, dear Mr. Schuschnigg, that you admitted you could not resist any new pressure on the part of Germany, and that in case it were brought to bear, you would resign. That is why I am now appealing to you, as to a man whose loyalty to his Emperor and to his people is unshakeable, and am formulating the following demands which, I pray God, shall be granted:

"First, I ask you, as long as you remain Chancellor of Austria, not to make any further concessions to Germany or to our supernationalists.

"Secondly, if ever you should get the impression that further threats and demands from Germany are imminent, I ask you to advise me of this immediately.

"Thirdly, and unexpected as this may seem to you—although I am asking it only after having given the matter considerable thought—if ever you reach the point where you feel you can no longer resist German or supernationalist pressure, I ask you, whatever the situation, to turn over to me the functions of Chancellor. I am firmly decided to go to the limit for the protection of our people and State, and I am convinced that the people would answer my appeal.

"With due regard to the fact that the recognition by the great powers of any monarchial restoration at this time would necessarily involve long-drawn-out negotiations, I am not asking you to restore the monarchy now. I simply invite you to appoint me your successor as Chancellor of Austria so that, without modifying the Constitution or having any need for outside recognition, it shall be possible to attain the same practical advantages as those which a formal restoration would afford.

"I should like to stress once more that before God, my people and the world, I assume alone the full responsibility for this very grave decision.

"Duty at This Critical Hour."

"I feel it is my duty to write you as I do at this critical hour of our fatherland's destiny. I have thus the conviction of having accomplished, to the best of my ability, my duty as the son of the martyr-Emperor Charles, as an ardent Austrian patriot and the legitimate emperor of this country. In the name of the oath of allegiance you once took as an officer, in the name of the great services you rendered to the legitimist cause, and in the name of all your patriotic and unselfish activity, I ask you, my dear Mr. Schuschnigg, to consider favorably my demands.

"Do not think that this letter simply reflects the yearning for power on the part of an ambitious youngster. Such aspirations, even if I ever had them, recede before the terrible present situation, are silenced completely before the immense responsibility involved. If I am acting as I do, it is only because I consider that such is my duty, for whenever Austria is in danger, the heir to the Royal House of Hapsburg must stand or die with his country.

"Outside of myself, no one knows of the present letter. I did not even mention it, as I usually do, to my confidential adviser, von Wiesner. I will therefore also ask you not to speak of this letter to anyone, to reply to it as soon as possible, and to let me have your decision in the same way.

"In closing, allow me to reiterate all the confidence I have in you, as well as my resolution to help you all I can during these trying hours. May the Lord bless you and show you the right way toward the salvation of our country."

Schuschnigg's Reply.

What Chancellor Schuschniggg's reaction was on reading this letter, probably no one except himself is in a position to say. Anyway, fully two weeks later, on March 2, as the country was already beginning to feel the first oncoming symptoms of the impending upheaval, he answered as follows:

"Your Majesty:

"I acknowledge receipt of the letter which Your Majesty was good enough to send me on Feb. 17.

"The state of things appears to be as follows: The supreme duty of every responsible statesman should be to preserve his state. Anything that leads to this end is good. Anything that places the country in danger is bad and should be eliminated. There remains the general international situation to be taken into account, which varies according to circumstances. To be at the service of peace—that is the central pillar of Austrian political ideology. If, to preserve its existence, Austria had to have recourse to a world war, it would mean an admission of its failure to its duty.

"On the other hand, there would be no point in waging war unless, contrary to what was the case in 1914, there existed a fair chance of success. Finally, one may only count on foreign aid if one is certain it will be forthcoming.

"Peace With Germany."

"The geographical and political situation of our country necessarily implies peace with Germany. Besides very serious psychological factors which must be taken into account, there are also purely economic factors which tend in the same direction. These same factors have produced, especially after Feb. 12 (Footnote 3), a very definite reaction among the population, even among the ultra-conservative peasant masses, such as in Tyrol. For a country's life can only be maintained if it is assured of a certain minimum of economic possibilities.

"The real situation and the state of mind in this country, regarding which Your Majesty, in my humble opinion, has never had an accurate or at least a complete idea, obliges me to follow the course I am taking.

"Especially, all idea of dynasty would seem to me to be compromised forever if the best it could do would be to achieve a pretense at restoration, or even temporarily establish it in the full sense, but only at the cost of terrific bloodshed and foreign aid. I have the deep conviction that this would at the same time seal the fate of Austria.

"That is why, even if an historical coup should occur which God forbid—or even if Austria should finally have to cede to the violence which it resisted for so long with honor—it would still be better that this should happen, rather than that the dynasty should become involved. For even so the hour of liberation would strike one day with a complete reshuffling of all Europe, and the fact that this can only be expected as a result of another war, tragic as it may be, is, alas, only too likely.

Doomed to Defeat in War.

"But to lead the country into a war doomed to certain failure is, in my opinion, a responsibility which cannot be assumed in any case. I know what war means, and I have also lived through several civil wars besides. I therefore know my duty, which is to do everything humanly possible to preserve our country from such an eventuality. Whoever has the future of Austria at heart, cannot and must not think in terms of dying with honor on the field of battle, but must, on the contrary, concentrate on the problem of living with honor, in order to be ready for the better days that are sure to come.

"I am not a pessimist by any means, but I am not losing sight of all the gravity of the present situation. And I have no right not to mention here the fact that legitimist agitation to which I have often and, unfortunately, vainly, called attention, has helped considerably to poison the international atmosphere without contributing any to the cause of Austrian freedom. Our policy today is determined by the necessities of the moment. The idea of Austria accepting a Hapsburg restoration is, in my opinion, one that cannot be entertained during the present generation. Yet Austria and its Royal House must survive, even though we, as individuals, may be meanwhile headed for disaster.

"Infinitely Sorry," But No.

"Such is my opinion, Your Majesty. I am infinitely sorry to have been unable to convey you my viewpoint and convictions in a manner that would make you admit the correctness of my reasoning, which is based on an exact knowledge of the situation, both internal and international. I can only ask Your Majesty to believe me that the issue at stake is enormous; so great, in fact, that everything is possibly in balance, and that any attempt at restoration, whether in the years to come or in the near future, would be absolutely certain to lead to the utter ruin of Austria.

"I do not have to add that I would have been only too happy to see things different, but I can only ask Your Majesty to believe me. The situation is like this.

"Naturally, I shall be very glad to inform you, to the extent of the means at my disposal, of any changes that might occur. For the moment, I can only say that what happened simply had to happen, and it is probably just as well that it did. And if it did not, let me say that there would not have been any Austrian statesman left in a position to make a report on the subject to Your Majesty. And this is particularly true of July 11, 1936.

"I urge Your Majesty to realize that the advisability or otherwise of decisions as essential as these can only best be determined on the spot, and that judgment is extremely difficult from a distance. None of us would be justified in claiming that in these troublous and difficult times he is certain of reaching the goal. But, on the other hand, it remains a fact that there is no other road left for us to follow if we are to pursue a realistic policy.

Must Leave Door Open.

"Our mission cannot possibly consist of anything but leaving the door open to future developments of the situation. If we should fail now, our projects could not again be taken up for a very long time to come.

"Finally, I should like respectfully to point out to Your Majesty that for all of us the only proper methods to use are those legally provided for by the Constitution. And according to the latter, it is up to the President of the Republic to dismiss a chancellor and name his successor.

"In wishing with my whole heart that God may protect Your Majesty and the House of Austria, I remain convinced that with or without early setbacks, Austria will soon assume a new importance in history.

"The struggle for the fatherland, which I am carrying on according to my duty and to my sense of responsibility reflects, I am sure, the feelings of every Austrian, and it is with this conviction that I sign, Your Majesty's very respectful servant.

K. VON SCHUSCHNIGG.

Exactly 10 days later, the first motorized units of the German Reichswehr entered the Austrian capital. The grave setbacks, of which Schuschnigg spoke with foreboding, had begun.

Following are the footnotes indicated in the text:

Footnote 1—The Austro-German pact negotiated by Von Papen which admitted Nazis for the first time into the Austrian cabinet and proclaimed Austria a "German State."

Footnote 2—Gen. Wilhelm Zehner, Austrian Minister of War. After Germany had taken over Austria, Nazi police reported that he had committed suicide at his home in Vienna.

Footnote 3—On Feb. 12, 1938, Schuschnigg met Hitler in a secret conference at Hitler's Berchtesgaden chalet. Later it was announced that Hitler had agreed to respect Austria's independence and in turn Schuschnigg consented to allow Austrian Nazis to enter the Fatherland Front Party and government. Details of the conversations, however, were never fully revealed. When on March 9, 1938, Schuschnigg announced he would call a national plebiscite to indorse Austrian independence Nazis in Vienna and elsewhere immediately arose in anger and street fighting broke out. Hitler announced that Schuschnigg had broken faith and the events leading up to the German march into Austria and annexation followed.

FLOWER AND GARDEN SHOW ENTRIES ALREADY RECEIVED

Mexico, England and Central America to Be Represented at Display March 18 to 26.

Early entries for the Greater St. Louis Flower and Garden Show, to be held at the Arena from March 18 to 26, inclusive, have been received from many sections of this country and from Mexico, England, Hawaii and Central America.

Exhibits will include spring-flowering shrubs, wild flowers, cut flowers, rock gardens and formal and informal gardens. Prizes totaling $25,000 will be awarded. The official poster, as in preceding years, will be selected through a competition open to persons between the ages of 14 and 25, living within 150 miles of St. Louis. Rules may be obtained at the show's headquarters, 807 Pine street.

Junior Musicians' Guild.

Mary Leahy and Minnie Semsrott, pianists, and Dorothy Miller, soprano, will be guest musicians at a meeting of the Junior Musicians' Guild in the Musical Arts building tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Stock Market Down During Week On a Low Volume; Range Is Widest Recorded Since Early December

Final Session Rally, However, Lifts Some Leaders in Several Groups—Average Off 1.07 Points for Period.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Stock market prices bumped lower this week in the widest decline since the week ended Dec. 10, but the retreat was accomplished on low volume.

That turnover was about the smallest since the middle of last month indicated, brokers said, there was no great urge to sell and that traders were really awaiting some definite trend in events befor taking positions.

The widest break of the period followed publication of President Roosevelt's special defense message with its request for $552,000,000 about 60 per cent of which would be for aircraft. This sum was less than Wall Street generally had anticipated, as many analysis had predicted a demand for $1,000,000,000 at least.

Aircraft shares led the decline, but picked up toward the close and with the rails provided the most resistant performance to the downward trend for the week as a whole.

The market finished the week with a rallying swing today that lifted leaders fractions to around 2 points and a few several notches more.

Virtually all departments participated in the come-back, but it was relatively quiet.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks had its best day since Dec. 29, pushing up .9 of a point to 51.3. On the week, though, the composite suffered a net set-back of 1.1 points, the largest weekly recession since mid-November. The Dow-Jones average of 65 stocks at 49.69 was .94 of a point higher for the day, but 1.07 lower for the week. Sales Saturday totaled 469,630 shares against 632,910 the preceding Saturday. The week's volume amounted to 5,404,710, compared with 6,808,130 the previous period.

The ticker tape moved at a slow jog during the greater part of the brief proceedings, but picked up a little momentum near the close.

Brokers attributed the reversal in direction partly to technical factors connected with the lengthy retreat and the belief of some speculative forces that the market had been "oversold."

Foreign Situation.

Wall street spirits, in addition, seemed to have revived with the successful opposition in the House of Representatives to the President's WPA spending program. On top of this, lessening of war talk following the Anglo-Italian conference brought in some buyers who had feared Europe was on the brink of another explosion.

American Telephone was idle until the concluding few minutes when it ran up 3 points to 153, a new 1938-39 peak. The company's preliminary earnings for last year indicated $8.14 a share compared with $9.62 in 1937.

Others conspicuous on the forward tilt were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Consolidated Edison, North American, Anaconda, Kennecott, Westinghouse, du Pont, Philip Morris and Cluett Peabody.

Steels paid scant attention to forecasts of a small drop in next week's mill operations. The outlook for this industry was thought to be favorable after January. Motors made a tardy response to an increase in this week's automobile output. Aviations again were taken in hand as armament profits prospects brightened. Expectations Congress would pass relief legislation for the railroads in the near future propped carrier shares.

Bond Trade Light.

High grade issues continued to dominate the bond market, where trading was light, and many of them again reached new 1938-39 highs. Among the domestic corporates the rails fell away a little, utilities did a bit better and the remainder of the list was narrow. Intermediate term U. S. Government loans climbed higher, but the longer-term bonds finished about where they began. Trading was quiet and generally narrow in the foreign group. New financing was at a minimum.

Spot commodities drifted lower. Down a bit were hides, rubber, eggs, lamb, wheat, rye, cotton, wool and tin. On the other hand steel scrap, oats and silk recorded advances. Weakness in the export copper market and unfavorable December statistics showing an accumulation of stocks of the metal led to fears in some circles the domestic price might be forced a little lower. Despite this, copper shares did fairly well in the stock market.

Basis of Caution.

Stock market traders found reason for caution in a tapering off in industry's pace. The Associated Press index of industrial activity was at 92.0 of the 1929-30 average, compared with 92.5 per cent the preceding week and 74.4 per cent a year ago. The drop was due largely to the fact that increases in the steel mill operating rate and in railroad freight carloadings were less than seasonal.

On the other hand automobile production was about what had been forecast, with an increase of about 10,000 units, and cotton textile mills quickened their activity. Residential building touched a new high since 1930 and engineering contruction awards were reported at 180 per cent better than for the corresponding week of 1938. Electric power output advanced more than usual for this time of the year.

A wave of springlike weather that swept most of the country caused a faltering in retail trade, but wholesale marts were better, reflecting the current state of inventories.

The Rome Conference.

Summing up the stock market, brokers found it a "trading" rather than an investment market, reported painting of a gloomy European picture by Ambassadors Kennedy and Bullitt before a congressional committee discouraged commitments. Then, when Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Mussolini failed to reach any announced conclusions in their Rome talks marketeers felt caution was the watchword.

Performance of the copper shares was accounted for by some on the basis that speculators bought into the group on the bad news when statistics were published. The fact that the President sent no special message on rail remedial legislation led to some selling, but bargain hunters bought on the dip.

INDUSTRIAL INDEX IS LITTLE CHANGED

Stands at 92.0 Per Cent as Compared With Peak of 94.0 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Industrial activity continued to hold close to its recovery high of early December this week, although major industries reported diverse trends.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index stood at 92.0 per cent of the 1929-30 average, compared with 92.5 the week before and 74.4 last year.

The recovery peak—94.0—was established six weeks ago.

This week's setback stemmed largely from declines in steel mill operations and railroad carloadings. Demand for steel shapes, trade analysts said, reflected a waiting tendency among leading buyers, especially in the miscellaneous field.

The slump in freight loadings was the result almost entirely of a drop in coal movement. The major industrial classification—miscellaneous freight—did considerably better than sesonally expected.

Residential construction resumed the rising trend of recent months, moving up to a new nine-year peak,

Principal consumer lines, cotton manufacturing and electric power output, pushed ahead as demand perked up.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on latest available data and with 1929-30 as 100, compared as follows:

THE WEEK ON NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

FOOD PRICES SLIP TO FOUR-YEAR LOW LEVEL

Industrial Raw Materials Hold Near Best Basis of 1938 Rally.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Commodity prices continued to give ground this week and while weakness was noted in every group, declines were moderate.

Foods slipped to new low levels for the past four years as supplies in all major centers climbed. Industrial raw materials, on the other hand, remained not far below the best prices reached during the rally last summer.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 important wholesale spot commodities declined to 66.49 per cent of 1926 average from 66.90 last week and compared with 74.05 a year ago.

Index in Narrow Area.

The index has hovered in an area bounded by 66-67 for six months, one of the longest periods of stability on record. The modest improvement noted in industrial items during this time was offset by lower agricultural quotations.

Grains were lower for the most part this week, led by wheat, corn and rye. Only oats escaped ending behind a minus sign. Record-breaking stocks on hand the world over remained the dominating influence on values.

Livestock quotations broke as a rising tide of animals moved into the large market centers. Both hogs and lambs were down.

Eggs, cocoa, flour and lard slumped, carrying the food index to a new low. Here too, the pressure of incoming supplies set the pace.

Cotton was off slightly, although the trade saw few signs of any change in the supply-demand situation during the last seven days.

Some raw materials of industry were lower. Steel scrap, bituminous coal and silk, however, breasted the receding tide. The jump in steel scrap came in Chicago and was reported to have resulted from increasing steel takings by the automobile industry.

On the other hand, hides, rubber, turpentine and tin tumbled. The moderately declining trend of industrial operations noted in recent weeks, analysts say, has tended to dry up demand pending some clarification of the outlook.

Among the staples making up the index, there were 14 declines against only four advances.

EUROPEAN CURRENCIES MOSTLY OFF FOR WEEK

Setback to Guilder Is Feature of Market in Latter Part of Period.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Most leading European currencies, with the exception of the Swiss franc and the belga, were lower on the week in terms of the dollar.

On the downside were the British pound sterling, the French franc and the Netherlands guilder, all easing as the political outlook abroad continued uncertain. The Swiss franc was up a shade and the belga, resisting the general downtrend, hovered close to the preceding week's closing level.

Helping keep the European currencies nervous generally were the confusing "appeasement" talks in Rome between British Prime Minister Chamberlain and Italian Premier Mussolini. Results of the talks near the end of the week still remained obscure.

Hitting the guilder during the latter part of the week were reports Germany had issued veiled threats against the traditionally respected neutrality of Holland because of alleged "gunning" of Nazi envoys' homes in Holland by unknown assailants. At times yesterday the guilder was down as much as .09 of a cent from the previous day's close.

The British pound staged a modest rally in terms of the dollar today.

Foreign exchange dealings were quiet but there was still an undercurrent of apprehension over possibility of new twists in the European political arena.

Sterling advanced ¾ cent and the French franc added .00½ cent. Unchanged were the belga and Swiss franc. The guilder, recovering from Friday's mild break, gained .01 cent.

Gold totaling $2,800,000 was engaged in England and $3,600,000 in Holland for shipment here, the Federal Reserve Bank reported.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Foreign exchange closing rates follow: Great Britain in dollars, others in cents. Great Britain, 4.67¾; 60-day bills, 4.66⅞. LONDON, Jan. 14.—The United States dollar sustained a loss of 7-16 of a cent in terms of sterling today. The unit finished 4.67 7-16 to the pound in the Foreign Exchange Market and compared with $4.67 for sterling in New York overnight.

French francs ended 177.31 to the pound, against 177.44 yesterday.

WHEAT AND CORN MARK TIME IN WEEK-END TRADE

Steadiness Rules in Wheat Throughout the Session Despite Lower Liverpool and Rain or Snow Southwest.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Wheat and corn futures did little more than mark time in today's short session. Prices were held to an extremely narrow range in quiet trading.

In the wheat market prices eased early ¼ cent, but quickly recovered and held to a ¼ cent range most of the time. At the close wheat was unchanged to ⅛ lower.

Steadiness ruled throughout the session, despite lower than due Liverpool quotations and reports of rain and snow in much of the domestic wheat belt. A rally in securities gave some support and a better feeling prevailed in most quarters regarding the European political situation.

Some traders attributed the lack of inclination to press the selling side of the market to a prevalent belief that large sales of United States wheat have been effected recently through the Federal Surplus Commodity Corporation, possibly to China. No important export business was confirmed today either in United States or Canadian grain.

Chicago wheat closed unchanged to ⅛ lower, May 68½@⅝, July 68⅝@¾; corn ⅛@⅜ off, May 52¼@⅛, July 53⅛; oats ¼@⅜ off, May 29; soybeans ¾@1 cent off, May 83½; rye ½@¾ off, May 46¼@⅜; lard unchanged to 5 cents up.

Liverpool wheat quotations, due ⅛@¼ lower, closed ⅜@⅝ off. Selling at Liverpool was largely attributed to cheaper offerings and absence of demand for actual wheat. Rotterdam closed ⅛@¼ off, Buenos Aires unchanged to ⅛ off and Winnipeg ¼@⅜ off.

The corn market here paralleled wheat. Selling was of small volume and scattered. Receipts were estimated at 112 cars, largest for any day this week, but country offerings were extremely small. A bearish influence on the market were lower prices at Buenos Aires, where corn closed ⅜@⅛c off. Cables said there were steady shippers' offers of corn in the United Kingdom, but that demand had not improved.

Other grains tended lower in quiet trading here. In the rye pit, losses were extended to ¾ cent.

Provisions were aided by better hog prices and held steady to a little higher.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 14.—Changes were small in wheat market today.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅜@½d lower after ⅛@¼d lower start.

Argentine wheat and corn opened unchanged. The close was net unchanged to ⅛c lower and corn ⅜@⅛c.

Winnipeg wheat started unchanged and later was net unchanged to ⅛c lower. The close was ¼c down.

Local wheat receipts, which were 39,000 bushels, compared with 49,500 a week ago and 46,500 a year ago, included 17 cars local and 9 through. Corn receipts, which were 61,500 bushels, compared with 75,000 a week ago and 64,500 a year ago, included 39 cars local and 2 through. Oats receipts, which were 24,000 bushels, compared with 14,000 a week ago and 28,000 a year ago, included 12 cars local.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was steady. The available supply was fairly large, but there was no straight grade included. Elevator and local mill buyers were quite active. Trading basis was slightly better at the close. Corn was unchanged to ½c lower. Demand was only fair and some grain was carried over. Industries were the only buyers. Premiums were unchanged to ¼c under Friday's levels, with No. 1 and No. 2 yellow selling ½c over the May delivery and No. 2 mixed at the May figure. Oats were unchanged to ½c lower. Late in the session the demand developed and a fair clearance was affected. Mills and elevators were the chief purchasers. A car of heavy oats went to an outside order buyer.

Sales of cash grain made on the floor of the exchange Saturday, all being track sales local weights unless otherwise described are recorded below:

Linseed oil in one to four barrel lots was quoted at 9.9c per pound for raw and 9.3c for boiled; half drums 6c more.

DULUTH, Jan. 14.—Flaxseed closed unchanged; May $1.88n, cash $1.90@1.96. Northwestern at Chicago unchanged at $1.97@2.05.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Sugar was quiet in both raw and futures markets today. Interest was restricted by uncertainty regarding Washington quota policy and possibility of Cuban tariff changes.

In the No. 3 contracts Cuban offerings offset trade covering. The world contract was completely neglected as traders awaited word of the London Sugar Council's position concerning new world quotas. Closing bids were off ½ point.

Raws were unchanged with Cubas available a point or so below a nominal quotation of 2.85 cents for duty paid. Refined remained at 4.25 cents to 4.30 cents.

Sugar futures No. 3 closed unchanged to 2 lower. Sales, 450 tons.

MORE ACTIVE LOCAL STOCKS OFF IN WEEK

Some Good Gains Recorded by Group That Did Not Sell Largely.

Prices were mixed as a result of the week's trading on the St. Louis Stock Exchange but the securities in which there was the larger trade were either unchanged or lower. Losses extended beyond a point.

Wagner Electric, the relatively most active stock of the week lost 1¼ points and Columbia Brew., the next most active, a fraction. Collins-Morris, and Dr. Pepper also were down. National Candy closed unchanged.

Scruggs sold higher. Coca Cola Bottling, National Oats, Brown Shoe, Laclede Steel and McQuay Norris were in a group that sold 1 to 2 points higher on limited trade.

Hussmann-Ligonier Dividend.

Hussmann-Ligonier Co. directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock, payable Feb. 1 to stockholders of record Jan. 19.

Commodity Corporation Election.

E. C. Dreyer was elected president, C. H. Williamson, vice-president and Harry F. Beckmann, secretary and treasurer of the St. Louis Commodity Corporation at the annual meeting of directors. Stockholders elected the following directors: John O. Ballard, John H. Caldwell, E. C. Dreyer, C. H. Williamson, Harry F. Beckmann.

Economist Joins Steel Staff.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The resignation of Bradford B. Smith, economist of the New York Stock Exchange, was announced today. Smith will become a special assistant to Enders M. Voorhees, chairman of the Finance Committee of United States Steel Corporation.

Loans and discounts by the association's members increased $93,000 in the week to $148,683,000. Bond and stock accounts decreased $231,000 to $285,341,000. Total resources increased $15,317,000 to $669,935,000. Total lawful reserve increased $11,232,000 to $110,316,000.

Clearings last week totaled $80,300,000, compared with $79,800,000 the preceding week (five days). Debits to individual accounts last week amounted to $122,900,000, compared with $131,000,000 the preceding week and $125,300,000 the corresponding week last year. The daily average debit to individual accounts last week was $20,482,000, compared with $26,200,000 the preceding week and $20,883,000 the same week a year ago.

Local money rates were as follows: Price commercial paper, 1@1¼ per cent; customers' loans, 1½@5 per cent; collateral loans, 2@6 per cent; loans secured by warehouse receipts, 2@5½ per cent.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 14.—Wheat futures eased fractionally in quiet trading today as shippers offered more freely. Prices were down ⅜ to ½d at the close. Cash demand was light.

In cotton futures, scattered liquidation and light hedging against foreign growths was offset by trade price fixing. A scarcity of contracts appeared at times. Final values were unchanged to 1 point lower.

London and Paris markets are closed on Saturdays.

PRICE STRUCTURE OF COPPER WOBBLES

Drop in Output Is Less Than Decline in Consumption, Figures Indicate.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The copper price structure here and abroad wobbled during the week when trade statistics covering December revealed a small drop in output was far less than the decline in consumption. At the close of the week, however, sentiment appeared a little more cheerful.

Sales abroad were made as low as 10.15 cents a pound, but the price recovered Friday at 10.22 cents. Domestic refined copper remained at 11¼c in the face of market rumors a cut was imminent due to the unfavorable statistical set-up and the lower trend abroad.

Despite the current unwillingness of local consumers to take care of more than bare routine needs, copper analysts pointed out that inventories are at scanty levels. Many felt any pickup in demand—based, they say, on optimistic forecasts of the 1939 industrial outlook—will lead to a broad buying movement of the red metal.

Lead and zinc ran into one or two buying spurts, but business on the whole was close to the previous week's volume. Lead continued at 4.85 cents a pound and zinc 4.50 cents East St. Louis.

So-called independents were credited with a one-point rise in steel operations. Tin plate operations increased to between 40 and 45 per cent of capacity. There were reports of improved demand for semi-finished steel and sheets and strip also met with better inquiry.

LOW-YIELD BONDS HOLD FIRM IN WEEK'S TRADE

Secondary Issues Drift Downward—Decline in Daily Volume of Sales.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Showing a traditional independence of speculative flurries, low-yield bonds maintained a firm front this week as secondary issues drifted downward.

The slow decline in many of the lower-priced loans was partly the result of profit selling coincident with some drying up of buying interest. That the demand was limited was indicated by a considerable fall in daily volume from the average of recent weeks.

Rail loans paced the downward run, as they had led the broad advance which started in December and played out early in the new year. Traders seemed to feel that new commitments could well await some tangible developments in connection with current Federal legislative plans for helping the carriers out of their financial difficulties.

Rails declined a point or so on average, while utility and industrials liens held about even. In one or two sessions certain power company issues moved ahead on buying attributed to the favorable showing of electric power production in the last few months.

The potentially strong support for low-yield bonds was emphasized anew by a further rise in excess reserves and a continued small output of new securities attractive to institutional investors.

The week's business in new financing was largely confined to municipal issues, but investment circles were hopeful of some pickup in corporate borrowing over the next few weeks. Helping to bolster this belief was the concededly favorable promise for additional industrial recovery this year.

U. S. Governments were traded but lightly during the week and price changes were unimportant in most Treasury issues.

Secondary and defaulted railroad loans led the bond market to higher levels today with some of the carrier issues marked up a point or more.

Introduction of the Lea bill in Congress, providing a wide plan for rehabilitation of the lines' finances, encouraged purchasing, although trading was at the slowest pace since Nov. 26.

Gains of fractions were recorded for high grade industrial corporates and United States Treasury issues tended to advance slightly. The foreign list was narrow and mixed. New York City traction issues improved by wide fractions.

Transactions totaled $3,554,175 face value compared with $4,365,000 last Saturday. The Associated Press average of 20 representative rails advanced .4 of a point at 60.2, 10 utilities were up .2 at 93.1, while 10 industrials and 10 foreign loans were unchanged from yesterday's closing.

Best among the rails were Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s, at 61¼. Illinois Central 4¾s at 50¾ and Nickel Plate 4½s at 54.

Gainers among industrials were Bethlehem Steel 3¾s at 102¼; International Telephone 5s at 66½, Loew's 3½s at 100¼, Remington Rand 4¼s at 103 and Utilities Power & Light 5s at 69⅛.

BOND NOTES

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. — International Salt Co. announced today it will call for redemption July 17, 1939, the entire outstanding $3,801,000 of its first and consolidated mortgage collateral trust 50-year 5 per cent gold bonds due Oct. 1, 1951. The bonds are callable at 105 plus accrued interest on six months' notice. Arrangements made through Paul Hammon Co. of New York call for private sale of $3,800,000 3¼ per cent 12-year debentures, which would constitute the only funded debt of the company. The company will save more than $40,000 annually by the refunding operation, it was said.

COMMODITY MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—With wheat the principal exception, the majority of basic commodities and raw materials for future delivery advanced in price today.

Sending wheat quotations lower at Chicago were reports of further snow and rain in recently dry Southwestern growing areas. Final prices were unchanged to ⅝c a bushel down. Corn declined ⅛ @ ⅜c.

Demand from the trade was the dominant force in the New York cotton market and closing gains of 30 to 50 cents a bale were posted. Hedge sellers and spot houses supplied most of the contracts.

Copper futures ran up .11 to .19 of a cent a pound as sentiment improved in domestic and foreign copper circles over possibility of new buying. Hides and rubber showed sizeable gains and others on the plus side included straits tin, lead and cottonseed oil. Rio and Santos coffee and domestic sugar were a little lower.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot commodities declined to 66.38 per cent of the 1926 average from 66.49 Friday.

WASHINGTON BUSINESS NOTES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The Federal Reserve Board estimates department store sales were 15 per cent less in the week ended Jan. 7 than in the corresponding week last year. However, for the four weeks ended Jan. 7 sales averaged 3 per cent better than in the similar period of the previous year.

Business advices to the Commerce Department from representatives abroad include:

Mexico—Purchases of United States office supplies down.

Germany—Staple fiber output increased.

Italy—New cellulose plant erected.

PARAGUAY TURNS AWAY 300 JEWISH REFUGEES

Group Temporarily in Uruguay; 200 More Enroute Despite Order.

By the Associated Press.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 14.—Three hundred refugee Jews from Germany and Italy who were on their way to make new homes in Paraguay found themselves suddenly stranded in Montevideo today as the Paraguayan Government canceled their visas.

Uruguayan authorities, perplexed by the unexpected problem, were troubled further with disclosure that 200 more Jewish refugees would arrive Monday in a similar plight. President Alfredo Baldomir called a special Cabinet meeting for Monday to study the problem.

The 300 here now apparently all are persons of means. They traveled first class on the Italian liner Conte Grande and took up temporary abode in the capital's finest hotels—under police surveillance.

The 200 due Monday, however, are all third class passengers of the smaller French vessel Lipari, and their problem may become more acute.

To Admit Only Farmers.

The refugees, equipped with visas granted by Paraguayan consular officials abroad, did not learn until yesterday, when they were almost in sight of their "new homeland," that the Paraguayan Government had suddenly canceled all immigration permits issued since the end of November.

Paraguayan Economics Minister Jose Bozzano said in Asuncion that all Jewish immigrants must have entrance visas issued by the National Land Colonization Bureau, and this bureau said in turn that the refugees stranded here, not being farmers, would not be allowed to enter Paragua.

Foreign Minister Elias Ayala of Paraguay declined to say whether his Government would relent in its sudden move, carried out by Paraguayan consular agents here.

The Italmar Navigation Co., operators of the liner Conte Grande, made representations to the Paraguayan Government at Asuncion, arguing that the Italian Government would not permit the refugees to return to Genoa, where most of the visas were granted.

Mostly From Germany.

Although some of the Jews were from Italy, most were from Germany. The 200 due Monday sailed from Hamburg and were believed to be mostly Germans.

A high Uruguayan Government official said that the refugees "in the last analysis must be allowed to remain in Uruguay if no other solution is found."

"The law of inertia," he said, "must prevail if other laws fail."

It was believed the Uruguayan Cabinet on Monday night relax recently adopted measures by which Uruguay disclosed an unwillingness to accept Jewis immigrants.

The reason for Paraguay's sudden action was not immediately clear here. The fact that the 300 refugees here now were not farmers should have been known when the visas were granted, it was said. Furthermore, Paraguay is known to seek manpower, farmers and technicians to help reconstruct the country, torn by the recent Gran Chaco war with Bolivia.

A dispatch from Paris said the Paraguayan diplomatic staff there was awaiting instructions from Asuncion regarding an alleged traffic in false passports for Jewish refugees seeking to go to South America.

In Asuncion the Paraguayan Department of Immigration ordered deportation of eight Jews who had arrived with visas granted in Paris, Berlin and Marseille. Officials said the visas were granted "incorrectly," and that only agricultural workers were to be admitted to Paraguay.

UNION ELECTRIC PAYS CITY $329,000 GROSS RECEIPTS TAX

Check for Second Half of 1938; Indicated Sales for Year $13,006,000.

The City Comptroller received a check yesterday for $329,252.23 from Union Electric Co. of Missouri, covering the 5 per cent gross receipts tax for the second half of 1938. The tax for the first six months, paid earlier, was $321,074.69.

This tax is levied by the city on the total volume of the company's business in the City of St. Louis. The aggregate tax of $650,327 indicates gross receipts of $13,006,558 by the company from the sale of electricity to St. Louisans last year.

COTTON PRICES GAIN AT FINAL SESSION OF WEEK

Market Weathers Late Hedge Pressure in July and October Deliveries.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Cotton futures advanced to net gains of 6 to 10 points today as the market weathered late hedge pressure in July and October deliveries. Trade demand and some short covering left final prices close to the day's top levels.

Trade houses bid up March and May contracts at the opening, with added support from Liverpool sources. Spot houses and Southern dealers with hedge selling orders supplied most of the contracts. New Orleans was a seller at the close.

The market derived some satisfaction from the Census Bureau report showing domestic mill consumption in December of 565,307 bales, against 432,328 in the like 1937 month. Moreover, it was reported mill stocks of many standard textile items, with the exception of print cloths, were small.

Trade interest was attracted by news of widespread general rains in the Southern and Western cotton growing states, where conditions had been considered unfavorable due to lack of moisture. The rains were believed highly favorable for new crop prospects.

Speculation over congressional legislation on farm problems continued to loom in the background.

No exports; season so far 2,117,634 bales. Port receipts, 5248; port stock, 2,931,310.

Spot nominal; basis middling, 8.92c.

MICROPHONE USED IN NEW TREATMENT FOR STUTTERERS

Patient Talks to Self in One Room, Instructor in Another Eventually Listens in.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 14.—A new method by which some adult stutterers are successfully treated was announced today by Dr. Raymond Carhart of the speech clinic of Northwestern University. The method which Dr. Carhart calls the "two-room technique" utilizes the ability of certain stutterers to speak fluently when alone to build up their self confidence.

"The technique," Dr. Carhart said, "is best carried out in a pair of rooms with a sound-proof window in the wall between them. An electrical system including a microphone, an amplifier, and a loud speaker, so arranged that the patient, talking in the first room, can be heard in the second."

The patient at first reads aloud and talks to himself with assurance the instructor in the adjoining control room will not listen in until the patient has become accustomed to the apparatus.

"After several weeks have elapsed," Dr. Carhart explained, "the stammerer is told that at some future date the instructor will listen to him for a few minutes. Step by step the listening period is increased, the stutterer being told in advance what to expect. Eventually a stage is reached in which the subject knows that the instructor is listening to him all the time."

The process is repeated with a group of persons on the other side of the glass partition. Eventually, the patient reads aloud or talks to himself when he knows the whole group is listening constantly.

UTILITIES MAN DENIES ICKES' STORY OF FUND

Says Cabinet Member Left Out Half the Truth in Propaganda Charges.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Bernard F. Weadock, managing director of the Edison Electric Institute, said last night that Secretary Ickes "didn't tell half the truth" when he brought the electric utility industry into his attack on the American press in his debate with publisher Frank E. Gannett.

In a written statement, Weadock took Ickes to task for citing a Federal Trade Commission report saying that power interests used a $25,000,000 propaganda fund in 1928 to oppose Government ownership of utilities.

Ickes said that Merlin H. Aylesworth, publisher of the New York World-Telegram, managed the reported fund.

Citing the trade commission report. Weadock said that "Aylesworth never had charge of any such fund" and that the "fund was never used for propaganda purposes because it did not exist."

The report cited by Weadock quoted Bernard J. Mullaney, formerly an officer of the People's Gas Light & Coke Co. of Chicago, as saying that the $25,000,000 figure was "only a rough estimate" and that it was used to advertise "electric washing machines, ranges, excursions on street cars and use of more gas and electricity."

Weadock said Ickes ignored another trade Commission report which showed that all electric light and power companies used only $8,435,320 for advertising in 1928.

He also stated that Aylesworth was president of the National Broadcasting Co. in 1928 and was not connected with any utility firms at that time.

JURY SERVICE FOR WOMEN PROPOSED BY MRS. STEWART

Missouri's Only Woman Legislator to Introduce Sex Equality Bill Next Week.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 14.—Mrs. Gladys B. Stewart (Rep.), Ava, Missouri's only woman legislator, has announced she will introduce the measure for sex equality in jury service and another bill to make Missouri a member of the Council of State Governments next week.

Mrs. Stewart was named a delegate to a meeting of the council in Washington Jan. 18-20 by Speaker J. G. Christy (Dem.), Festus, after the House had adopted a resolution calling for two State delegates. The delegates must pay their own expenses. The other delegate was not chosen.

Two other legislative matters are of particular interest to the Ava Representative in this session. Mrs. Stuart says that if someone else does not do so, she will introduce a bill seeking to put the county social security programs in charge of a county court or a bi-partisan board, instead of the present Social Security Commission offices. Also she says that she is deeply interested in the "marriage health" bill, and that if it fails, she will introduce a bill requiring 72 hours elapsed time between issuance of a marriage license and the marriage." A marriage health bill now before the Senate calls for a 15-day waiting period in addition to the pre-marital health examinations.

RECORDS OF WORLD WAR CITED IN PLEA FOR DEFENSE PLAN

Assistant War Secretary Says Germany Ignored U. S. Rights Because It Regarded Us as Weak.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Urging national support for President Roosevelt's defense program, Louis Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War, asserted tonight that there was "a very serious possibility of a globe-sweeping conflagration."

"For several years every other country has recognized the danger of the situation," Johnson told the Washington chapter of the National Sojourners in a nationally-broadcast address. "The Munich pact merely dramatized and emphasized its significance."

The West Virginian, a former national commander of the American Legion, asserted that "a bully nation set on conquest always picks its spots" and is "always careful to avoid a mix-up with an equal or superior." For that reason, he said, reinforced defenses were imperative, to make American rights respected as well as to provide bulwarks against actual attack.

New Light on World War.

In support of this argument, he produced from War Department files German World War records, some of which officials said had not been published. The records showed, he said, that "our rights were completely ignored (by Germany) because we in the United States were regarded as weak, pusillanimous and unworthy of serious consideration as potential adversaries."

"Neither Hindenburg nor Ludendorf thought 'that the intervention of America would be of much importance,'" he said. "The German Secretary of State for the Navy (Herr von Capelle) boldly announced: 'I consider the intervention of America to be worth nothing at all.'

"The chief of the German naval staff (Admiral von Holtzendorf) went even further. To his Emperor on the eve of the intensification of submarine warfare, he vouched: 'I give your Majesty my word as an officer that not one American will land on the continent.'

"Time later proved that our enemies had miscalculated our strength. Had they regarded us, however, as a strong people, there is every likelihood that they would have hesitated before goading us into battle and perhaps never would have disregarded our rights."

U. S. Defenses No Secret Abroad.

Johnson, a presidential adviser and spokesman on national defense, said he had been taxed with being unduly alarming in listing the nation's military shortcomings.

"The American people are not children," he said he had told one unnamed critic. "They are men and women of maturity. They are entitled to all the facts. The power to make good our shortages rests squarely upon the shoulders of our citizens."

The "true condition" of American defenses, he added, "may still be a secret to many of our own citizens, but it is most certainly known in all foreign capitals."

"For 20 years, we in America sincerely tried to promote good fellowship, not only in the Americas but among all nations in all corners of the globe," Johnson said. "We arbitrated, we conciliated. We forgave our debtors large slices of their legal and moral financial obligations. We encouraged trade treaties. We denounced force as a governmental policy. We led in disarmament. We reduced our navy. We skeletonized our army. We brought home our marines...

"It is our job today to build our defenses so strong that our potential enemies will think twice, three times or even 10 times before violating our rights, and perhaps give up the thought entirely rather than risk possible defeat."

PHILADELPHIA CITY EMPLOYES' PAY TIED UP OVER NEW BUDGET

20,000 Also Will Get No Salary Jan. 30; Way to Save $18,000,000 Sought.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14.—The 20,000 men and women who run the nation's third largest city worked for nothing today because of a budget tie-up.

It was the first pay day of the new year, but neither the Mayor, the corner policeman, nor street sweepers received salary checks. Furthermore, they probably will not receive them next pay day, Jan. 30. Some of them may lose their jobs or get salary cuts.

Christmas and rent bills went unpaid while city councilmen studied how to slash $18,000,000 from the 1939 budget and avoid a huge deficit. The Council will meet in special session Jan. 23, but no city employe can be paid until the budget is completed, which officials said would not be before Feb. 1. Officials said the tax collector first must figure how much revenue last year's 2 per cent sales tax brought in and how much receipts fell below expectations.

Council has discarded, because of public protect, hastily enacted ordinances for a 1½ per cent income tax on all persons working in Philadelphia and for a 3 per cent sales tax. A plan to offer the city-owned gas works as security for a $25,000,000 loan is still under consideration.

IF HOUSES COULD TALK!
If houses could talk they would praise the builder, architect and owner who has the foresight to use dry, on-grade lumber. Because only dry, on-grade lumber can give stability to the frame-work and strong joints that mean freedom from bodily aches and pains. To put off-grade, wet lumber into a building is to definitely invite plaster cracks, uneven floors and open joints. Difficult as it may be to make sure of dry, on-grade lumber, there is one way open to you. Buy your lumber from Goodfellow. PERMIT VALUES IN DECEMBER HOLD UP WELL

Construction in 215 Cities Last Month Aggregate $89,582,203, Practically Same as November Figure

Total value of building permits issued in December for the country as a whole continued at approximately the same level as in November, but fell rather sharply from the abnormally large December, 1937, volume. In the latter month totals were unduly increased by the rush to file permits before the new New York City building code went into effect, late in January last year.

Permits in December for the 215 cities reporting to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., were valued at $89,582,203, which was practically the same as the November figure of $89,659,369. Last month's total compared with $118,743,015 a year ago, a drop of 24.6 per cent.

Without New York City, the amount for December was $67,319,756, an increase of 53.3 per cent from the $43,924,911 recorded in the corresponding 1937 month. The decline from the November figure of $67,497,501 was only 0.3 per cent.

Permits for New York City equalled $22,262,447, or 70.2 per cent less than December a year ago, when they aggregated $74,818,104. Comparison with the November total of $22,161,868 showed a rise of 0.5 per cent.

Group totals of building permit values for 215 cities for December, 1938 and 1937, together with percentage changes, are shown in the following table:

County and City Homes Acquired

No. 8 Lenox place purchased by Murius S. Barrow from Louis von Weise, through Edward L. Bakewell.

Residence at 114 Lake Forest at the southwest corner of Clayton and Hanley roads purchased by Herman F. Kriegshauser. A. T. & Whitelaw Terry handled the sale.

DEALS CLOSED FOR LAKE FOREST HOUSES

H. F. Kriegshauser and G. E. Baker Buy Homes in Clayton Road Development.

Deals were concluded last week for two recently completed houses in Lake Forest, a high class development, at the southwest corner of Clayton and Hanley roads.

The residence at 114 Lake Forest was acquired by Herman F. Kriegshauser, secretary of Kriegshauser Mortuaries. It occupies a lot 75 by 172 feet.

The first floor consists of living room, dining room, bath, kitchen and breakfast room and lavatory. There are four bedrooms, maids' rooms and three baths on the second floor.

The basement contains a rathskeller and air-conditioning equipment. A two-car garage forms a part of the building.

A. T. & Whitelaw Terry effected the sale for the account of the George F. Bergfeld Realty Co. The price was not disclosed.

The residence at 29 Lake Forest was purchased by George E. Baker, auditor and director of the American Stove Co., from Ben Goldberg, builder. Shaw & Francis, Inc., and the Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Co. jointly handled the transaction.

The first floor consists of living room, dining room, kitchen, breakfast room, sunroom and powder room, and there are four bedrooms with two baths and maid's room and bath on the second floor. The house has a basement recreation room and a conditioned air-heating system with gas burner. A two-car garage is attached to the house.

5-STORY BUILDING ON LINDELL RENTED

Equipment Concern to Occupy Quarters at 3446-48—Olive Street Lease.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. has taken a long-term lease on the four-story building at 3446-48 Lindell boulevard, owned by the Thomas Dunn heirs, of which the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. is co-trustee.

The building is to be altered and improved to conform with the requirements of the lessee, at an estimated cost of $20,000. Both the first and second floors will be modernized.

The company, of which R. E. Bensinger is president, manufactures bowling alley equipment, pool and billiard tables, bar and soda fountain equipment. It now is located at 915 North Sixth street.

The real estate department of the Mercantile-Commerce negotiated the lease, in conjunction with J. H. Bennett of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.

The Canada Dry Bottling Co. of St. Louis plans to take possession Feb. 15 of the one-story building at 3019-33 Olive street, which it recently leased for a long term from clients of Cornet & Zeibig, Inc.

The building is to be reconditioned and improved at a large outlay. Embracing approximately a quarter block, the site has a frontage of 168 feet on Olive street by a depth of 140 feet to the east and west alley of the block.

The lease is for a period of years, with a renewal option. Cornet & Zeibig represented the lessors in the negotiations and Arthur G. Giles of the Easton-Taylor Trust Co. represented the lessee.

The Canada Dry Bottling Co. of St. Louis is confined to the territory within 75 miles of St. Louis. Welch Walker is president and general manager. Balfour Craib, secretary and treasurer and Edwin Levis, vice-president.

SHIRT COMPANY ENLARGES QUARTERS ON WASHINGTON AV.

National Shirt Shops, Inc., a chain concern, has leased the store at 716 Washington avenue as an addition to its present quarters. Plans contemplate installation of a modern store front and new fixtures, embracing both stores.

The additional storeroom will give the concern double the floor space it now occupies in this building in which it has been located for a number of years.

The lease was negotiated by Arthur S. Martin & Sons, realtors, representing both the Catlin estate, owner of the property, and the lessee.

National Shirt Shops, Inc., has renewed its lease on its present quarters at 708 Olive street for a number of years, through Arthur S. Martin & Son.

REALTY MARKET BETTER THAN YEAR AGO, SURVEY SAYS

Reports to National Association Indicate Abundant Capital and Increased Sales of Homesites.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Real estate entered 1939 with a quickened, stronger pace, the thirty-second semi-annual survey of the market by the National Association of Real Estate boards indicated today.

Compiled from reports of member boards in 274 cities throughout the nation, the survey found activity better than a year ago, capital supply the best in years, interest rates tending lower, rents stable and the sales of homesites increasing.

Evidence of preparation by many families for new home building was found by the association in reports of substantial activity in the homesite market. Despite recent revival of home building, 34 per cent of the cities reported an undersupply of single family dwellings at the end of the year.

Complementing this situation, interest rates and mortgage money supply were the most favorable ever recorded in the country's real estate history, the association found. Capital for mortgage loans seeking investment was reported by 77 per cent of the cities, while loans were said to be seeking capital only in 13 per cent.

Interest rates in 29 per cent of the cities reporting were lower than at last year this time, when they already were the lowest in history. Only 2 per cent of the cities reported rising rates, while 69 per cent reported rates steady at last year's levels.

Selling prices for real estate was reported steady in 64 per cent of the cities and rents were reported in the most stable situation of the post-depression period. Rents for single family houses, which advanced steadily from 1934 to the end of 1937, felt the effect of new residential construction and were stationary in 64 per cent of reporting cities. They were up in 15 per cent, but lower than at last year this time in 21 per cent. The rise or drop has generally been about 5 per cent.

Sale of homesites during the year exceeded number of homes built. One hundred lots were sold for every 73 homes built in the cities reporting, the sales averaging one lot for every 243 persons in the urban population.

TWO CLAYTON ROAD CORNERS PURCHASED BY J. A. MAZZONI

The northeast and the northwest corners of Clayton and Woods Mill roads, comprising a total of 3.864 acres, owned by the Louis Ruhl interests, have been purchased by James A. Mazzoni. Frank A. Singer handled the transaction.

The purchaser has not disclosed his plans in connection with the purchase.

EXCHANGE HEAD TO DISCUSS REALTY PROBLEMS OVER RADIO

Some of the questions often asked by home-owners, tenants and prospective buyers of real estate will be answered by Arthur C. Hoehn, newly-installed president of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, and vice-president of the Henry R. Weisels Co., in an interview to be broadcast over Station KMOX at 1:45 p. m. today.

Hoehn will appear on the "Onward Road" program arranged by St. Louisans, Inc., a civic and businessmen's fact-finding organization. Leaders in the city's various community and business activities are being interviewed about their work on the program, which has been heard weekly since last June.

Besides explaining the history of the local estate exchange, which is believed to be the oldest organization of its kind in the country, Hoehn is expected to discuss the services offered by the real estate profession to property owners and renters of all types, and the widespread employment it affords both directly and indirectly. Also to be considered is the part the exchange and its members have played in developing the city by planning and opening up new residential and business districts.

SAINT MARK'S MEMORIAL TO BE DEDICATED TODAY

The new Memorial Church of Saint Mark, at Clifton and Murdock avenues, will be dedicated today at 4 o'clock. The Right Reverend William Scarlett, Episcopal Bishop of Missouri, will officiate.

The late John A. Watkins, wealthy bachelor real estate dealer, made provisions in his will for the construction of the church as a memorial to his mother, Mrs. Ann J. Watkins.

FORECLOSURES ON RESIDENCES FEWER

Drop of 22 Per Cent First 11 Months of 1938 Compared With Same 1937 Period.

A drop of 22 per cent in foreclosures on non-farm homes during the first 11 months of 1938 as compared with the same period of 1937 was reported yesterday by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. The Board gathers information on foreclosures of city and town residential property by all types of mortgage lending institutions and makes a monthly study.

Although there was a slight rise in foreclosures during November as compared with October—7.3 per cent—all other indices pointed toward the conclusion that borrowers increasingly are better able to keep up their payments on home mortgages, according to the statement prepared by Corwin A. Fergus, chief of the Board's Division of Research and Statistics.

November was the third lowest month of 1938 in the number of foreclosures and stood nearly 15 per cent below November last year.

"There were 21 states and the District of Columbia reporting declines in foreclosures from October aggregating 625 cases," said Mr. Fergus' statement. "Twenty-four states reported increases totaling 1257; and three states reported no change. Thus, for the country as a whole, there was a net increase of 632 cases.

"There were 35 states reporting fewer foreclosures this november than during the same month of last year, the declines ranging from 82.6 per cent to 4.9 per cent. Of the 12 Federal Home Loan Bank districts, only the New York district registered an increase for this period—24.2 per cent.

"Despite its rise over October, November was nearly 15 per cent under the corresponding month of the preceding year, was the third lowest month thus far for 1938, and stood below the average month of 1928."

BUILDING AND LOAN LEAGUE ELECTS OFFICERS FOR 1939

The St. Louis League of Incorporated Building and Loan Associations at its regular monthly meeting elected the following officers: George Clement, president; Hugo F. Buder, vice-president; Carl O. Kamp, vice-president, and E. A. Kamp, secretary and treasurer. The St. Louis league banquet will be held at the Hotel Statler on Thursday, Jan. 19, 1939, at 6:30 p. m. Arthur H. Brayton of Des Moines, Ia., Morton Bodfish of Chicago, executive vice-president of the United States Building and Loan League, and H. Merle Smith of Kansas City, assistant to the president of the Missouri State League of Building and Loan Associations, will address the meeting. E. Paul Smith, secretary of the St. Louis Federal Savings and Loan Association, is the retiring president of the St. Louis league.

For the past two years an intensive study has been made of low cost homes in the St. Louis building market by a group of architects, sponsored by members of the St. Louis League of Incorporated Building and Loan Associations. Within the next 30 days there will be available sketches, plans and specifications of low cost homes especially developed for St. Louis and St. Louis County from the results of this research in St. Louis.

All participating architects are members of the St. Louis Chapter, American Institute of Architects.

1938 SALES AGGREGATING $2,611,590 ARE REPORTED

The H. A. O'Rourke Realty Co., through L. M. Booker, sales manager, reports having effected the sale of 326 separate pieces of property in 1938 with an aggregate value of $2,611,590. The following is a partial list of sales recently closed by the concern:

Bungalow at 5336 Delor to John W. Kraus and Ruby G. Kraus; 6704 Colorado avenue, bungalow, to Frank Bucher; lot on West Park to Johanna Dengler; Grand View Farm to C. G. and Emma B. Stegelmeyer; single flat at 4311 S. Grand boulevard, to William Ehenert; 3248 Watson road, double flat, to Henry B. and Johanna Krey; bungalow, 4678 Heidelberg avenue, to Marvin and Ruth Schmidt; 371 Marine avenue, cottage, to Thomas and Alberta Watson; lot on Bradley avenue, to Willard H. and Mayme Miller.

FLAT, RESIDENCES AND CORNER BUILDING SOLD

The real estate department of the Easton-Taylor Trust Co. reports the following sales: Four-family flat at 5114 Palm street for Sallye M. Taylor to Otto Neumann; four stores and two residences on the northwest corner of Cabanne and Hamilton avenues for Lena Traub to Ray J. Miller; residence at 5144 Page boulevard for Volney D. Gorham to George Grossman.

LARGE SPACE IN DOWNTOWN OFFICE BUILDING LEASED

Several leases have been concluded for large office space in the Victoria and Columbia buildings at the northwest and southeast corners of Eighth and Locust streets, respectively.

The Mississippi River Fuel Corporation has leased 15 rooms on the ninth floor of the 10-story Victoria Building. It plans to take possession of the new quarters about Feb. 1, when necessary alterations and improvements have been completed.

The entire seventh floor of the Victoria has been leased to the Utilities Insurance Co., and Lynton T. Block & Co., associated concerns, now in the Chamber of Commerce Building. Possession is to be taken May 1.

The entire seventh floor of the 10-story Columbia Building, at the southeast corner of Eighth and Locust streets was recently leased to the Acacia Mutual Life Insurancne Co.

W. A. Helm & Co., accountants, recently acquired the entire sixth floor of this building under a long lease.

The Victoria Building, which is under the management of Clarence M. Turley, is being modernized and improved, including the installation of modern elevators.

The Columbia Building, owned by the Sidney Real Estate Co., and under the management of the Henry R. Weisels Co., has been completely modernized.

New elevator enclosures in pastel green and black effect and fast, new elevators have been installed. New fixtures, wash stands and lavatories and marble wainscot have been installed in the toilet rooms.

MORTGAGE BANKERS TO HOLD ANNUAL ELECTION THURSDAY

The annual meeting of the Mortgage Bankers' Association of St. Louis will be held Thursday at 6:30 p. m., at the Chase Hotel. S. M. Walters of Minneapolis, newly-elected president of the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America, will be the principal speaker. His subject will be "The Mortgage Bankers' Outlook for 1939."

Election of officers and governors of the local association for 1939 will be held at the meeting. Nominees are: Martin L. Rust, president; A. Sproule Love, vice-president; George Stolz, treasurer, and Joseph H. Schenk, secretary. Nominees for the board of governors, are N. S. Wood, president of N. S. Wood, Inc., Larry Seeman and Al. Grobel.

Rust is secretary-treasurer of the M. A. Rust & Son Realty Co.; Love is vice-president of the Edward K. Love Realty Co. Minard T. Mac Carthy is the retiring president.

Since his election to the presidency of the national association, Walters has traveled extensively with a view to obtaining first hand knowledge of mortgage conditions. He was accompanied to St. Louis by George H. Patterson, executive secretary of the National Association.

Menard T. MacCarthy is the retiring president of the local organization.

CLAYTON ROAD RESIDENCE BOUGHT BY BANK EXECUTIVE

A newly-built residence, with 2-acre sites at 9117 Clayton road, Ladue, has been purchased by John J. Griffin, vice-president of the Mutual Bank & Trust Co., from David Israel, builder.

The house is of fire-proof construction, with exterior finish of stone and granite, and is set off with a slate roof. The first floor consists of reception hall, living room, dining room, breakfast room, kitchen, two master bedrooms, with separate connecting baths, guest room, with bath, and servants' room, with bath. MANY LOCAL REALTORS TO ATTEND MEETING

Exchange Charters Train to Carry Members to Dallas Convention.

The St. Louis Real Estate Exchange has chartered a special train to take local realtors and their families who will attend the fourth annual conference of the South-Central region of the National Association of Real Estate Boards to be held in Dallas, Tex., Jan. 27-28. It leaves Union Station Wednesday evening, Jan. 25, at 5:30 o'clock.

The South-Central region of the National Association, in addition to Missouri, comprises Kansas, Colorado, Arkansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana.

The two-day regional conference will be preceded by meetings of the executive committee, board of directors and executive groups of the various divisions, institutes and councils of the National Association.

The 1939 president of the National Association, E. L. Ostendorf, Cleveland (Ohio) realtor, and his corps of officers and new directors will be inducted into office at the annual installation banquet Friday evening, Jan. 27.

Arrangements for the St. Louis delegation are in charge of Eugene D. Ruth Jr. and Cyrus Crane Willmore, president of the Missouri Real Estate Association and director of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, respectively, and both past presidents of the St. Louis exchange. Injuries sustained by Mr. Ruth in an automobile accident Tuesday evening on Highway 66 near Valley Park will prevent his attending the Dallas convention.

Arthur C. Hoehn, president of the St. Louis Exchange, will head the local delegation which, in addition to Mrs. Hoehn and Mr. and Mrs. Willmore, will include:

George S. Metcalfe, first vice-president, and Mrs. Metcalfe; Chester A. Doerflinger, second vice-president, and Mrs. Doerflinger; Oliver Hannauer, secretary; Frank A. ALGONQUIN RIDGE
WAS OPENED TO HOME SEEKERS LAST SUNDAY
And Over a Thousand Came to See It!

IF PRAISE can be used as a yardstick to measure the future of Algonquin Ridge, then we, the developers, should feel like a producer of a play after the premier performance has been hailed a hit.

The comment and interest of visitors convinced us that the care and thought that went into the planning and arrangement of Algonquin Ridge must be what people want in the way of a distinctive place to live.

If you haven't seen Algonquin Ridge, then drive out today. It's on the Berry Road . . . just North of Algonquin Country Club. If you're coming from the city . . . drive out Manchester to Berry Road and then South to the property.

30 ACRES OF WOODLAND HOMESITES

Developed by Studt-Wilson
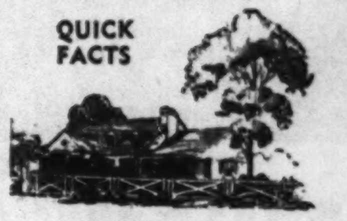
of CLAYTON . . RAn. 8289

ALL FOUR JOBS ARE DONE WITH GAS, IN THIS ALGONQUIN RIDGE HOME

QUICK FACTS



FORTY HOUSES ARE PLANNED for Algonquin Ridge this year . . . ranging from $7750 (cost includes property). $1150 down and $59.40 monthly will reduce the principal, pay taxes, insurance and etc.

CONSULTING ARCHITECTS & BUILDERS will gladly discuss building plans with you and show you house plans of many attractive colonial houses.

LIVE IN ALGONQUIN RIDGE
Where it is clean and city conveniences can be enjoyed in a rural setting. Good transportation, schools, complete sewers, gas and PRIVATE WOODLAND PLAYGROUND for the children.

THREE CONFESS BANK, POSTOFFICE HOLDUPS

Admit Robberies in Oklahoma and Missouri — Girl Companion Held.

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 14.—Three men were held for the Federal grand jury today on postoffice burglary charges as Federal Bureau of Investigation agents checked their statements confessing a series of postoffice and bank robberies in Oklahoma and Missouri.

William E. Montgomery, 29 years old; Eugene Booth, 20, and Dave Rogers, 31, were held under $2500 bonds by the United States Commissioner here on charges preferred by the El Paso postmaster. They were arrested yesterday by city police with Grace Waller, 19, of Amarillo, who was detained as a material witness, and William P. Merchone of Houston, who was kept in custody for further questioning.

Federal agents said Montgomery had made a statement admitting robbery of nine postoffices in Missouri and Oklahoma, three automobile thefts, and robbery of a bank in Avilla, Mo., two weeks ago.

Charges by postal authorities specifically accused the three of burglary of the Stotts City (Mo.) postoffice and theft of postal money orders and equipment.

Pending grand jury action, agents said they would question the men on details of their statements, including robbery of the Avilla bank.

Montgomery, according to his statement, escaped from jail in Hollister, Cal., when serving a sentence in 1937 for passing worthless checks. He said he robbed "eight or nine" postoffices before leaving California.

Booth and Rogers, agents said, related they met Montgomery in Oklahoma City and together they robbed nine postoffices in Oklahoma and Missouri. They met the girl in an Oklahoma City night club three weeks ago and subsequently passed forged money orders in Oklahoma City and Amarillo, Tex.

Books of postal money orders and other postal equipment was found in their luggage.

69 DEER GIVEN TO STATE

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 14.—Missouri's deer herds increased by at least 69 animals last fall—a season which in 1937 saw the number of deer reduced 108 by hunters. The 69 new deer were released in public forests by the State Conservation Commission after it had declared a closed season on the rapidly diminishing animals.

Nine of the deer comprised a gift from the Rev. Victor Heinen of Conception Abbey at Conception, N. V. Skaggs contributed 49 from his rancch in Taney County, and the Springfield zoo donated the other 11.

JAPAN TO CONSCRIPT 1,500,000 OF CHINESE

Understood Men 17 to 30 Will Be Put in Military Service Against Guerrillas.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 15 (Sunday).—Japanese newspapers here reported today the Japanese-dominated Nanking Government soon would undertake conscription to force Chinese between the ages of 17 and 30 into its military service.

Japanese authorities in Shanghai declined to comment on the report. It was understood, however, that the Nanking Government expected to conscript 1,500,000 Chinese this year in Japanese-occupied territory surrounding the former capital of China.

Reports in some quarters said these conscripts, along with others to be drafted in succeeding years, would be subject to seven years of enforced military service.

The conscripts were believed destined to oppose Chinese guerillas operating throughout the reformed government's domain.

"Pacification" Reported.

A Japanese army spokesman also reported today the "pacification" of the Hangchow area after 360 battles and skirmishes in a year.

Hangchow, capital of Chekiang Province, lies about 100 miles southwest of Shanghai. The Japanese captured it on Christmas eve, 1937, and Chinese a week ago launched a surprise offensive designed to recapture the city.

The Japanese said Chinese regulars now had been routed and guerrillas had been dispersed.

They asserted the mopping-up operations resulted in the killing of 435 Chinese and the capture of 425, as well as the seizure of machine guns, rifles and ammunition. Japanese casualties were reported as 98 killed and 300 wounded.

Chinese advices reported that the Japanese had started an advance from Canton, South China metropolis, toward Tsungfa, 30 miles to the northeast, and an offensive in the north directed against Yumenkow, Yellow River crossing between Shansi and Shensi Provinces.

Shangcheng Recaptured.

Verifying chinese reports that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's troops had recaptured Shangcheng, strategic city in Southeast Honan, Japanese said their planes bombed Chinese forces concentrated there. (Shangcheng is 360 miles airline west of Shanghai).

Japanese bombers ranged over widely separated sectors in China. In the strategy calling for conserving infantry energy but keeping up activity against the enemy.

Chinese said 200 civilians were killed by raiders at Henyang, in Hunan Province. Other places bombed included Wahsien, in Szechwan Province on the Yangtze River between Hankow and Chungking; Watlam, Southwest Kwingsi, and Shuihing, in Kwangtung Province.

CAB FIRM SUED OVER NAME

St. Louis Company Seeks to Enjoin One in County.

An injunction suit to prevent the St. Louis County Yellow Cab Co. from using the name yellow cab and from designing and decorating its equipment in a manner similar to yellow cabs operated by the Mound City Cab Co. of St. Louis was filed in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday by the Mound City Co.

The petition sets forth that an imitation by county cabs of the Mound City company's equipment is an effort to gain business by infringement on a trade name and cab style built up to a good will asset by extensive advertising and promotion. Circuit Judge John J. Wolfe set Jan. 27 as the date for a hearing to show cause why the injunction should not be granted.

JEWISH LEADER DENOUNCES NAZI 'RANSOM SCHEME'

Rabbi Silver Says Americans of Race Will Not Buy From Germany to Finance Emigration.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. — Dr. Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, national chairman of the United Palestine Appeal, asserted tonight that American Jews would accept no Nazi "ransom scheme" for emigration of German Jews.

Denouncing a reported German proposal to the Intergovernmental Committee on Refugees that emigration be linked with purchases of German-made goods by Jews in other lands, Rabbi Silver told a conference of Jewish leaders here that it was "tantamount to placing a premium upon brutality."

Acceptance of the "degrading and debasing offer," he said would be a "blanket invitation to other countries with anti-Semitic leanings to mulct the Jews and intensify expulsion activities."

1500 Attend Conference.

The conference, attended by 1500 Jews from 44 states, was called for study of a possible program whereby American Jews could give maximum assistance for the settlement in Palestine of Jewish refugees from Central Europe.

Dr. Silver told it that Palestine could absorb 100,000 Jews, but that to talk of settling thousands in Africa and South America was "cruel deception."

"Jewish leadership," he added, "should make it unmistakably clear to all the governments of Europe that it is impossible to evacuate 6,000,000 Jews; that there are no countries prepared to receive them, no colonies available for their settlement and no financial means for effectuating such a program even if it were feasible.

"The overwhelmingly large numbers of Jews in Central and Eastern Europe will have to remain exactly where they are, and their problem must ultimately be solved along with the entire minority problem of Europe."

Masaryk Assails Munich Pact.

Another speaker was Jan Masaryk, Czecho-Slovakian Minister to London when his country ceded the Sudetenland to Germany under the Munich pact.

Describing the pact as a "betrayal" of Czecho-Slovakia, Masaryk said he had "no fear for my people's ultimate victory."

He expressed belief that much of the Arab agitation against settlement of Jews in Palestine was inspired from foreign sources.

"The latest acts of terrorism in Palestine dangerously resemble Mr. Henlein's (Konrad Henlein, Nazi leader in the Sudetenland) activities before Munich," he said. "There is nationalism. There is terrorism financed and supported from mysterious—or not so mysterious—foreign quarters."

Arab Sympathizers Picket Meeting.

Ten men who said they represented the Arab National League paraded in front of the hotel where the meeting was held.

They wore sandwich signs which read: "Arabs Protest Against Zionist Invasion of Palestine," "The Kingdom of Israel Cannot Be Restored by Specious Claims and Bayonets of Tyrants and Imperialism," "Why Not Try Some Understanding and Consideration for the Feelings of 'Gentiles' Rather Than Wailing and Whining All the Time?"

A policeman kept the pickets moving. A man who said he was Peter S. George of New York, apparent leader of the group, withdrew them after two hours, but said they would return tomorrow.

Refugee Committee Offers Counter-Proposal to Nazis.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—Members of the intergovernmental refugee committee, headed by George Rublee, American executive director, determined today to remain in Berlin over the week end in hope of reaching some agreement with the German Government for evacuation of at least part of Germany's 700,000 Jews.

Rublee conferred today with the president of the Reichsbank, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, by telephone, but the negotiators did not meet.

Discussion centered around Schacht's proposal to finance Jewish emigration from the proceeds of increased German exports, which he would accomplish through an international loan and lifting any anti-Nazi trade boycotts.

Undisclosed counter - proposals have been advanced by Rublee.

While efforts to get Jews out of the Reich continued, the Ministry of Education moved to fill gaps in the medical field caused by the ousting of Jewish physicians and dwindling interest of students in the medical profession. University medical courses were ordered shortened by almost two years. After April 1, 1939, doctors will be permitted to practice after five years' training instead of the nearly seven years now required.

"Prosthetic Dentistry."

"Prosthetic Dentistry" will be discussed by Dr. James W. Templeton, professor of that subject at St. Louis University, at the monthly meeting of the St. Louis Society of Dental Science at the Coronado Hotel tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Auto News and Notes

A MEETING OF THE FIELD personnel of all sales and service divisions of the Chrysler Corporation in the St. Louis area with executive from Detroit was held Friday at the Coronado Hotel to discuss Plymouth's plans following announcement of the 1939 line of commercial cars. R. C. Somerville, Plymouth field superintendent, conducted the meeting and other factory officers present included M. J. Golden, director of commercial car sales for the Chrysler division, and R. M. Rowland, assistant general sales manager for the De Soto division. Field representatives attending represented the Plymouth, Chrysler, De Soto, Dodge, service, parts and Fargo divisions of the Chrysler Corporation.

R. M. Rowland.

Somerville said that Plymouth soon would bring out a new type panel delivery car of 124.6 cubic feet capacity, functionally styled, with amola steel coil spring individual front spring suspension. He said also that the new Plymouth half-ton pickup model would be roomier and ride better than ever before.

Another Plymouth departure will be a wholly new series of five special utility cars soon to be announced. These will be headed by a utility sedan, which will be a special conversion of the Roadking two-door sedan with the entire rear half opened up as useful carrying space. This utility sedan will be designed to be of especial use by salesmen who need large space for sample cases and window and counter displays and for the smaller business men.

Friday's meeting was one of 13 held the past week in key cities of the country by the Plymouth organization.

A MEETING OF FIELD MEN of the St. Louis region of the Dodge division of the Chrysler Corporation opened yesterday at the Coronado Hotel, to continue through tomorrow. It was one of 15 key city meetings to review 1938 and discuss plans for the coming year. J. D. Burke, director of truck sales for Dodge, the principal speaker, said that economic recessions would be rare, indeed, if it were possible to innoculate all American business activities with the spirit of timely change animating the auto industry.

J. D. Burke.

"All signs indicate," Burke said, "that our industry, having once more invested millions of dollars in new designs and production equipment, is again pointing the way and will again take the lead in the general trend toward renewing prosperity. The year 1939 finds us with a set of greatly changed conditions for which the designers and engineers of our industry have provided important mechanical and value improvements and changes in models and designs. Correspondingly, sales staffs and dealers are bestirring themselves with renewed energies in the distribution of the new and better products. These products are assured of a market by the simple reason that worthwhile and useful merchandise is readily purchased when the public is given sound reasons for buying it."

The St. Louis meeting of Dodge field men is being duplicated, under guidance of other Dodge headquarters executives, in Boston, Detroit, New York, Philadelphia, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Chicago, Dallas, Oklahoma City, Los Angeles, Atlanta, Greensboro, Seattle and Cincinnati.

JOE MITCHELLETTE HAS been appointed sales manager of C. E. Vincel Pontiac, Inc., authorized Pontiac dealership at 3537 South Kingshighway, of which C. E. Vincel is president. Mitchellette, who has been in the auto business since 1922, formerly was one of the officers of the Brahm-Mitchellette Co., which was the pioneer auto firm on South Kingshighway, having established the first auto dealership on that street south of Manchester avenue. It also was one of the oldest Pontiac dealers in Metropolitan St. Louis as it opened for business in February, 1926.

THE FORD MOTOR CO.'S DOmestic sales of 60,669 units in December were the largest in any month since September, 1937, and were approximately 20 per cent above those in December a year ago, the Ford Motor Company announces. The sales total included Ford, Mercury, Lincoln-Zephyr and Lincoln cars. Used car sales were also 20 per cent greater than in December, last year. Stocks of used cars in the hands of dealers are 25 per cent less than on Jan. 1 a year ago. January production schedules of Ford, Mercury and Lincoln-Zephyr cars, as announced recently, have been increased over December. The gain in Lincoln-Zephyr sales in December was especially notable, the highest in any month since January, 1937.

HALF AS MANY 1939 MODEL Hudson cars have already been shipped from the factory in Detroit as were shipped in the entire 1938 model season, C. G. Beeching, sales manager in charge of zones for the Hudson Motor Car Co., told dealers at a sales rally held Monday at the Chase Hotel. "Our sales in the past week were 34 per cent over the same week of last year," Beeching said. "As an even better index of how business is improving, our higher priced cars have accounted for 28 per cent of our sales of 1939 models to date and the percentage is getting higher. For the past few weeks, 35 per cent of our sales were country club series, our highest priced cars. The factory is in a highly advantageous position as regards the vital factors of organization, facilities and finance. We are immediately launching a vigorous advertising campaign, majoring in the newspapers, featuring the exclusive safety features provided by Hudson brakes and autopoise control."

The meeting was held by the Hudson & Terraplane Sales Corporation, the distributer in the St. Louis territory, especially to explain to dealers and salesmen the Hudson "ace of safety" campaign.

A NUMBER OF EXECUTIVES of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. were in St. Louis Friday for a sales conference. They included Raymond C. Firestone, who is president of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. of Memphis, Tenn.; L. R. Jackson, vice-president in charge of sales for the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., of Akron, O.; W. H. Knight, Southwestern zone manager, with headquarters in Memphis; R. W. Gove, district manager in St. Louis, and Joseph Davis, Southeastern zone manager. Jackson was on his way to the Pacific Coast.

TWO HUNDRED SALESMEN and agents of the Shell Petroleum Corporation's Central marketing division met Wednesday at the De Soto Hotel to celebrate the division's victory in a recent corporation-wide sales contest and to watch their fellow salesmen lampoon company executives at the division's third annual gridiron dinner. The day-long conference was featured by a discussion of sales problems and policies in the central division area, speakers including C. W. Manvill, division manager; P. C. Thomas, sales manager; C. E. Gerteis, operations manager, and C. P. Ayers, retail merchandising manager. A bronze trophy, emblematic of the division's victory in the sales contest, was presented to Division Manager Manville by P. E. Lakin, vice-president in charge of marketing. First prize winners in the Central Division were Mark Lieberstein, East St. Louis salesman, and Herman Wilkins, Shell dealer, 1916 St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis. Wilkins was the top dealer in the entire corporation.

At the gridiron banquet, members of the sales staff banished executives from the speaker's table and then burlesqued them in a series of skits patterned after the annual Gridiron Banquets of Washington news correspondents. Some of the executives who were "roasted," were Vice-Persident Lakin, Division Manager Manville, Division Sales Manager P. C. Thomas, Division Operations Manager Gerteis, Office Manager G. F. Horch, and Credit Manager R. C. Gordon. In charge of the dinner and the evening's entertainment was O. F. Minor, assistant division sales manager, who impersonated Thomas for the evening. Among his assistants were Adolph Vedder, a salesman, who impersonated Manville; R. E. Britt, J. C. Ebel, W. J. Fey, R. E. Kirchmer, Garrett Putnam, John Denver, A. Caraffa, C. G. Mooney, A. R. White and C. H. Maxey, all salesmen.

THE PEFFERMAN MOTOR Co., Inc., 9405 Lackland road, has been appointed a Reo truck dealer in Overland by Fred M. Morgan, branch manager here for the Reo Sales Corporation. In addition to trucks, the firm will carry Reo parts.

CONTINUING THE SHARP UPward trend in November, Chevrolet dealers sold 66,832 new passenger cars and trucks in December, W. E. Holler, general sales manager, reports. This was an increase of 13,229 units, or 24.7 per cent, over sales in December, 1937. Used car sales in the same period increased 3845 units, or 3.7 per cent, over those for December, 1937, the figures being 107,231 in December, 1938, and 103,386 in December, 1937. Total units, new and used, sold in the month, were 174,063, Holler said, as compared with 156,989 in December of the previous year. This was an increase of 17,074 units, or 10.9 per cent. "Especially significant," Holler said, "is December's sharp increase over even November's fine record."

Summary: Score at end of half—Creighton 17, St. Louis U. 13.

Referee—Riegart (Iowa). Umpire—Van Been (Bradley).

In a sensationally fought game which went into an overtime period, the Bluejays of Creighton University last night defeated the Billikens of St. Louis University, 34 to 31, in a Valley Conference basketball game.

It was the second victory for Creighton here in two days as it won from the Washington Bears at the Field House, Friday night. The defeat was the third in conference play for the Billikens, who have two decisions to their credit.

St. Louis trailed, 17 to 13, after the first half of play and, at one stage in the second period were behind by 11 points but they rallied strongly toward the end of the regular time when baskets by Hasser and Dudenhoeffer and two free throws by Bill Cochran tied the count at 29-29 with two seconds to go.

Free Throws Decide Outcome.

In the final period, the Billikens gathered but two points on a long shot by Bill Cochran while Creighton collected five on three free throws and a long shot by Roh.

Roh, with 16 points, was the Creighton top-scorer, Denny Cochran leading the Billikens with eight.

The battle was part of a doubleheader, the first game of which went to Washington over Washburn.

Shortly after mid-time in the first period, Robino's free throw gave the Blue Jays a one-point lead which was increased when Shaw sank a sleeper shot. With seven minutes to go, the Nebraskans were three points to the good.

Brooks cut this lead with his second basket of the game on a set-up chance but Roh scored a third basket from the side. Then, a free throw by O'Sullivan and an extra long one from center by Denny Cochran evened things up at 11-11 with three minutes of the period remaining.

Monteen entered the game, replacing Kittleson, and sank one which was followed by a successful shot from the far side by Shaw and one from near center-floor by Roh. With five seconds of the half left, Brooks got his third of the period which made the score 17 to 13, Creighton up at the end of the half. This was the same first-half margin the Blue Jays had over the Bears the previous night—four points.

Billikens Miss Shots.

Opening the second half, Roh was first to score getting his two points from far-center. The St. Louis passing was off in the early minutes and they also were forced into long tries which didn't hit.

The Billikens appeared upset by the steadiness of the Creighton defense and, for a minute or two, played wildly.

Tom Fleming closed the gap a bit more with a basket and the Blue Jays were only six up. The Billikens were closer when Bill Cochran got a free throw. Shaw connected for a set-up shot and the Creighton margin was seven points at the 15-minute mark. The cash-register showed the Blue Jays with 28, the Billikens with 21 points.

Bill Cochran Ties Score.

Hasser came in the game for the Billikens for Brooks, who had played since the start of the game and aided materially in Denny Cochran's basket. The battle became rough toward the last and the floor was well-occupied much of the time.

Hasser's side shot put the Billikens only four points behind with three minutes to go and they were only two to the bad when Les Dudenhoeffer sank a long one.

Only two minutes and 30 seconds were left when Engebretson fouled Bill Cochran and Bill made good on two free throws to tie the score at 29-29.

In the last minute both teams fought furiously but neither was able to break the deadlock and the game went into overtime.

After a two-minute rest, the teams went into a five-minute overtime period.

Creighton took possession and missed two fairly easy shots. The St. Louis guarding was close, but

200 ENTRIES IN SILVER SKATES MEET

All Set for the Starter's Gun

WRAY'S COLUMN

Quiet on the Eastern Front.

THERE'S a strange quiet along the Eastern front. With a world championship fight only 10 days distant, the voice of the press agent is still. We haven't heard the beat of a single tom tom. And we wonder why no ballyhoo.

The "super fighter" Joe Louis is to battle the light-heavyweight champion John Henry Lewis—a meeting widely discussed in the days when it was a purely hypothetical case. Now that the match is a fact we hear little about it.

Perhaps the answer is reflected in the comment of a writer in a sports periodical when he called attention to the short price laid against the world champion Louis. "The odds are 1 to 6 that Joe will knock the "H" out of John Henry."

Which he meant was that if you want to bet on Joe Louis you'll have to put up $6 to win $1—something not even a guy just escaped from his keeper would do. It shows, however, how professional betting commissioners view the match. They don't want to handle any money on Louis.

Curtains for John Henry?

THE SITUATION is highly important for John Henry inasmuch as he is now facing the possibility of losing not only his heavyweight title fight with Louis, but his own 175-pound crown as well. One of the reports circulated recently is that Lewis will not be able to fight in the light-heavyweight class any more because of increasing weight.

John Henry battles best at about 185 pounds now and is said to be finding serious difficulty in getting down to 175. If he loses his title and fails to whip Joe, there'll be no place for John Henry to go but out.

METZ SHOOTS 65 TO TAKE LEAD IN $5000 OPEN

By the Associated Press.

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 14. — Two par-shattering scores, changed the golfing picture here today as the field marched through the third round of the 72-hole, $5000 Oakland Open tournament.

Setting the pace at the three-quarters pole was handsome Dick Metz of Chicago, with a 54-hole total of 204. His five under par 65 would have been the talk of the tournament had not E. J. "Dutch" Harrison of Oak Park, Ill., barged in just ahead with a super-golfing effort of 64.

These two rounds set the stage for a new leader and a runner-up in the 18-hole drive down the home stretch tomorrow, at the end of which the winner will find a purse of $1200 waiting.

Metz moved from a tie for fifth place into the leadership. Except for a bogey four on the seventeenth, when he hooked an iron shot, he

Madeline Horn Breaks Record In Minneapolis

By the Associated Press.

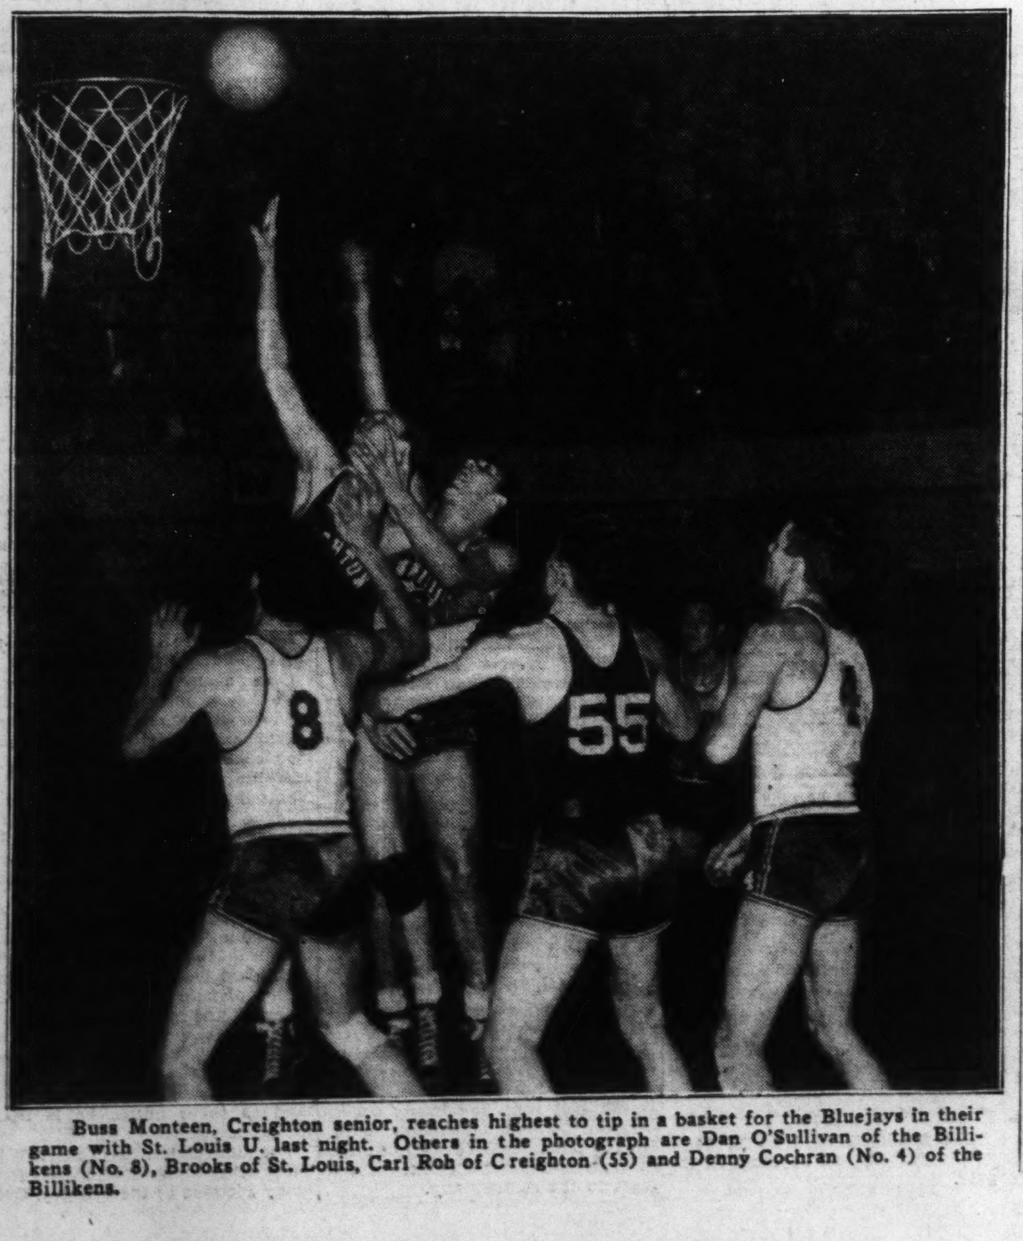
MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 14. MADELINE HORN, Beaver Dam, Wis., bettered the senior women's National outdoor three-quarter mile record in the Ten Thousand Lakes speed skating championships which opened here today.

Miss Horn made the distance in 2 minutes, 15.5 seconds. The old mark of 2:17 was held by Dorothy Franey of St. Paul. Miss Horn led the field today with 50 points. Mary Dolan, Minneapolis, and Dorothy Kielty, Minneapolis, tied for second with 30 each.

In the senior men's events, Leo Freisinger, Chicago, scored 45 points. Byron Moe, St. Paul; Stan Bachinsky, Winnipeg, and Ken Bartholomew, Minneapolis, tied for second with 30 each. Vic Ronchetti, Chicago, had 20, and Frank Stack, Sudbury, Ont., 15.

The meet will end tomorrow.

He Reached Highest — And Scored



Buss Monteen, Creighton senior, reaches highest to tip in a basket for the Bluejays in their game with St. Louis U. last night. Others in the photograph are Dan O'Sullivan of the Billikens (No. 8), Brooks of St. Louis, Carl Roh of Creighton (55) and Denny Cochran (No. 4) of the Billikens.

VENZKE WINS THREE-QUARTER MILE EVENT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. — In a near photo-finish with Leslie MacMitchell, brilliant New York University freshman, veteran Gene Venzke of the New York A. C. tonight set a new Armory record of 3 minutes 7.2 seconds in capturing the featured three-quarter mile run at the annual track meet of the Sixty-ninth Regiment A. A.

The promising youngster and the popular winged footer dominated the running all the way. MacMitchell jumped into the lead at the gun, held it for the first three and a half laps, and then clung to Venzke's heels like a plaster as they whirled through the final four circuits on the new Armory floor. The former mark, set last year by Lou Burns, was 3:11.8.

Archie San Romani, American 3000-meter record holder, was third, with Lieut. Richard Bauer of the Shore A. C., Elberon, N. J., fourth, and Howard Borck of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, national 800-meter champion, a bad last.

Don Lash, the Indiana State policeman, ran the same type of race he had a week ago in taking the two-mile special in 9:17.4, far slower than his 1938 meet mark of 9:11. The sandy-haired Hoosier led his former Indiana University teammate, Tommy Deckard, set all the pace, then came around going into the bell lap to win by 10 yards. Deckard was second, George DeGeorge of the New York A. C., third, Joe McClair, intercollegiate outdoor two-mile champion, fourth, and John Wall of the San Francisco Olympic Club fifth and last.

Wesley Wallace, flashy Fordham junior who a week ago set a new world record for 500 meters, came up from second place on the back stretch to pass Lou Burns of the 69th Regiment and go on to win the 600-yard run in 1:13.5, one and one-tenth seconds under his Armory record time of a year ago. By his victory he gained permanent possession of the Rainbow Division trophy.

21 CLEVELAND SPEEDSTERS TOP VISITING TEAMS

St. Louis' one and only big speed skating show of the year—the Silver Skates carnival—will be presented by the Missouri Skating Association this afternoon at the Arena, with approximately 200 entrants expected to compete for men's and women's titles in senior, junior, intermediate and juvenile divisions. The first heat is scheduled for 2 p. m.

Several nationally prominent skaters from out-of-town will compete for "open titles," while skaters from this area may compete in both the open events and other "closed races" in which Missouri championships are at stake.

A group of 21 skaters is entered from Cleveland, headed by the men's Silver Skates titleholder, Darrell Albrecht. Also in the Cleveland delegation are Agnes O'Sicky, who recently defeated Miss Betty Boehmer, who won the women's title last year; Larry Doran, winner of intermediate open honors here last year, and Frank Daily.

Edith Baum of Pittsburgh, Pensylvania senior champion, will compete in the women's open division, as will Eleanor Thiel Dyer, Elaine Bogda and Genevieve Swierkos, all of Chicago. Other Chicago men entered, are Bernie Cannata and Lowell Miller.

A formidable team is also entered from Urbana and Champaign, in the name of the "U-C" club.

Figure skating will also be included in the program. Ruth English and Lou Pitts, midwest pairs champions, will give an exhibition, while a special waltz number will feature 24 local couples. Twelve girls will give a "jitterbug dance."

Of the 200 entries, about 80 will take part in fancy skating exhibitions and 123 in the speed events. There are 34 events on the long program, the last being the awarding of the various trophies.

Chief hopes of St. Louis are Lou Schneider, city champion; Bob North, Weber Ley, Jim McCane, Bud Handlan and Elsie Laskowitz. A competitor in the juvenile division is Billy Hornsby, son of the former Cardinal and Brown baseball star.

Today's is the fourteenth annual carnival of its kind here. Officials will include Ted Young, president of the Missouri Skating Association; Henry Kemper, Art Willow, August Kron Jr., Earl Reflow, Dr. S. E. Fendler, Charles Gevecker and Lamar Ottsen.

United Service Five Loses, 50-27, To Bartlesville

By the Associated Press.

BARTLESVILLE, Ok., Jan. 14.—Bartlesville's Phillips team of the Missouri Valley A. A. U. basketball league defeated United Service of St. Louis, 50 to 27, in an exhibition here tonight.

Phillips ran up a 9-0 lead in the first five minutes but St. Louis chopped that margin to two points at end of first half which ended with Phillips in front, 17 to 15.

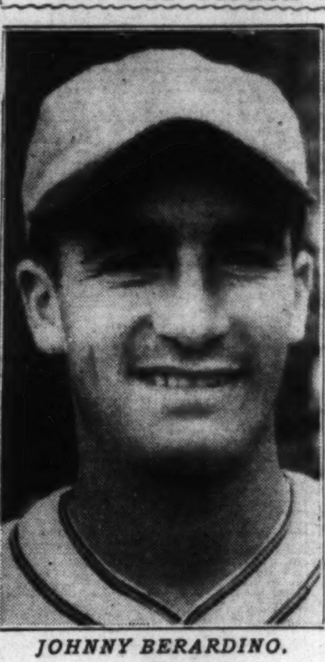
"With This Man, The Browns Need No Joe Gordon"



JOHNNY BERARDINO.

The high tribute above was paid to the infielder, who played second base for San Antonio last season, by Scout Ray Cahill. Bernadino will go to training camp with the St. Louis American League club.

BROWNS BUY HARD-HITTING TEXAS LEAGUER

Johnny Berardino, second baseman of the 1938 San Antonio club of the Texas League, who showed so much skill last season that Scout Ray Cahill made the rather startling remark that the Browns "didn't need a Joe Gordon," has been purchased by the St. Louis Americans and will report to Manager Fred Haney at the San Antonio training camp.

Berardino, a 21-year-old Italian from California, was playing baseball as a sophomore at the University of Southern California when Scout Willis Butler found him. Butler and Jack Fournier signed him to a Brownie contract and the young man was sent to Johnstown, Pa., where he hit .336 in 91 games, collecting 12 home runs, 24 doubles and four triples.

Stole 20 Bases Last Year.

Moving to the Texas League, Berardino continued to improve and now is considered the most important development of the Brownie farm sytem under the Barnes-DeWitt ownership. In 141 games for San Antonio he batted .310 and was considered one of the best second sackers ever developed in the league, according to the Browns. His 172 hits included 41 doubles, two triples and 13 home runs. He stole 20 bases and was caught stealing eight times. He was fifth among the 20 Texas League batters who finished with .300 or better in 100 or more games.

Berardino comes from the same California Italian settlement that gave baseball Frankie Crosetti, Tony Lazzeri, Joe and Vince DiMaggio. He is continuing his studies at Southern California and hopes to move into the sports phase of journalism when he has played out his string on the diamond.

As Cahill Sees Him.

According to Scout Cahill, Berardino has all the qualifications.

"He's a scrappy ball player, loves the game and despises defeat," Ray eulogizes. "He has a fine throwing arm, a big pair of hands, worlds of power at bat and I'd rank him as the outstanding second baseman in our organization since I've been scouting for the Browns. He may not make it his first year—I know it's a big hurdle—but he'll make it this year or next."

FOUR CARDINALS SIGNED, ALL BUT ONE RECRUITS

Only five Cardinals are under contract for 1939 and Jimmy Brown is the only member of the 1938 Redbird team in the fold, Ed Staples, director of information for the St. Louis club, informed the Post-Dispatch last night.

Jimmy Brown, infielder, journeyed from his Jamesville, N. C., home Friday and signed his contract, and four Cardinal recruits decorated the dotted line last fall. The four are Pitchers Tom Sunkel and Morton Cooper, Catcher Sam Narron and Shortstop Frank Crespi. Narron was with Rochester last year, Crespi played at Springfield, Mo., spending the last part of the season with the Cardinals, and Sunkel and Cooper were with Atlanta and Houston respectively.

Uncle Tom Sunkel.

Sunkel and Cooper are considered prominent candidates for places on the 1939 pitching staff.

Score at half—Washburn 8; Washington 15.

Referee—Gaines (Illinois). Umpire—Newsom (Central).

By James M. Gould

Showing great improvement in their play over the night before, the Washington University Bears last night defeated the Ichabods of Washburn College, 40 to 19, in a Missouri Valley Conference game. The Bears led, 15 to 8, at half-time and scored 25 points in the second period while their opponents were gathering only 11.

It was the third Valley victory for the Bears this season against two defeats. Bill Ferfecky, with 13, and Dolf Uhlmeyer, with 10 points, led the Washington scorers, while Mackey and Amsbaugh, each with six, topped Washburn.

The game was witnessed by 2500 fans at the St. Louis U. gym and was part of a doubleheader, which included a battle between Creighton and St. Louis University.

Five Missed Free Throws.

In the first game, play started slowly, with five fouls called in the first two minutes, three of them on Washburn, but all five free throws were missed. Then Mackey opened with a basket for Washburn. The Bears took the lead almost immediately with a free throw by Warner and a pair of baskets by Ferfecky, followed by a nice floor shot by Warner. After four minutes of play the Bears were leading, 7-2.

By the time the first period was half completed, the Bears had held the Ichabods to two field goals and Washington had a 10-6 advantage. Most of the play was in Washburn territory.

Lee was very helpful in this half to the Bears on his recoveries from the backboard, and, in general play, the Bears had all the better of the first-half going. At the end of the period, Washington held the lead, 15 to 8.

Runaway in Second Half.

After the intermission, Lee started at center and Gilles at guard for the Bears. Washburn started this period at a faster pace but the old fault of inaccuracy hurt the club. The Ichabods did score first, however, on two free throws by Ostemeyer, but Ferfecky nullified this with a shot from the floor. Amsbaugh and Gerst then exchanged field goals and a Washburn free throw by Sanneman made the count, 19-13, Washington, after 5 minutes of play.

The next five Washington points were scored by Lee, who has greatly improved since the season opened. After eight minutes, the Bears were nine points to the good, 26 to 17, following a nice one-handed shot from the side by Bill Ferfecky.

At the 10-minute mark, Warner went out of the Washington picture with four personals and Uhlemeyer replaced him to immediately get hot and sink a couple from the floor and, with eight minutes of play remaining, the Bears were 14 points to the good, 32 to 18.

In the last six minutes of the game, the Bears added eight points while holding the Ichabods to a single marker for a 40 to 19 verdict and their third Valley victory of the season.

Col. Jake Ruppert's Funeral Tomorrow

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Messages of condolence and eulogy from all parts of the nation continued to pour in today to the Fifth avenue apartment where rested the body of Col. Jacob Ruppert, baseball and real estate magnate and brewer.

Col. Ruppert died yesterday at the age of 71, after a long illness which followed a vigorous life in which the Colonel's greatest pride was not the immense fortune he amassed, but rather his New York Yankees, one of baseball's great teams.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith headed a list of honorary bearers for the Colonel's funeral on Monday.

FLYERS TO DEFEND TWO-GAME LEAD AGAINST GREYHOUNDS

KANSAS CITY RECENTLY WON THREE IN ROW

Hergert, With Eight Goals and 23 Assists, Leads Home Players in Individual Scoring Records.

By W. J. McGoogan

Seeking their twelfth straight victory on home ice, the Flyers tonight oppose the Kansas City Greyhounds at The Arena in the first of three games which the St. Louis club has scheduled this week. They play at Wichita Thursday, at Kansas City Saturday, then return home to face the Tulsa Oilers next Sunday night.

The Flyers are two full games ahead of Minneapolis, the second place club, while Kansas City is still mired in last place.

It will be the seventh meeting of the season between the Greyhounds and the Flyers. In the six previous contests the Flyers have won five out of six, defeating Kansas City in three out of four games played in Kansas City, and winning the two contests played here.

Greyhounds Learn How to Win.

The Greyhounds are a better club than they have appeared to be all season and in their last appearance here they showed signs of coming to life. They have been winning regularly of late, capturing three games in succession recently.

The most recent individual scoring marks, just issued and including games of Thursday, show that Fred Hergert is the leading point-getter for the Flyers with eight goals and 23 assists for fourth place in the association standing.

Fido Purpur is leading in the number of goals scored by members of the local team, however, with 15, and with his 13 assists has 28 points and holds eighth place while Bill Hudson is tied for thirteenth position with 23 points, from 13 goals and 10 assists.

The Stiles Turn Faster.

That the hockey fans of St. Louis appreciate a winning team is disclosed by the attendance here this season, which shows that the Flyers have played to 81,690 persons in 11 games. Last season 67,215 attended the first 11 contests. That is an increase in attendance of 14,475 over the 1937-38 season thus far. Last winter, of course, the club was bothered considerably by labor trouble at The Arena.

It is significant that the Minneapolis Millers have been by far the best drawing card here, playing to 26,392 persons in three contests and setting a new paid attendance record here last Sunday night for the Flyers when the attendance totaled 12,095. The fans like the smashing, rushing type of hockey the Millers play.

OZARK A. A. U. BASKET DOUBLEHEADER TONIGHT

The Ozark A. A. U. will hold its weekly basketball doubleheader at the Bethany gymnasium, Clay and Natural Bridge, tonight. In the first game at 7:45 o'clock, the Bill Binigs will oppose the Greenville Shells. An hour later, the Y. M. H. A. team will play the Madison Laheys.

LEAD AT STAKE IN THREE MEN'S MUNY LEAGUES

The lead in each of the three divisions of the men's Municipal Basketball Association will be at stake in this week's sixth round games at Sherman Park. The Concord and Forsom divisions will play tomorrow with the Central Division playing on Tuesday night. Games in each league are booked for 8 and 9 o'clock.

In the Concord Division tomorrow, the Sokols will try to pin the season's first defeat on the Nifty Nickels in an 8 o'clock contest on the south court. The first four individual scorers of this division will oppose each other: Chester Payne and Ray January of the Nifties and William Petelik and Miro Hurych of the Sokols, who rank in that order. In the 9 o'clock game in this league, St. Ann plays the Overland Business Men.

Two of three teams tied for Forsom Division leadership—Western and St. Francis Xavier, meet in an 8 o'clock game on the north court tomorrow. St. Francis will be striving to reverse a one-point, 22-21 defeat of a previous meeting. At 9 o'clock, the other first-place club—Frant Rank—has a rugged foe in fourth-place Shamrock A. C. The latter team lost to the Front Ranks by only three points in an earlier encounter and were defeated by only one point by St. Francis.

Anything is likely to happen in the Central Division Tuesday night because the teams are so closely bunched. The United Service and Underwoods share first place only a half game ahead of the Bill Binigs and Y. M. H. A. who equally are tied for third place. The Uniteds battle the Binigs at 8 o'clock and the "Y" skirmishes with the Underwoods at 9 o'clock. In previous meetings the Uniteds won from the Binigs by three points, 24-21, and the "Y" lost to the Underwoods, 30-28.

The schedule:

TOMORROW.

At Sherman Park—Concord division on south court—Nifty Nickles vs. Sokols, 8 p. m.; Overland Business Men vs. St. Anns, 9 p. m.

Forsom division on north court—St. Francis Xavier vs. Western Blow, 8 p. m.; Shamrock A. C. vs. Front Rank, 9 p. m.

TUESDAY.

Central division on south court—United Service vs. Bill Binigs, 8 p. m.; Y. M. H. A., vs. Underwoods 9 p. m.

ST. LOUIS U. BOOKS HOCKEY SERIES WITH UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS

The Billiken hockey squad will oppose its first out-of-state intercollegiate opponent, the University of Illinois team at the Arena Feb. 21. Arrangement of that date and of Feb. 24 for a home and home series with the Big Ten team was announced by Athletic Director Cecil E. Muellerleile yesterday. Washington's birthday, will be a doubleheader with Washington University and Concordia clashing in the opener.

St. Louis U. will play its next league game against Concordia tomorrow without the services of Russ Hibbert, goalie, who will be taking a final examination. In the other league contest, Octopus will oppose Washington U.

North Central College Wins.

NAPERVILLE, Ill., Jan. 14.—North Central College's swimming team defeated Armour Tech, 44 to 31, today. Hal Hennings, North Central ace, scored 12 points, as did Tech's Dodge.

WRAY'S COLUMN

John Henry has a good chance to outpoint Joe. The majority believes that not only does Joe enjoy too great an advantage in weight and size, but that he carries altogether too heavy artillery for his rival.

John Henry has had even more experience in the ring than Joe and he is a very cagey scrapper. However, he has had difficulty in whipping some rather ordinary foes and even old Isidro Gastanaga had him down, in their fight in Detroit.

Should Be a Sellout.

ONE REASON WHY the ballyhoo is not sounding off is that the promoters expect the show to be a sellout. Madison Square Garden can't accommodate more than 20,000 or so—and under championship conditions Uncle Mike Jacobs should turn customers away.

There's one little doubt lurking around, however. This is the very first time in the history of the United States that two Negroes have fought for the world title. Naturally promoters are wondering how it will take.

When Jack Johnson was champion there were plenty of capable Negro opponents available—Sam Langford, Joe Jeanette, Sam McVea and even Harry Wills were contemporaneous. But promoters didn't like the idea of matching them. Johnson therefore had an easy time of it.

Johnson in fact won his title abroad, defended it abroad (in the only all-Negro heavyweight championship fight on record against Jim Johnson, in Paris) and lost it outside of the United States—to Willard, in Cuba.

Our guess is that the first fight of the kind in this country will attract a capacity crowd. It may even turn out to be a pretty good battle.

He Hasn't the Goods.

TOMMY FARR hasn't what it takes to become a champion, or even a top rank fighter—a hard punch. He has courage, stamina and considerable skill, but in five fights in the United States he has been beaten five times.

He lacks punching power. Fighters today can't expect to wow the crowd or go places unless they have the authority in one or both gloves. A public spoiled by the super-hitting of Dempsey and Louis, can't work up a thrill over tap-and-get-away stuff.

Mr. Sande Is Thinking.

EARL SANDE, trainer of Stagehand, probably is scratching his head today, while waiting for an idea. What to do about Stagehand is the problem with Earl. Send him after the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap prize, with Seabiscuit to beat, or take a chance at War Admiral in the $50,000 Hialeah feature, the Widener Handicap. The events will be run on the same day, March 4, on opposite shores of the continent.

Stagehand is now at Columbia, S. C., training. He is right close to Florida and that is one thing. But when Sande tackles the problem he wants to know which prize he has the better chance to win.

HE COULD LOOK AT IT this way, perhaps: In the $100,000 race he must defeat the great race horse Seabiscuit, carrying 128 pounds to his rival's 134. That's a difference of six actual pounds and five on a weight-for-age basis.

If he races in the Widener he meets the second best horse in the country, carrying 123 pounds to War Admiral's 131, a difference of eight actual and second on the scale in favor of Sande's horse.

"Therefore," Sande might argue, "I ought to try for the Widener $50,000 stakes. I get only five pounds from Seabiscuit and get seven pounds from War Admiral, which was beaten three lengths, equal weights, by Seabiscuit."

AND THAT, BOYS, seems to be the argument that will send Stagehand to match strides with War Admiral instead of the 'Biscuit.

It's No Cinch.

THERE ARE OTHER FACTS Trainer Sande will have to figure into his problem. Chief among them is the opposition to be faced to other than War Admiral.

In addition to the son of Man o'War, Stagehand will have to dispose of the Kentucky Derby winner Lawrin, which will be giving Sande's star one pound (124 to 123), Pasteurized, winner of the $50,000 Belmont Stakes (118 pounds), Bull Lea, winner of five big stakes last year (119) and some dangerous lightweighted three-year-olds.

Sande, with Stagehand, appears to be in the same fix as Gene Venske might be if given the option of racing Lovelock on the one hand or Cunningham and Wooderson on the other.

We wouldn't like to decide for either Sande or Venske.

Extremes Meet.

"WHAT WILL HAPPEN to the Yanks, with Jake Ruppert dead?" is the burning question. But, from where we sit, the hillbilly's reply seems to fit: "Hit don't make no difference."

A going concern, with the elderly but competent Ed Barrows carrying on, the Yankee Organization will continue to function at powerhouse speed, in all reasonable probability.

The odds will continue to be about 3 to 5 against the Yanks and the league still appears to have seven clubs in the second division just as last year.

If anything happens to it this year it will be because Father Time cuts down some of the big boys, not because the owner has passed on. Ruffing, Gehrig and others are no longer broilers—they might fold up this year. That would alter conditions seriously. But don't count on it.

The other extreme of the baseball picture is presented by the National League where the job of guessing the eventual winner is a matter for some super clairvoyance.

At this writing the betting commissioners take the stand that three N. L. teams are so close they are entitled to equal favoritism. The Cubs, the Giants and the Pirates are rated 5 to 2 equal choices with the Cincinnati Reds berthed in first division at 4 to 1.

The Cardinals are given a pretty fair chance to surprise the world, with 10 to 1 offered that they won't. Boston and Brooklyn are rated at 30 to 1 and the Phillies reached a new low in betting quotations at 500 to 1.

Try to get it! But that's the quotation just the same.

EVEN OUR BROWNS are more highly esteemed, the commissioners feeling that the team will finish last behind the Athletics at 200 to 1 odds.

If some of those minor league pitching prospects deliver and Buck Newsom comes through with another big year, the club may have possibilities.

But ace pitchers don't come up in bunches, especially from the Texas League.

METZ SHOOTS 65 TO LEAD OAKLAND GOLF

would have equalled the competitive course record. Harrison tied it with seven birdies, through some deadeye putting, and a remarkable recovery from a trap on the eighteenth, despite one slip when he three putted the tenth.

Harrison's feat moved him up from a tie for tenth yesterday into second position.

In third place was Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., with 206. Mark Fry of Oakland, followed with 207 and Marvin "Bud" Ward, Olympia (Wash.) amateur, was in fifth spot at 208. Hogan and Fry carded 68s and Ward a 70 today.

Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., leader at the halfway mark yesterday with 136, slipped badly to take a 73 and fall back into a sixth place tie with Jimmy Demaret, Houston, Tex., at 209.

Practically out of the running for first prize at the end of 54 holes were such noted performers as Sam Snead, West Virginia, who was the leading money winner of 1938; Harold McSpaden of Winchester, Mass.; Ed Dudley, Philadelphia, John Revolta, Evanston, Ill., and Harry Cooper, Chicopee, Mass. Snead and McSpaden were bracketed at 212; Dudley at 215; Revolta at 217; and Cooper at 218. Snead with a 74 today, experienced the most trouble, with missed putts and misdirected fairway shots.

THREE I LEAGUE WILL MEET TODAY TO DRAW UP SCHEDULE

By the Associated Press.

Every team in the loop will be represented and many of the "parent clubs" will have delegates at the business session Sunday.

High Schools to Play Two Games For Charity Fund

A charity high school basketball doubleheader will be held Saturday night at the Washington University Field House. In the first game, Central, City League leader, will oppose Webster Groves, and in the second contest, Cleveland will play University City.

Proceeds of the game, excepting expenses, will go to the National Program for Control of Infantile Paralysis. The games are being held at the request of the National Sports Council of which Grantland Rice is the chairman.

The admission will be 15 cents at the schools and 25 cents at the gate.

EIGHT MAJOR TEAMS TO TRAIN IN FLORIDA

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 14.—It will be a month before managers start separating the sheep from the goats, but a score of Florida cities are ready today for the spring training chores of eight major and 14 Class AA baseball clubs.

About Feb. 15 the first of the anxious rookies and the assured veterans will step out on the diamonds to prepare for the new season.

That will stir the old urge in fans throughout the nation but the real pre-season build-up will get going a couple of weeks later when the boys start tangling in exhibition games. About 100 of these are scheduled for Florida this year and several score more will be run off for the delight of the provinces as the major teams journey slowly northward for the April season openers.

The "Grapefruit League" remains only a sports writers' term this winter but there is a movement afoot to put the majors' games on a more formal basis next year, with standings being kept and the leading American and National League teams meeting in a "winter world series."

In general, the Class AA teams move into camp a couple of weeks later than the big fellows and remain in these parts about that much longer.

Burton Rallies To Beat Stein in Bowling Match

Nelson Burton, formerly of Dallas, Tex., and now a resident of St. Louis, defeated Otto Stein Jr., former national match game champion, in a 10-game bowling exhibition at the Burton-Gillett Recreation yesterday afternoon by a slim margin of eight pins. Burton toppled 2009 pin's to 2001 for Stein Jr.

Stein led his opponent through the first nine games and had a lead of 72 pins going into the final game, but Burton, after several mediocre scores, came through in the last game and scored 257 to win the match. Burton opened with a spare, strike and split, and then scored nine straight strikes for the 257-game. Stein toppled 177 in his final effort.

The match was a tune-up affair for both bowlers who will compete in the Petersen Bowling Classic at Chicago late this month.

Next Saturday, Burton will bowl Lowell Jackson, St. Louis singles champion, in a 10-game match at the Burton-Gillett alleys.

The scores:

Stein Jr. —	232	202	193	223	178
	213	182	198	203	177—2001
Burton— —	216	182	190	193	206

FIVE CARDINALS ARE SIGNED TO CONTRACTS

Sunkel, who appeared with the Redbirds late in 1937, was optioned to Atlanta and became the outstanding pitcher in the Southern Association. He won 21 and lost only five games and compiled an earned run average of 2.33, the best in the league. He also led the circuit with a winning percentage of .808, was high with 179 strikeouts and tied for first in games won. He is 26 years old, even if they do call him "Old Tom," weighs 190 pounds, stands an inch over six feet tall and resides in Paris, Ill.

Cooper, who hails from Independence, Mo., was the 1938 strikeout king of the Texas League. He was with the Cards for three weeks last fall and won two and lost one, pitching a three-hitter against the Phillies and holding the Cubs to one hit in three innings in the last game of the year. At Houston he won 13 and lost 10 and struck out 201 batters. He is 25 years old, six feet, one inch tall and weighs 165 pounds.

Two Who Can Hit.

Narron always has been what Senor Mike Gonzales would describe tersely as "good hit, no field."

Crespi, highly regarded by Branch Rickey, is 20 years old. He batted .287 at Springfield, and when he was summoned by the Cards last fall, he suffered from a severe case of stage fright and all his fingers became thumbs. In the minors he showed batting power, batting .287 and collecting 25 doubles, 14 triples and eight home runs.

Joe Dusek to Meet McMillen.

Jim McMillen's opponent in the main match of the wrestling card Wednesday night at the Coliseum will be Joe Dusek, Promoter Bill Schwabe announced last night. Dusek had been previously scheduled for the secondary finish match. On the rearranged card Young Joe Stecher and Alfredo Mandoza will meet in the semiwindup.

Pitching What Per Cent?

"You know what they say about pitching, I shouldn't wonder," said Charley Barrett, the Cardinals' chief scout, with a twinkle in his eye.

"Yes, pitching is 60 or 70 or 80 per cent of a baseball team," was the answer, "depending on whether you quote Addie Joss, the Little Old Lady of Threadneedle Street, or Jerome Herman Dean."

"That's right," Uncle Charley beamed. "I just want to be sure you had that in mind. Now here's one you can put down in your book, if you have a book. Once upon a time, not so long ago, or to be exact, in 1930, a ball club known as the Cardinals was just like Old McDonald. I mean they had a farm and it was at St. Joseph, Mo. They had more farms than McDonald, but this is the one I want to tell you about—St. Joseph.

Farm Hands All.

"On that St. Joseph farm was a ball club and, of course, there had to be pitchers. Who were they? Now we are getting hot, as the fat man said to the cannibals, who he wished hadn't had a pot to cook in. But to get back to the pitchers, they were William Lee, Jerome Herman Dean, Fritz Ostermueller, Ray "Peaches" Davis, Mace Brown and Jim Winford.

"How do you like that for a pitching staff? Bill Lee of the Cubs, the great Dizzy Dean, Ostermueller of the Red Sox, Davis of the Reds, Mace Brown of the Pirates and Winford, who is up again with the Dodgers. Doesn't that look like ready money on the hill? It surely does, but get ready for the kicker. That St. Joseph ball club finished last in an eight-club league, winning only 53 and losing 92 games, a percentage of .366. Now, don't take my word for it. Look it up and see if Heine Mueller's uncle isn't right."

It wasn't necessary to look it up. Charley Barrett is right so often. And sure enough the record book showed that the St. Joseph staff of 1930 did include all those on-their-way stars. Dizzy Dean, however, was the only one who performed like a great prospect. He won 17 and lost eight. Lee lost a game and won none. Ostermueller had a record of two won, 10 lost. Davis won three and lost seven, Winford won one and lost two and Brown, now a great relief pitcher with Pittsburgh, was charged with seven defeats and had not a single victory.

And if all those people are right about pitching being so important, the St. Joseph club of 1930 must have been rather—well, the Greeks probably had a word for it.

Teaching Umpires.

George Barr, who conducts a school for umpires each spring at Hot Springs, Ark., has reason to be proud of the record of his institution according to a prospectus George is sending to candidates and other interested persons: 76 men out of a total of 135 enrolled during the four years of the school, have gained places in organized baseball and of the 76 men, 27.6 per cent have advanced from one to three steps in league classification during their younger careers; 13.4 per cent have gained places in Class A leagues or higher and 7.9 per cent in Class A leagues. During the four years only 3.95 per cent of the Barr school "products" have been released.

Barr points out that the total of 76 includes men who gained positions as umpires with and without recommendations from the school and asserts that eliminating those who were not recommended, the "fired and demoted" figure would be almost nil.

Barr, incidentally, is doing something that baseball itself should have done many years ago. It is remarkable how difficult it is to find men qualified in knowledge of the game and human nature and in temperament, to umpire baseball games.

Local Boy, Etc.

Eddie Mulligan, a transplanted St. Louisan who has been living in California for the past 15 years, won out over 37 other applicants, including Willie Kamm, in getting the job of managing the Salt Lake City club of the newly organized Pioneer League. After having played several seasons of major league ball (White Sox and Pittsburgh) Mulligan landed in the Pacific Coast League in 1919-20. He has put in 17 years in Coast baseball, finishing up last season with the San Diego Padres with whom he played a good third base. His new berth is in a Class C league of six clubs: Boise, Lewiston, Pocatello, and Twin Falls, Idaho; Ogden and Salt Lake City, Utah.

Mulligan's name recalls to many St. Louisans the vision of a grand soccer brawl at old Athletic Park, at Garrison and North Market streets about 22 years ago. Eddie, one of the fastest as well as one of the most pugnacious among St. Louis' fast and pugnacious soccer players, made the mistake of leaping feet first into "Ponto" Palmer, goaltender of the old Innisfail club during the heat of a St. Louis Soccer League match. Before Eddie finished his leap, "Ponto," a brawny plasterer, was ready to show him his error. It was a very short but spectacular fight. "Ponto" started for Mulligan and Mulligan started for the gate. His playing engagement for the day was over.

In his last season of soccer here, played at old Cardinal Field, Eddie tended strictly to the business of getting the ball into the goal, leaving the fighting to the Marres, the Oellermanns, and the Kings. Baseball ruined the career of one of America's best outside rights for Eddie quit the kicking game while at the height of his career.

Frying Pan Mail.

Apparently Pro Bono Publico, Vox Populi and Beowulf Q. Phan are still weary after writing all the Christmas cards. They haven't written lately. And speaking of not writing, here are a few communications that haven't been written and probably won't have to be toted by Jim Farley's boys:

Dear Mr. Rickey: You know and I know I had a whale of a year in 1937, but as Charley Barrett says, it ain't what you used to be. And as I didn't hit in 1938 the way I should have hit, or the way I would like to have hit, it's perfectly all right if you take a hunk out of my contract buckerinoes this season. Send me any old contract and I'll deface it on the dotted line pronto and mail it back. Would $10,000 be asking too much? With lots of love,

JOE MEDWICK.

Dear Mr. Medwick: You are entirely too modest. Certainly you didn't hit in 1938 the way you hit in 1937. But I know you felt as badly about it as I did. Mr. Breadon and I insist that you take an increase, which will make your 1939 salary $25,000. With or without love.

BRANCH RICKEY.

Dear Frank Frisch: It certainly doesn't seem right for you to be out of the major league picture. I feel that we could use another coach at Brooklyn, as we have only Charley Dressen, Bill Killefer and Tony Lazzeri. So if you are interested, drop up and see me—but bring your own poison.

Ollie Haupt Is Champion Lee's Chief Rival in U. S. Tourney

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 14.—Young Robin Lee of St. Paul won't be old enough to vote for two more years—but he nevertheless is one of the real veterans in national sport circles.

Just 19 years old, Lee will be seeking his fifth straight national senior figure skating championship in the annual tournament here next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The event will be a prelude to St. Paul's annual winter carnival.

Ollie Haupt of St. Louis, who gave Lee a close race in the Midwestern tournament at Cleveland, is expected to provide the champion considerable opposition. Other entrants will include William J. Nagle of Manhattan, N. Y., and Eugene Turner of Los Angeles. Turner was the national junior champion in 1938 and automatically moves into the senior division.

Champion at 11 Years.

Lee became State figure skating champion when he was 11 years old; won the national junior title at 13, and has reigned the national senior division since he was 14.

Quiet and unobtrusive, young Lee has been preparing for defense of his title since late last summer and recently copped the Midwest championship at Cleveland to serve notice he is ready for all comers.

The figure skating event will include approximately 90 entries from many sections of the country. Competition will be in 10 divisions—senior men and women, junior men and women, novice men and women, senior pairs, junior pairs, dance pairs, and championship fours.

Three sessions are scheduled for each of the three days, with required exercises in [illegible] to count 60 per cent in the scoring. Free skating, [illegible] will make up the additional 40 per cent.

Jean Tozzer Defends.

Jean Tozzer of Boston, Mass., last year's senior woman champion, will try to defend her laurels against such entrants as Charlotte Walther of the New York Skating Club, 1938 junior titlist; Audrey Peppe of the New York Skating Club; Margaret Jane Vaughan of Philadelphia, and Polly Blodgett of Boston.

MISSOURI BEATS OKLAHOMA, 37-33, FOR BIG SIX LEAD

HARVEY SCORES WINNING POINTS IN OVERTIME

He Gets Two Goals in Extra Period for Total of 13 Points — Tison and McNatt Score 10 Each.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 14.—University of Missouri came from behind tonight to tie Oklahoma and then went into an overtime period to win, 37 to 33, before one of the largest crowds that ever saw a basketball game in Brewer Fieldhouse.

The victory, the Tigers' fifth consecutive, put Missouri out in front in the conference standings and left no doubt the Bengals are in the race for keeps.

Little Bill Harvey sparked the Tigers in their thrilling comeback scoring 10 points in the last 11 minutes, four of them in the overtime period.

Oklahoma took the game away from Missouri early in the first half and held it up until the last four minutes of the game. The Tigers then opened up the offense which it displayed against Iowa State Monday night and saw the score change from an Oklahoma lead of 28-17 to a Missouri lead of 29-28.

Jimmy McNatt of Oklahoma then dropped in a field goal that put the Sooners out in front for a minute. Harvey retaliated with a bucket that gave Missouri a short-lived lead. Mullen then scored a free throw which tied the game as the gun sounded.

Oklahoma scored first in the overtime as Marvin Snodgrass swished through a field goal and put the Sooners in front. Then, big Haskell Tison, who scored 10 of Missouri's points, scored two points to tie it up again.

It was then that Harvey took the game away from the Boy Scats, scoring two baskets for a Missouri victory.

Harvey was high point man with 13 points closely followed by Tison and McNatt with 10 points each.

The game was fast, but relatively free of fouls. Garnett Vorbin and Herb Scheffler of Oklahoma both left the game on fouls.

KEANEY NO. 1 IN DISTRICT LIST; STEPHENS OUT

Frank Keaney, former St. Louis University player, heads the men's singles ranking of the St. Louis District Tennis Association for 1938, announced yesterday by William Bell, Ranking Committee chairman. The list was approved by the District Executive Committee at its January meeting.

Second place in the singles list was awarded to Ray Wiese, former Washington University player. Teddy Eggmann, East St. Louisan, and Wayne Smith were placed third and fourth, respectively. Eggmann is a former Cornell tennis captain, while Smith was a member of the Washington University net squad five years ago.

The men's doubles list is headed by Keaney and Ward Parker. Herbert Weinstock and Joyce Portnoy were awarded second place, followed by the veteran team of Karl Kammann and Charles Barnes in third position.

Although he has won many tournaments in the district during the past four years, Keaney has never been placed No. 1 in the district singles list. One lone defeat in several instances deprived him of that honor.

Howard V. Stephens Jr. won the St. Louis District championship this year, defeating Keaney in the final round. Stephens, however, was not ranked, as he did not play in at least two tournaments here during the season. The Ranking Committee established the two or more tournament rule soon after its appointment early in the year.

The ranking follows:

MEN'S SINGLES.

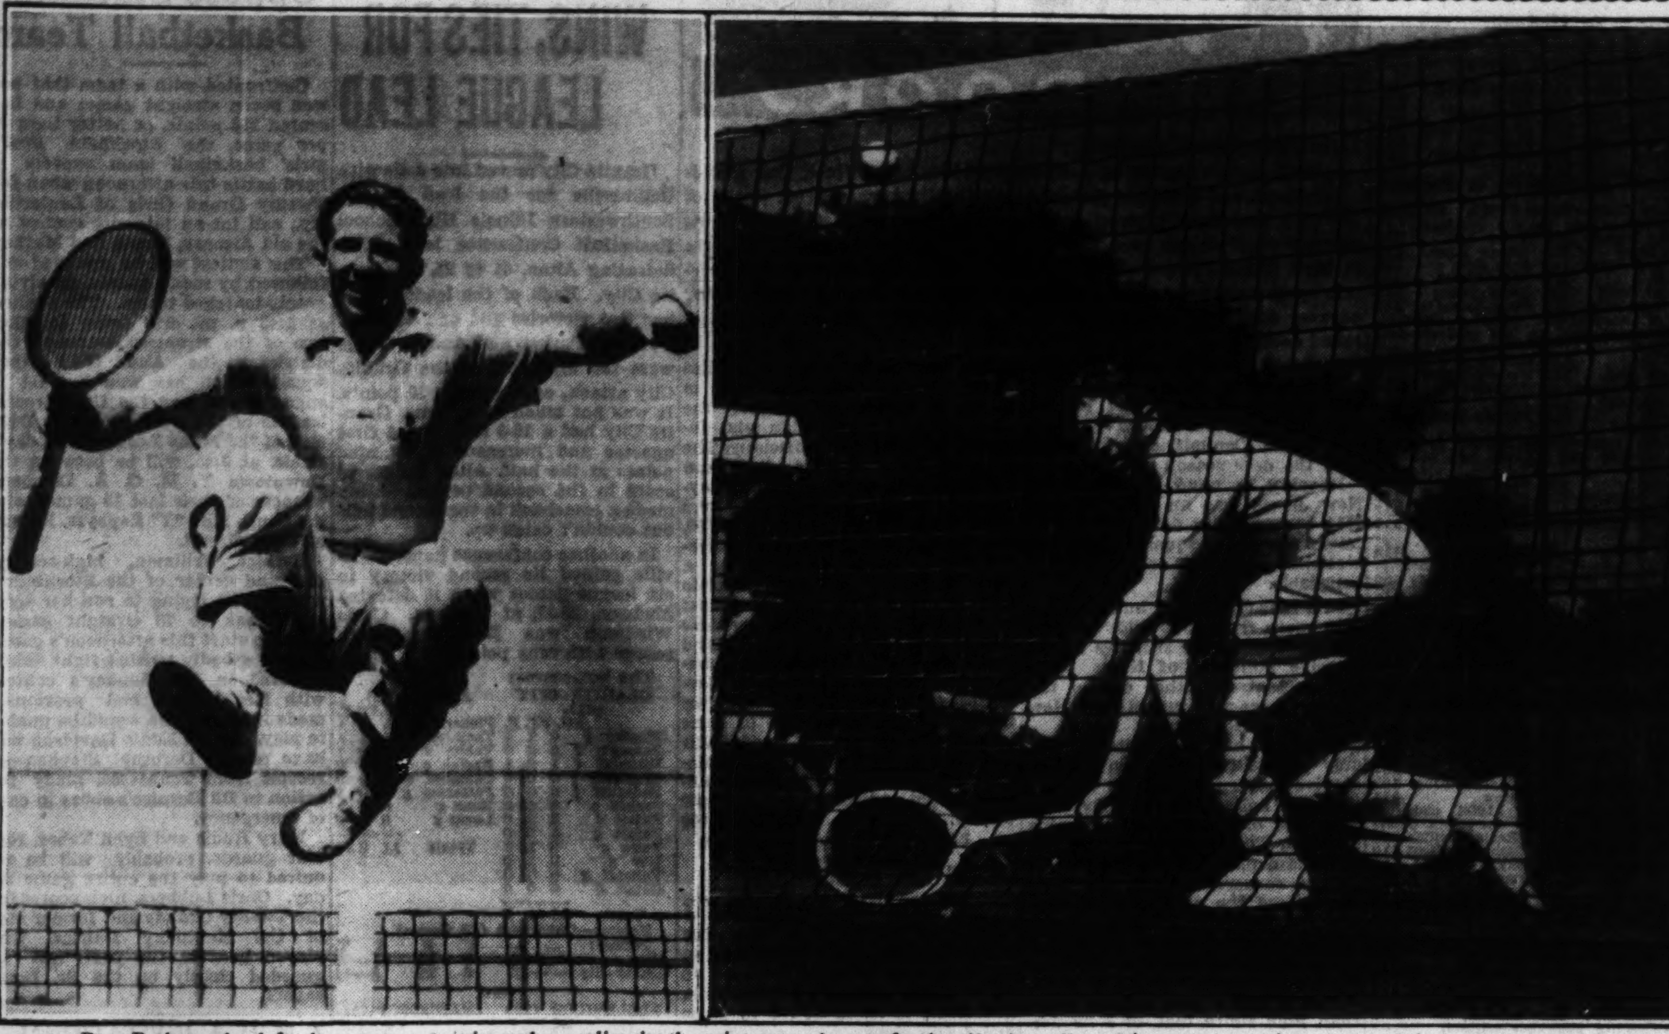
He Jumped...Into a Fine Net



Don Budge, who left the amateur tennis ranks earlier in the winter to play professionally, is well on h is way to setting a record for attendance for such exhibitions, according to press reports. With Ells worth Vines and some others, opening in Madison Squar e Garden in New York Jan. 3, Budge drew in enough customers to pay a total of $47,120 and the spectator s for six of their first seven meetings passed the 49,000 mark, with figures for an appearance at Cincinnati being not announced. Budge is scheduled to play a t the Washington Field House Tuesday night in the tent h program of the tour. The troupe is booked for Kansas City tomorrow evening.

Budge in Four Years Won 38 Tennis Titles

By Davison Obear

J. Donald Budge, red-haired Californian, wh owill make his first appearance on a St. Louis tennis court Tuesday night, won a total of 38 major amateur tournaments during four years of competition. Of the total, 15 were won in singles, 14 in men's doubles and nine in mixed doubles.

In addition to winning the United States national men's singles title in 1938, Budge added the Australian, British, French and Czecho-Slokanian championships. This surpassed Big Bill Tilden's record of winning the British, Australian and United States singles in one season.

Budge also distinguished himself in Davis Cup competition in 1937 and 1938. In those two years he was undefeated in ten singles contests and with Gene Mako won four out of five doubles matches. The lone doubles defeat was at the hands of the Australians, Adrian Quist and John Bromwich, in the challenge round at Philadelphia last September.

In his Davis Cup singles matches Budge gained victories over such leading international stars as Gottfried von Cramm of Germany, H. W. (Bunny) Austin of Great Britain and Jack Crawford of Australia. The Californian also eliminated Quist and Bromwich, Charles Hare of Great Britain, Henner Henkel, German star, and the Japanese, Fumituri Nakano and Jiro Yaagishi, in other Davis Cup contests.

Budge teamed with Mako, another Californian, to win 12 of the 14 doubles championships during the period from 1934 to 1938 inclusive. His partners in the mixed doubles were Alice Marble, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, Dorothy Workman and Mrs. John Van Ryn.

Ellsworth Vines, tall Californian, will be Budge's opponent in the feature of the professional tennis program at the Washington University Field House Tuesday night. Bruce Barnes and Dick Skeen, former Texans, are the other members of the troupe who will appear here.

Vines Beats Budge, Squares Series.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 14.—Ellsworth Vines, world's professional tennis champion, evened his series at four-all with Don Budge, former Davis Cup star, by taking a three-set match before 6000 persons tonight, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4.

The big red-head started out the first set by breaking Vines' service twice to win the first four games. Vines rallied to take the next two but Budge ran out the set in easy fashion. They split the first four games of the second set and then Vines broke Budge's service on the fifth when a netball dribbled over on game point. The pro champion ran out the next three games to win 6-2.

Twice in the third set Vines won games on net balls that just fell across, giving Budge no chance to return them. Working his ace service ball often, Vines built up a 3 to 1 lead in the final set and then alternated games at service to finish out the set at 6-4.

Burke to Drill at West End Today

Jackie Burke, Utah welterweight, who meets Fritzie Zivic, Pittsburgh, in the 10-round main event of Jack Callahan's card at the Coliseum Friday night, is scheduled to arrive here this morning and to work out at the West End Gymnasium at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Zivic is not expected for a day or two.

Burke will be making his first appearance here. He lists 68 fights in his record, boxing many of the better known welterweights and even middle weights, sometimes successfully, sometimes not.

Zivic is a very likely prospect for a welterweight championship contest with Henry Armstrong this spring or summer.

There are five contests on Callahan's program with Archie Moore, St. Louis Negro meeting Jack Moran Cleveland in a 10-round semifinal.

Jimmy Fields and Willie Daniels of Alton are to box five rounds with Eddie Lee opposing Dick Wells in one four-rounder and Jack Conway meeting Billy Born in another.

The Program

Fritzie Zivic, Pittsburgh, vs. Jackie Burke, Ogden, Utah, welterweights. Ten rounds.

Archie Moore, St. Louis, vs. Jack Moran, Cleveland, middleweights. Ten rounds.

Jimmy Fields, St. Louis, vs. Willie Daniels, Alton. Middleweights. Five rounds.

Eddie Lee, St. Louis, vs. Dick Wells, St. Louis. Featherweights. Four rounds.

Jack Conway, St. Louis, vs. Billy Born, Belleville, Ill. Featherweights. Four rounds.

WESTERN BEATS PRINCIPIA IN THREE SPORTS

"Principia day" at Western Military Academy yesterday turned out to be a banner day for the Alton Cadets, for Western defeated Principia in swimming 50 to 16; in soccer, 6 to 1, and in "A" basketball, 23-20, in ABC League matches. In class B basketball Western also won, 21-13, but its C quintet lost to Principia, 27-5.

Western and Principia are the only ABC schools which have swimming teams, but Western proved far superior, winning six of eight events, including the 150-yard medley and 160-yard free style relays. Welti of Principia won the 100-yard breast stroke race and Williams of the St. Louis school the 100-yard back stroke event.

Pablo Leon, whose home is Mexico City, led the Western soccer team to victory as it scored twice in each of the first two quarters to take a lead that was never threatened. Leon made three of the winners' goals and Molasky booted in two shots.

In the A basketball game, Griffith led Western's scorers with four field goals and as many free throws for 12 points.

18 Points Made by Basketball Player; Team Wins, 18-13

By the Associated Press.

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 14.

WHEN a basketball player makes 18 points in a game, he usually rates some kind of notice. That's what Eugene Paulson, forward of the SS. Peter and Paul quintet, did in a contest here today with the St. Margaret Mary team. Paulson's 18 tallies represented his team's victory, for the SS. Peter and Paul team won, 18 to 13.

N. Y. GIANTS AND ALL-STARS TO PLAY TODAY

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14.—Football bids a belated farewell here tomorrow when the New York Giants, champions of the National Professional League, and a powerful aggregation of pro players comprising an all-star team, meet at Wrigley Field.

Revamped for the event, the park will accommodate 30,000 spectators, and sponsors of the game remained confident of a sell-out throng. Sanctioned by the National League as the only post-season appearance of the champions permitted, the game's profits have been dedicated to a charitable organization.

Predictions that the battle would be hard fought came from both camps, where for two weeks or more the squads have been training. Ray Flaherty, coach of the Washington Redskins, and Elmer (Gus) Henderson, erstwhile coach of the Los Angeles Bulldogs and newly signed by the Detroit Lions, are in charge of the All-Americans, while Steve Owen came out to guide his Giants.

Probable starting lineups:

N. Y. GIANTS	Pos.	ALL-STARS
Howell	L. E.	/Tinsley
Widseth	L. T.	Stydahar
Tuttle	L. G.	Gentry
Hein	C.	Wiatrak

ZELTMAN CLUB CAN WIN TITLE AT SHERMAN

Pat Ballesty, manager of the Beltmar club, has hopes of prolonging the group championship race at Sherman Park this afternoon by defeating the Zeltman club but most Sherman soccer fans anticipate another Zeltman victory which would clinch the title. Three games remain on the Municipal Soccer Association schedule after today's program, which means that a maximum eight points can be won by any club before the close of the season. Zeltmans before today's game lead by eight points. If the Beltmars can win or tie today the race remains open.

Complications may develop at Carondelet Park where the Nebcos have added three new players to their roster in a last desperate effort to interrupt the title drive of the champion Schumacher club.

The Moloneys, leaders in the Group Two race at Fairground, get a good break when their closest rivals, Micelis and Kriegshausers, meet each other while the leaders oppose the tailend St. Teresas. This group may battle down to the last Sunday, to establish a pennant winner.

Today's schedule:

SENIOR DIVISION.

Carondelet Park No. 1.

Max Baer and Nova Signed to Fight May 25

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, and Lou Nova, promising California contender for the title, today was signed by Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club for a 15-round bout at the Yankee Stadium, May 25. The winner likely will get a shot at Joe Louis' heavyweight crown in September.

Terms of the contracts for the two fighters were not announced.

The fight has been one of the most talked-of battles in boxing circles here in recent months. Baer, a more serious boxer than the man who made a poor showing in being knocked out by Joe Louis, was impressive in his last comeback effort against Farr. Nova is the most promising of the younger heavyweights.

Illinois Five Wins.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14. — Illinois' basketball team, with Bill Hapac bagging 17 points, easily won its second Big Ten victory tonight by defeating Chicago, 43 to 33.

BILLIKENS LOSE TO CREIGHTON FIVE 34-31

after two minutes, Bill Cochran fouled Robino and the Creighton guard made the free throw good. Roh then connected for a long one for a three-point Creighton lead. This was cut to a point by Bill Cochran's tip-in after Dudenhoeffer missed a foul try.

Robino made good a free throw with 50 second to go and Robino made another two seconds before the gun. Thus, the victory went to Creighton, 34-31 after a great tussle.

WHERE is the crown that to me was so dear?
Farr, Farr away; Farr, Farr away;
Why do my hopes for the future appear
Farr, Farr away; Farr away?
Why does Dame Fortune persistently frown
On my attempts in pursuit of renown?
Gone are my hopes of annexing the crown
Farr, Farr away, Farr away.

String Unbroken.

Although "Red" Burman got the verdict, the crowd booed the decision for nearly five minutes, which many think is the booing record for Madison Square Garden. In fact, Joe Gould, Farr's manager, asked the New York Commission to reverse the verdict. As no title was involved, the Comish will probably lay off.

Since trying his fortunes in the American ring, Tommy has lost five out of five, but he intends to fight it out on those lines until he catches up with the law of averages.

There is an old axiom that you can't win 'em all, and by the same token it is a poor rule that won't work both ways.

After viewing the Burman-Farr fight, the experts agreed that "Red" may be a protege of Jack Dempsey but is not another Jack Dempsey.

It fact, it might be said without fear of contradiction that Jack is the last of the Dempseys as far as the p. r. is concerned.

Even at the ripe old equine age of 22, Man O'War still looks like a million dollars to Mayer.

On the other hand, that offer might have been only a publicity stunt. Bing Crosby would sell Mr. Mayer all the racehorses he wants for a whole lot less than a million bucks a head.

As a matter of fact, there are days when also-runners could be bought for a dime a dozen. But there would be no Man O'Wars in the bunch.

When told about a hen that laid seven eggs in one day, Angus McTavish said that wasn't so hot. One day when he was about to sink a seven-foot putt, a hen walked across the green and laid a stymie.

GOSUM WINS $10,000 RACE AT SANTA ANITA; FAVORITES FAIL

ESPOSA AND HEELFLY ARE OUT OF MONEY

No Dice Is Length Back in Second Place and Quick Devil Third — Main Man Fades.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14. — Shoving the big-name favorites far into the background, Nelson A. Howard's Gosum captured the $10,000 San Pasqual Handicap at Santa Anita Park today as Main Man, Esposa, Heelfly and other short-priced topnotchers ran out of the money.

Jockey Archie Gray booted Gosum into a sensational burst of speed in the last sixteenth of the mile and one-eighth race and came on in to win by a length over A. A. Baroni's No Dice.

Further confounding the handicappers, Louis B. Mayer's Quick Devil ran third as the rest of the eligibles for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap trailed in.

Esposa, the mare owned by William Zeigler, which had been installed a 5-2 favorite, finished tenth, while Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Heelfly was tabbed in the seventh position.

Main Man, Quick Devil's stablemate, had a length lead going into the stretch, but faded and was ninth to the wire.

Major Austin C. Taylor's Indian Broom was fourth, while it took a photo finish to separate No Dice and Quick Devil.

The winner, never out of striking distance of the leaders, was timed at one minute, 50 seconds.

The crowd of upwards of 40,000 wagered $139,749 on the race, and Gosum's victory was worth $37, $13.80 and $8.20 across the board. No Dice paid $15.20 and $8.20 and Quick Devil $4.

Tony Peleterri's Sir Raleigh stayed in the thick of the grind until the stretch, and along with Main Man, apparently tired as the three newcomers to popularity—Gosum, No Dice and Quick Devil—poured it on. Sir Raleigh finished back of Indian Broom. Fourteen went to the post.

Crepe Wins at Hialeah.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Crepe, a mud-loving son of Omar Khayyam, which had not raced since last June, splashed over a sloppy track at Hialeah Park today to win the Fort Dallas purse, feature of the only Saturday program of the meeting which does not include a major stake.

Ridden by Eddie Arcaro, Crepe finished the seven furlongs a length in front of the favorite, Warren Wright's Count Morse. Mrs. W. Plunket Stewart's Milk Punch, well supported because of the "lucky" combination of Jockey Don Meade and Trainer George Odom, trailed by another length, beating Sandy Boot and Maedic for the show. The winner, carrying the Texas silks of B. F. Whitaker, was second choice at $6 for $2.

Racing conditions were bad because of a torrential rain this morning, followed by intermittent showers and a parade of long-shot winners was the result.

DeMolay Basket Leaders to Meet

Granite City and St. Louis Harmony will fight it out for the lead in the Greater St. Louis DeMolay basketball league when they meet in the second game of today's tripleheader at Bethlehem gymnasium, Twenty-first and Salisbury. Tip-off in the first game will be at 1:30 p. m., with the other contests following at hourly intervals.

Each team in the feature game has won two games in two starts. The Tri-City quintet established a league scoring record of 73 points in a single game, when they defeated Carondelet, 73-21, in the first game of the season. They are paced by former Granite City high school stars and hold a victory over McKendree College in a non-league tilt.

St. Louis Harmony has several former Cleveland High stars in its lineup including Jim Latimore who was among the high scorers of the Public High School League last season.

In the first game today, Ferguson and Maplewood will meet. At present these two are tied for third place in the circuit each with a victory and a defeat to its credit. Sentinel, defending champion, is having its troubles this year and thus occupies the league cellar with two defeats in as many starts, but will attempt to rise from the depths when the North Siders meet Rabboni in the nightcap.

Deer Aplenty—Elsewhere.

SOME native species of American wildlife are extinct. Our grandfathers, and even our fathers recall the time when great flocks of wild passenger pigeons darkened the sun. In fact, some of us younger shooters can even recall tales, not too far distant, of hunters in local blinds returning with the limit. It is also realized that certain species not yet extinct have been placed in a position which, under adverse conditions means certain extermination. Not so the white-tailed deer.

Probably the most amazing piece of information to cross the desk this year was the report of the New Jersey State Board of Fish and Game Commissioners dealing with the deer season of 1938.

Keeping in mind the fact that New Jersey has an area of only 7514 square miles as compared to Missouri's 68,727 square miles, the statistics are little short of unbelievable.

In a four-day season hunters took 2310 bucks from the "wilds" of this state almost in the shadows of the massive buildings of New York City and at the other end of the famous three-mile tunnel from New York to Jersey City.

Certainly has the white-tail not only proved to have been able to survive modern civilization with all its loud noise, but to thrive. It isn't due only the deer's stamina howover. The result is in part due to careful planning on the part of Jersey conservationists who long ago sensed the need of protection and the providing of facilities for wintering, breeding and protection.

Compared to our own Missouri situation the result makes us blush. Missouri has a land area of more than nine times that of New Jersey. In our seasons from 1932 through '37 only 597 bucks were legally taken. New Jersey marksmen averaged 577 per day for four days. Not such a good comparison . . . for Missouri.

Out of curiosity records of a few other states were checked. Here's what was found: Pensylvania came in with its round number annual average of 100,000 does (that's right . . . does); New York with a few over 16,000 bucks; Maine, combined bucks and does, averaged 21,000; and, according to Ed L. Shave of the Minnesota Tourist Bureau, that State "had a rather good season with 41,000 kills."

Missouri, with a closed season in 1938, is on the right track. Certainly there will be more deer next season. At least, figuring that the mortality rate was no higher than the birth rate this year, there will be 69 new faces in the deer world as that number has been donated the Conservation Commission by: Fr. Victor Heinen, Conception Abbey, Conception (9); N. V. Skaggs (49), trapped from his ranch on White River in Taney County, and the Springfield Zoo (11).

Great Winter Sport.

Rifle and pistol shooting is a sport that goes on 12 months of the year. Target perforators are not stymied at this time of the year. Activities are merely shifted from breezy outdoor ranges to equally breezy but somewhat less pleasant smelling armories and basements. A few of the more seriously afflicted stage an occasional outdoor shoot with snow and ice as a background, but turnouts are usually small, proving that rifle shooters have more 'vernunft' than some of these polar club swimmers of whom we often hear.

Legislative Battle.

Former United States Senator Frederic C. Walcott, now president of the American Wildlife Institute, is waging a battle in Washington, D. C., to get the entire amount under the Pittman-Robertson bill, turned over to safeguarding the country's natural resources.

The bill provides that all revenue derived from the excise tax on sporting arms and ammuniton should be ear-marked for wildlife restoration. Last year $1,000,000 was appropriated to fulfill this purpose. This year the House committee recommended that the full amount of the tax, or approximately $3,250,000, be appropriated.

This recommended amount was cut to $1,000,000 before the budget was submitted to Congress—therein lies the story of the battle for which wildlife advocates are preparing.

Next Batter Up.

Next event on the outdoor sports calendar for Missouri will be the opening of the trout-fishing season March 1, in the State parks; officials are preparing for that annual event which is the prelude to the opening of the game fish season on Decoration day.

Many a large rainbow at the hatchery which has been stripped of eggs during the spawning and hatching season that started Nov. 1 has been placed in the spring branches awaiting the fishing season's opening.

Hatcheries at Bennett Spring and Sequiota are operating at full capacity while many rainbows have been taken to Montauk State Park and placed in rearing pools there. The hatchery at Roaring River, damaged by flood waters last year, is being rebuilt; the trout waters there will receive fish from the Sequiota hatchery.

Shorts.

For the first time since it was given to the benefit of the general public, especially children, Tilles Park, Lay and Litzsinger roads in St. Louis County, was under the supervision of a custodian who unlocked the steel gates officially. The park, 60 acres in size has been equipped with winding paths, playgrounds, nature trails and shelters at an approximate cost of $250,000, through a WPA grant. . . . "Recreation run rampant" would be a quick summary of the Buffalo Springs Game Farm, 30 miles east of Knoxville, Tenn. The world's largest and most modern upland game plant will be completed shortly as workmen who have been moving hills and erecting buildings for three years near the end of their task. A 420-acre area of woods, hills and streams will be finally completed in 1940. It will have an annual output of 125,000 quail and 6000 turkey. It cost a mere $2,000,000 . . . not much this day and age.

ODDS ON SEABISCUIT IN HANDICAP NOW 7-2

Odds on Seabiscuit to win the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap on March 4 have dropped from 4-1 to 7-2 in Jimmy Carroll's future book. Seabiscuit is listed at 8-5 to place and 4-5 to show.

Sir Raleigh is now a 50-1 shot, whereas it opened at 60-1, and Honey Cloud is listed as a 60-1 risk, after having opened at 100-1.

Humphrey Is Ice Hockey Captain.

Gil Humphrey, Yale's star forward passer last fall, is now starring with the ice hockey team. He is its captain.

GRANITE CITY WINS, TIES FOR LEAGUE LEAD

Granite City moved into a tie with Collinsville for the lead in the Southwestern Illinois High School Basketball Conference last night, defeating Alton, 41 to 25, at Granite City. Each of the leaders now has five victories and one defeat.

Kenny Parker and Andy Phillips were the big shots of the Granite City attack, each scoring 10 points. It was not much of a game. Granite City had a 13-3 lead at the first quarter and increased it by nine points at the half, Alton failing to score in the second period. Alton made a comeback in the second half but couldn't catch up.

In another conference game Belleville gained its second victory in six league games when it defeated Madison, 25-17, at Madison. Clyde Wiskamp was Belleville's high scorer with nine points.

Louisville Girls Oppose Stockham Basketball Team

Confronted with a team that has won seven straight games and has scored 213 points, or better than 30 per game, the Stockham Post's girls' basketball team expects a hard battle this afternoon when the Twenty Grand Girls of Louisville, Ky., call for an intercity contest at the old Armory, Grand and Market.

This contest will be preceded and followed by men's games, involving evenly-matched teams. The opener, at 1:45 p. m., will bring together two of the strongest teams in the district in the Alton (Ill.) Apex squad, which has won its last 10 engagements, and the Underwoods, leaders of the Tuesday Night Division of the Muny League. The day's finale, at 3:45, will be between the Downtown Y. M. C. A. Dormers, winners of their last 15 games, and the South Side "Y" Zephyrs, leaders of their circuit.

Bernice Frillman, high-scoring star and center of the Stockhams, who will be trying to run her scoring streak to 70 straight games, plans to start this afternoon's game, though a badly twisted right ankle, suffered in last Sunday's contest with Des Moines, had previously made it appear she would be unable to play. Coach Eddie Davidson will have rangy Dorothy Stephenson, recruit from Tennessee, ready for action to fill Bernice's shoes in case of emergency.

Mary Rudis and Sybil Tabor, regular guards, probably will be required to play the entire game today. Chris Lubbers, high scorer for the Twenty Grands and former star of the Kentucky Dairies, who played here in the past, will be guarded closely by the St. Louis cagers.

Y. M. H. A. INVITATIONAL SWIM SET FOR FEB. 22

The Y. M. H. A. invitational swim is to be held Feb. 22, it was announced yesterday. Invitations have been sent to schools throughout the Middle West.

Last year there were 161 entrants and it is expected this number will be increased this year.

LEWIS HAS PLAN TO WIN OVER LOUIS--HE SAYS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. — Much disturbed at the dismal showing made in recent weeks by blown-up heavyweight challengers, the boxing gentry hereabouts is getting up a joyful head of steam for the forthcoming Joe Louis-John Henry Lewis title battle.

After they've wasted a lot of time watching Tommy Farr, Lou Nova, Red Burman, Roscoe Toles and an assortment of other self-styled contenders stumble through their paces the fight fans' glee at seeing a couple of tried and tested gladiators tear into each other Jan. 25 seems a reasonable reaction.

The two Negro warriors whose similarity virtually ends with their phonetically identical names are training at nearby New Jersey resorts, Louis at Pompton Lakes and Lewis at Summit.

Both are confident. Lewis, the reigning lightheavyweight champion who has been itching for a chance in the more exalted heavyweight bracket for some time, likes to point out that he now weighs 186 and that Jack Dempsey tipped the beam at only 183 when he won the title from the mammoth Jess Willard in Toledo.

"I got one of Louis' trainers, Larry Amadee," he added, "and he's told me all the details about Joe. We've worked out a plan to beat him. Anybody's a fool to stand and trade with Joe, so I won't fight that way. We've got our plans made. But I know I can hit, too, and if I see the chance I'll step in and let it go."

The Bomber is as stoical as ever, but he has some tricks up his sleeve, too. They're card tricks — to which he has been devoting about as much time as to preparation for his first title defense of 1939.

CARD OF THANKS

WE wish to express our thanks for the kindness, sympathy and floral offerings from friends and relatives in our sad bereavement in the loss of Dr. Otto Schwer, beloved husband of Katie Schwer and dear father-in-law of Tom McGrath, also we wish to thank Rev. E. Leidner for his kind and consoling words and the pallbearers.
MRS. KATIE SCHWER.

IN MEMORIAM

BODE, BERTHAR—In loving memory of My Dear Mother, who departed this life Jan. 14, 1934. Sadly missed by BODE FAMILY.

BROWN, DUTE—In sad but loving memory of my beloved son and our dear brother, who passed away suddenly Jan. 18, 1932. Sadly missed by his MOTHER AND SISTERS.

DAMM, JOHN OTTO—In loving memory, passed away Jan. 17, 1938:
Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear pa, loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
He would be called so far away.
We miss you now; our hearts are sore,
As time goes by, we miss you more.
Your loving smile, your gentle face;
No one can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by
HIS WIFE, CHILDREN AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

DUTE BROWN—In loving memory of my beloved husband and our dear father, who passed away suddenly on Jan. 18, 1932.
Deep in our hearts lies a picture of a loved one laid to rest,
In memories frame we shall keep it because he was one of the best.
Lovingly
RUBY J. BROWN AND DAUGHTER.

FRITSCHLE, LOUISA—In loving memory of my dear little mother, Louisa Fritschle, who departed this life Jan. 16, 1932.
Sadly missed by daughter,
STELLA REDDY.

FUHRMANN, FERDINAND—Sacred to the memory of my dear husband, our beloved father, passed on Jan. 14, 1936, and dear daughter and sister Ellanor, gone home March 5, 1929:
Too late now to seek to do deeds we should have done for you.
To late now to grasp your hand, yet we think you understand.
YOUR LOVING FAMILY.

GRAF, AUGUST—In memory of our beloved husband and father, who departed this life Jan. 13, 1935.
We are sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts today,
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever been called away.
We think of him in silence,
No eye may see us weep;
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.
Sadly missed by
LONELY WIFE AND CHILDREN.

HAMILTON ROBERT—Jan. 13th, 1937, in loving memory. Sadly missed by HIS WIFE.

HEMSTEDT, WILLIAM—Loving memory dear husband and father, who passed away Jan. 15, 1938.
Loving hearts are always lingering
Around the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND SON.

HESS, HENRY S.—In loving memory of husband and father who departed this life Jan. 17, 1938.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

HEUTEL, BARBARA—Just a thought of sweet remembrance of our dear mother and grandmother, who passed away Jan. 18, 1931. Sadly missed by FAMILY.

JAGGIE, WILLIAM, SR.—In remembrance, Jan. 13, 1935; and William Jaggie Jr., Jan. 14, 1937. Sadly missed by FAMILY.

KINNEY, LEO A.—In memory of our dear husband and son, who departed this life Jan. 19, 1936.
Three long years have passed away
Since that sad and mournful day
When God alone, Who knows best,
Called him to that home of rest.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND MOTHER.

KURTZ, MARIE HAMERSCHMIDT — In loving memory of our dear Mother who passed away Jan. 14, 1937:
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, kind and true
There's not a day, dear Mother,
We do not think of you.
Sadly missed by daughters,
IDA, FLORA AND ROSE AND GRANDCHILDREN.

McCAFFREY, JOHN T.—Died Jan. 17, 1938:
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more.
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.
WIFE, DAUGHTER AND SON-IN-LAW.

SCHMIDT, MRS. LOUISE—In memoriam, who passed away Jan. 13, 1938:
One year of sorrow, lonely and blue.
Life is so empty, dear one without you.
It was sad, indeed, the way you died
Without a chance to say goodby.
Your spirit flew before we knew that
You from us had gone.
If you had raised a dying hand and Bid us all farewell,
The blow would not have been so hard
For those who loved you, dear, so well.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

STAHL, NUSSMANN, ANNA—In memory of our dear mother who passed away Jan. 14, 1937. Sadly missed by CHILDREN AND SISTER.

STRUCKLE, CLARA M.—In loving remembrance, who departed one year ago.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND CHILDREN.

WALZ, ANTON—In loving memory of my dear father, who departed this life Jan. 13, 1934.
Sadly missed by
DAUGHTER AND SON-IN-LAW.

SALESMEN WANTED

START 1939 MAKING BIG MONEY

A $5000 year job is open. If you've been making that kind of money and are accustomed to enjoying the finer things in life, you'll be VITALLY INTERESTED. If you've never made as high as $100 weekly and more, you owe it to yourself to investigate.

The position open is for men over 30 years old, able to travel in smaller towns. It is soliciting delinquent accounts for collection on a "NO-COLLECTION-NO-CHARGE" plan. All you do is list names of slow pay debtors. You are paid daily for names listed. Choice territories are open.

We have just closed our most successful year. Our business is growing by leaps and bounds. Our men are earning BIG MONEY.

Rapid promotion to District Manager on salary and over-writing. This is a PERMANENT, LIFETIME job for the right man. If you are willing to WORK, you can start "hitting the ball" within a week making more money than you have ever made before. Write or wire immediately, telling us all about yourself. I'll make it TREMENDOUSLY interesting for you. MITCHELL HEIM, Sales Manager, 196 Plymouth Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

USED AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE

WHAT VINCEL DOES NOT DO!!

A CANDID STATEMENT OF FACTS THAT ARE OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

① VINCEL DOES NOT . . . under any condition misrepresent to any prospective buyer the TRUE CONDITION of any used car. It's a strict policy of this company which MUST be adhered to by all our salesmen.

② VINCEL DOES NOT . . . import used cars from other large cities or small towns. Every used car you purchase is a genuine trade-in, thoroughly reconditioned.

③ VINCEL DOES NOT . . . advertise ridiculous finance rates . . . nor does he allow extra charges to be added on the financing of the used car you purchase here.

④ VINCEL DOES NOT . . . stop extending to you all the courtesies and service you expect after the sale is made. BUT—VINCEL DOES personally guarantee every car, and if you are not satisfied, bring it back and SEE VINCEL.

No Alger Type Of Urchins in New York Now

Bootblacks and Paper Vendors Mostly Men—'Newsboys' Home' a Name.

By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.

THE first author I ever read was Horatio Alger, who wrote about waifs of New York, most of them newsboys, although a few were crossing-sweepers and bootblacks, who slept on rags in unfurnished tenements around Baxter street at first, but lived in fine homes and rode in their own carriages later. In unusually hard times they slept on sidewalk gratings where the heat came up from the cellars. The sidewalk-sweepers and bootblacks had a racket. One waif, or urchin, with an old broom would stall around a corner pretending to sweep the mud away as rich bankers and merchants came up to cross, and the other, with a shoe-shine outfit, would approach the victim and say, "Shine, sir?" If the rich banker or merchant refused to buy a shine the sweeper with the broom would give it a swish in a puddle of water and splatter his shoes and pants.

Mr. Alger's stories were very inspiring, and such is the tenacity of early ideas, some people still have a mental picture of pinched and ragged little waifs selling papers on the streets of New York. There has been a small revival of the bootblack business, but most of the bootblacks are grown men. They appear to do little business, and one reason, I think, is that a man feels wicked about standing in the public while a fellow man, to say nothing of a child, kneels on the sidewalk shining his shoes. The crossing-sweeper, of course, is permanently out now that the streets are paved.

—o-o—

MR. ALGER'S HEROES were sanctimonious little heels. Always aloof from the unscrupulous characters of their age and set and forever squealing on burglars whom they had overheard plotting to climb the rich banker's porch. Eventually they married his daughter and in a standardized ending discovered that they were not really waifs at all but orphans who had been robbed of their inheritance and turned adrift by thieving uncles who inevitably were brought to justice.

But there are no little merchants selling sheets these days and aside from an occasional yelp out of the men who handle the early morning editions from fixed posts in the drinking quarters of town, the old street cries of journalism are stilled. If a person wants a paper he steps up and buys it from a man or woman at a newsstand who may be a salaried employe of a soulless corporation, and if not is anyway a business operator, no more likely to leave the little plant unguarded and go hustling individuals in the traffic than the manager of a big department store. Perhaps if a war broke out in Europe a few huskies would grab bundles and go howling through the streets the old cry of "Extra!" Variously delivered as "Wuxtry!" "Extry!" and "Wow! Read about it." But that would be a revival.

—o-o—

THE NEWS MERCHANTS distinctly are not urchins, and it is nobody's business what they do in their spare time, but they do not sleep on sidewalks to keep warm. The police wouldn't allow that, and anyway the owners of buildings are not spending money for fuel to heat the great outdoors. They must have been very inefficient in Mr. Alger's day.

It seems an unfair reproach to the newspaper business that there continues to exist in New York a famous institution under the name of the Brace Memorial Newsboys' Home. Why should public charity support a home for the employes of a big, rich industry? Why not, also, an office clerks' home and a bank employes' home?

But Mr. Kelly of the Brace Memorial Home assures me that his institution is now a newsboys' home in name only. Newspaper Row has vanished from the vicinity of William street, the roster of daily papers in New York has been halved in 20 years, there are hardly any city waifs, newsboys are not homeless, and in the last three years only one newsboy has slept at the Brace Memorial Newsboys' Home, founded as such in 1850.

—o-o—

THERE ARE 90 GUESTS in the home today, 25 locals and 65 transients, and not a single newsboy, and the bulk of the trade usually is made up of out-of-town strays who have met ex-guests on the road who recommended the place.

Once I did meet in Palm Beach, where he was drinking wine, a professional self-made rough diamond of the city streets who said he used to sleep at the newsboys' home occasionally as a youth, but when pinned down admitted that he was a little bum by nature, with a home on the West Side that was good enough for his brothers and sisters. He slept at the Brace Memorial only because he liked to bat around the streets and imagine that he was a waif.

MISS GODDARD—OR IS IT MRS. CHARLIE CHAPLIN?—RECLINING IN THE RATHSKELLER OF HER HOME IN HOLLYWOOD.

She Won't Give 'Em the Answers

Paulette Goddard of Hollywood Just Won't Break Down And Tell Whether She Is Married to Charlie Chaplin, So Now She's the Film Colony's Mystery Woman

By H. H. NIEMEYER

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 14.

AS we gallop to press, more or less, the mystery woman of Hollywood is Paulette Goddard, who is—or isn't—Mrs. Charlie Chaplin and who is—or isn't—about to leave her famous husband and strike out for a career of her own in the films. For Paulette, after several years of sort of basking in the reflected fame of the great comedian, has made a distinct success as an actress and is now being sought by two or three of the big producers.

Only Paulette herself, Chaplin and possibly a minister or a sea captain, somewhere, know about the marriage business. The minister or the sea captain, or whoever might have performed the ceremony, is not available. Chaplin and little Miss Goddard are both handy and open to questioning—on most other subjects. As to the matter of their having been married some years ago—rumor says the wedding took place on shipboard somewhere off the coast of India when they were on a trip around the world with Paulette's mother along as chaperon—neither the comedian nor Paulette has a word to say for publication. Privately Miss Goddard has told her studio officials several times that she and Charlie ARE married.

Several times, at the request of those officials, she has agreed to meet the crowd of Hollywood correspondents, who are laughingly known as Ladies and Gentlemen of the Press, and confirm the rumors. Each time she has backed down. Chaplin, as far as is known, has never unbosomed himself on the subject. Both he and Paulette look upon it as their own private affair. Movie stars have so little privacy in their lives that they are not really to be blamed for seizing upon it when it is offered.

—o-o—

PRESENT rumors, then, that the Chaplin-Goddard romance is about to go upon the rocks are as difficult to run down as the reports of their marriage. There may have been a rift a while back, but certainly, at the present writing, all is well. Charley is up at Carmel working on that long delayed manuscript for a picture in which he will star Miss Goddard and which he, himself, will direct. Miss Goddard, busy with other films in Hollywood, visits him whenever business permits.

Since she knows whether she is Mrs. Chaplin, the important thing in her life up until last night was Scarlett O'Hara.

Paulette really had the inside track on the greatest role that has been on tap in Hollywood in many years. Practically every first string actress in the colony was after the part in "Gone With the Wind" and there were many persons who would have put their money on Miss Gooddard but Friday night, the producer, Selznick, announced that he had decided to feature Vivien Leigh, an English actress, in the piece. That was quite a blow to Paulette and to Chaplin, too, for that matter, for he had done everything that he could to promote his pretty wife into the part. But there is no solving the ways of producers and perhaps this one knows what he is doing, although the selection is certain to start a storm of controversy among the master minds of Hollywood.

George Cukor, who is to direct the film, was strong for Katharine Hepburn, and four or five other stars, including Carole Lombard, were very much in the running. The only thing certain about it all is that Selznick has thrown overboard his original much publicized intention of finding an "unknown," preferably some girl from the Deep South, to be Scarlett. The contract for Gable to play Butler is all signed, sealed and delivered.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN SUPERVISING MISS GODDARD'S MAKE-UP WHILE ON MOVIE LOCATION.

In the matter of getting a Southern girl to play Scarlett, Paulette Goddard was, in the minds of Hollywood, geographically well fitted. She comes from the southern part of Long Island.

Miss Goddard was born 26 years ago at Whitestone, L. I., and, contrary to report, Goddard is her own name. Her father died when she was a little girl and her mother married again. At school the youngster took her stepfather's name, which was Levy. Her correct first name is Estelle. When she got out of high school and into the chorus of a Broadway show she resumed the title of Goddard and tacked on Paulette instead of Estelle.

As a chorine Miss Goddard was a beauty which practically necessitated her going into a Ziegfeld show. Also she married—and on that marriage she is also uncommunicative. Her husband was named James, which is about all that is known of the match here. Along about 1930 the James romance faded and Paulette took the train for Reno. There she met some movie folk who were in Reno on the same errand as she and so, when she got her divorce, she decided to take a look at Hollywood. Musical shows were on the wane in New York, Hollywood was close at hand and girls who could dance were in demand here. Paulette could dance, delightfully, and she was lovely to look upon. She still is.

Hollywood was overrun with ex-New York chorus girls at that time. The studios were running wild in the matter of musical pictures, and even with her great beauty, Paulette did not get started right away. If things had been better in New York she might have gone back, but jobs were even harder to get there than in Hollywood and the little Goddard stuck it out.

Her first job, one of her very few here, was a chorus dancer in Eddie Cantor's film, "The Kid From Spain," which he made on the United Artists' lot. Charlie Chaplin, then as now, was a big stockholder in United Artists.

Chaplin had just written "Morern Times" and was in search of a woman to play the lead opposite himself. He had always preferred "unknowns" for those roles and he wanted an unknown this time. One day, over at United Artists, he saw Miss Goddard and his search was ended. Paulette became his leading woman. Also the Great Romance Mystery started at the same time, and Miss Goddard made one of the quickest jumps to fame Hollywood has ever known.

But if Paulette skyrocketed to the heights she came down again just as quickly. Not because the public didn't want her but as a matter of choice—her choice and Chaplin's. They were tremendously happy together, he was a rich man—one of the richest in pictures—and there was no necessity for his wife to spend her time away from him around the studio lots. You see rumors of their marriage had already gone into circulation.

So Paulette quit pictures. She and Chaplin went everywhere together, always accompanied by her mother. She was hailed, and photographed, as a charming "second mother" to Chaplin's two little sons by a former marriage and, except as Mrs. Chaplin she was forgotten, more or less, by the film fans. Charley talked about writing a play for her and has worked on it, when the spirit moved him, off and on ever since. As remarked before he is deep in the manuscript now.

Paulette was young. She liked to go to night clubs and premieres and things like that dressed in the clothes she had, ermines and sables and things, which put some of the $3000 a week stars to shame. Chaplin was a good deal older—he is 50 now—and the Hollywood thing was an old story to him. He was never much of a man for big parties and show, anyway, but preferred to be with a few friends and play the piano or the violin.

It was this difference in temperament which no doubt led the Hollywood gossips to start their tongues wagging about a parting of the ways. There were reports that Chaplin had gone to Nevada to establish a residence and get a divorce. If he did he changed his mind. And all the time no one really knew whether Chaplin and Miss Goddard had ever been married.

—o-o—

ANYWAY Paulette wanted to get around more, to go places, Hollywood places, and see things. She had never played a part in a talking picture for although Chaplin's "Modern Times" was not made until long after the talkies came in, you will remember that it was without vocal sounds. Miss Goddard had put her dancing on the shelf at the same time that Chaplin had her change her naturally blond hair to its present light brown and she wanted to be an actress. She took dramatic lessons and courses in diction from the best teachers in Hollywood. She's still taking them, too. During the year that just ended Selznick gave her a chance to show what she could do in "The Young in Heart." It was her first speaking role. It was, too, only her second picture. While that picture was being made Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer got interested and borrowed her for a part in "Dramatic School." Before that film was finished "The Young in Heart" appeared and Paulette showed to such advantage that MGM lengthened her role in "Dramatic School" and decided that she should be given co-starring billing with Louise Rainer.

That is Miss Goddard's Hollywood film record to date, four pictures in all not counting her dancing days with the old Cantor picture. MGM's interest and that studio's elevation of her to stardom would also seem to indicate something.

Anyway with or without Chaplin's help Paulette Goddard is going places.

After-Dinner Concerts for New Yorkers

Listeners Will Remain "at Ease" Around Tables — May Smoke and Drink.

By Inez Robb

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.

THE music is still going round and round, but it doesn't come out here any more. In 1939, it comes out on the menu. This is because Macklin Marrow, the Adonis of American conductors, believes it possible to feed the cash customer a concerto and crepe suzette at almost the same time.

To this end, Marrow, 30 members of New York's most highbrow musical organization, the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, and Oscar of the Waldorf are involved in a series of concerts to begin tomorrow at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Dinner itself will be served before the concert begins at 9:15 p. m., but while the orchestra is dishing out Rimsky-Korsakov, Debussy and Wagner, waiters prowling over thick, sound-deadening carpets, will dish out Five-Star Hennessy, Piper-Heidseck or any other potable the customer deems fit and proper accompaniment to the music.

—o-o—

"IN OTHER WORDS, I am to make the audience purr," said Marrow. "Music is usually heard the hard way, in a hall like Carnegie, which has none of the comforts of home. I'm convinced the reason so many persons stay away from serious concerts in the flesh, yet listen to them over the radio, is because they have the solace of a comfortable chair and the companionship of a drink and a good cigar.

"There's no reason to surround good music with solemnity or a cathedral hush combined with the physical tortures of the average concert hall chair."

The audience at the coming dinner concerts will loll in comfortable arm chairs, drawn up around the tables at which they have just dined.

Heavy cloths on the tables will prevent highball glasses from vieing with the tympani in the orchestra. Soft lights will make the Empire room, where the concerts will be given, seem like something out of a model home, and there will be all the encouragement and ash trays a chain smoker can wish.

—o-o—

"OSCAR AND I shall try to provide an evening in which neither the music nor the menu is too heavy," Marrow said. "There is a magnificent variety of beautiful light music by the very best composers. My concerts will be serious concerts, seriously done. There'll be true deference for the music and the composer, but no pompous atmosphere to smother both."

When Marrow decides upon the program of each concert, he will submit it to Oscar, who will then decide what meats should accompany Mozart and which souffles go best with a Strauss waltz.

"Beethoven's violin concerto was first played in a Vienna beer garden," Marrow continued. "While studying in Vienna several years ago, I fell in love with the coffee houses where orchestras of 25 and 30 pieces played good light music all afternoon and evening to packed audiences."

—o-o—

SO MARROW came home and began to experiment. A few years ago, he tried serious concerts under civilized conditions in the ballroom of the Plaza. The civilized conditions included overstuffed chairs rather than the regulation Carnegie Hall overstuffed dowagers, and drink and tobacco in abundance.

"Let me tell you I never conducted before a better behaved audience," Marrow declared. "There was no coughing, no shuffling of feet, no rustling of programs or any of the other thousand and one symptoms of discomfort in a restless audience that drive musicians to drink. I'd rather the audience did the drinking."

In the meantime, Composer Deems Taylor is writing a composition for one of the dinner concerts, to be heard with the composer himself as guest conductor.

The soloist for the initial concert will be that great artist of the clarinet, Benny Goodman, who has already appeared on several serious programs this season. Benny, the jitter-bugs' delight, is to appear with the orchestra in Mozart's Concerto in A major for clarinet and orchestra.

Patrons for the coming concerts include Walter Damroch, Mrs. Jack Astor, the Lawrence Tibbetts, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Anne Morgan, the William S. Paleys, Geraldine Farrar and several hundred other customers who combine a love of counterpoint and creature comforts.

Strapless Suits

It was only a matter of time until the strapless fad spread to bathing suits. They are made with the same sort of stay arrangement as the strapless evening dresses, so that, all stories to the contrary, you won't have to use adhesive tape to keep them up, and you will get an even unbroken tan.

What Do You Say?

by Elsie Robinson

JOYOUS, jumping Jehoshaphat! What relief it would be!

An apartment all to yourself! No more shared bedrooms . . . steppin' over your kid sister every time you wanted to brush your teeth! No more snooping family, opening your mail, listening in on the extension phone . . hanging around when the Boy Friend called!

ELSIE ROBINSON.

To live your own life at last . . . 500 miles from bossing relatives and kibitzing neighbors . . . oh, golly—golly—golly—what a break!

Pat whooped . . . hugged a suit case . . . turned a somersault on the rumpled bed. Then landed, right side up with smudged gray eyes staring blankly through tangled gilt—and scarlet lips dragged down in a doleful arch. Wonderful—gorgeous—tremendous—all of it . . . all except Al. Poor old Al! Why'd he hafta spoil everything by being so hard to leave! Couldn't he see what a chance it was—to go with the Boss when he opened the new territory?

Pat's lips trembled . . . magnified by tears she saw Al's rugged height bent, Al's homely, rough hewn face broken by the misery of her refusal. But what else could she do? Just because they'd played together since they were kids, did that mean she should wreck her career now by settling down to be plain "Mrs. Alfred Allison Jones"? Well, she wouldn't! Darned if she would!

A woman had a right to her own life; She—Pat Williams—wasn't goin' to be ANY man's slave! She'd show him!

—O—O—

● FIRELIGHT FLICKERING on the smartest of blue mirrors . . . glinting on the latest of chromium gadgets, off-white leather chairs. Laughter—clever city laughter—tinkling over the naughtiest new jokes in the diminutive kitchen. Christmas carols . . . cold storage carols . . . whining from a radio. And Dion Sullivan—exquisitely drained eyes, purple pouched beneath his thinning hair—tossing his eligible bachelor epigrams at a cooly glittering Pat.

Well, she'd certainly come far in three years! Faintly smiling, Pat lifted heavily mascaraed lashes . . . fingered a cocktail glass with thickly silvered nails . . . tossed back the appropriate risque answer to Dion's drawling innuendo.

Plenty far in three years—this tilting with Dion. Big Town's most eligible bachelor, was proof enough of that! Even without Dion, she was sitting pretty by every accepted standard for smart girls, She'd had the Boss' wife, of course, to thank for her start . . . meeting the right people . . . knowing the right places. But she'd managed the rest for herself.

Pat yawned . . . arched glittering arms . . . stretched rouged ties to artificial flame . . .

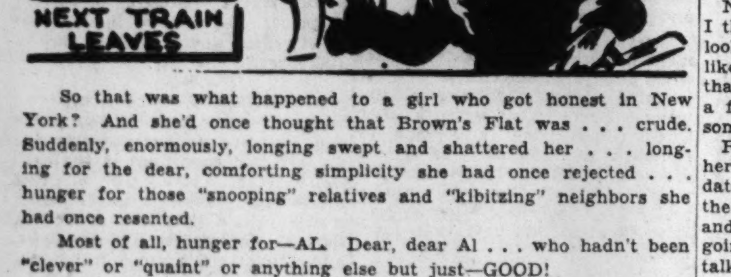
"Bored?" Dion's question was insinuatingly intimate—or merely polite. You could take your choice. Dion was like that. Pat smiled slowly . . . let her glance cling a second too long.

Then, suddenly—amazingly—words came, as if from a stranger. Astounded, she heard her own voice answering . . . without subtleties or planned effect.

"I guess—I guess—I'M HOMESICK!"

—O—O—

● HORRIFIED, she heard her own words ending in a wail . . . saw Dion's instant and outraged retreat from such frank emotionalism. Young women who wailed—practically bellowed—for their homes on Christmas time . . . these, definitely, were not in Dion's line. Before she could reassure, he had retreated . . . found some instant need amongst the cocktail shakers. And left Pat staring grimly at the chromiumed glory of her little living room.



So that was what happened to a girl who got honest in New York? And she'd once thought that Brown's Flat was . . . crude. Suddenly, enormously, longing swept and shattered her . . . longing for the dear, comforting simplicity she had once rejected . . . hunger for those "snooping" relatives and "kibitzing" neighbors she had once resented.

Most of all, hunger for—AL. Dear, dear Al . . . who hadn't been "clever" or "quaint" or anything else but just—GOOD!

Oh, what a fool she'd been to throw it all away. If only she could go back!

Well, why the dickens couldn't she!

Eyes shining like stars . . . mouth spread wide in its old, impish grin. . . . Pat bounced up, guests forgotten . . . and raced for her bedroom. So gals "lived alone and like it"—did they? Well, she, Pat—had given this "living alone business" a try—

AND SHE WAS DARNED IF SHE DID!

Others could try this much advertised freedom . . . BUT JUST BEING PLAIN MRS. ALFRED ALLISON JONES WAS GOOD ENOUGH CAREER FOR HER!

$10 AWARD FOR BEST ANSWER

"IS IT wise for a bachelor maid to keep steady company without a definite plan for marriage?"

Elsie Robinson asks the question, in connection with her column today. She asks further:

"Should a girl allow herself to become a convenient habit for a man, cook dinners for him in her apartment, month after month, receive in return a few inexpensive gifts, and, usually, NO proposal of marriage?

"Wouldn't it be better for her to accept other dates, be less servile to the man who has no sense of give and take?"

The Post-Dispatch will pay $10 for the best answer to these questions. Letters should be limited to 1000 words. Post-Dispatch employes and their families are barred. The decision of the judges will be final.

The letters must be postmarked not later than midnight, Thursday, Jan. 19. Announcement of the winner, and the prize letter, will be published Monday, Jan. 23.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

Love's Favors are Soon Forgotten

The Gables of the World and Their Wives Prove That There's No Gratitude in Romance.

By

Marguerite Marshall

CAROLE LOMBARD AND CLARK GABLE OF THE HOLLYWOOD FILM COLONY. HE HAS HAD TWO SEPARATION PROBLEMS TO SOLVE DURING HIS CLIMB UP THE LADDER TO FAME.

LOVE cannot be held by the silken chains of gratitude. They chafe—then they snap!

The formula for keeping your husband (or your wife) does not consist in playing perpetual Santa Claus. Heap gifts upon your partner, lavish treasures of self-sacrificing devotion—if that is the way you are made. But to do these things with the more or less conscious idea of exacting a return payment in loyalty and affection is to court disappointment and defeat. The trouble is that in married life, as in political life, people just won't stay bribed! Divorce courts are littered with benefits forgot.

This is one of the warnings for the wedded, perhaps especially for the newly-wedded, offered by the logic of news events, by common observation and experience, by the wisdom of the psychologist and by the shrewd woman student of human nature.

All seem to agree that living happily ever after is not brought about by one-sided generosity and self-sacrifice. Apparently it is possible to give too much—from the viewpoint of self-interest—to your mate. Instead of gratitude acting as a preservative of love, it may easily become an irritant.

Certainly gratitude writes no insurance policy on anybody's marriage! Take as proof—proof twice over—the married life of dashing, swashbuckling Clark Gable. In dispatches from Hollywood, he himself recently announced that Mrs. Maria Langham Gable, after a separation of about three years, is about to seek a divorce. According to Mrs. Gable, Clark broke this news to her through the newspapers. However, she previously and obligingly had expressed a willingness to grant him his freedom whenever he asked for it.

That would be only the latest of her many generosities to the popular star—whose next wife, according to gossip, will be pretty Carole Lombard. When the present Mrs. Gable met Clark in New York she was a stately, handsome, dark-haired divorcee, socially and financially secure, while he, on the other hand, was an ambitious but almost unknown Broadway actor.

After the marriage in 1931, she took a beautiful house in Hollywood, entertained lavishly and saw that her handsome young husband met all the right people. The film capital admires and respects her. It also generally recognizes how much she did to promote Clark Gable's career.

Curiously enough, the cornerstone of that career seems to have been laid by another woman, his first wife. She was Josephine Dillon, and when she married Clark he hadn't reached even Broadway's outer fringes. The various jobs he had held included "trouble-shooting" for a telephone company, selling classified advertisements and working for an oil company. Mrs. Gable No. 1 gave him dramatic lessons; she is still a favorite dramatic coach in Hollywood. Yet what she did for her husband, as in the case of her successor, did not hold him by her side.

"The path of the American woman is paved with discarded husbands," said a wisecracker—long before anybody ever heard of Mrs. Ernest Simpson!

And still women—men, too—go right on fooling themselves with the idea that if they are sufficiently unselfish, generous, self-sacrificing, the object of all this excess altruism will just have to pay perpetual premiums of gratitude and remain a loving husband or wife!

Human nature simply doesn't work that way, according to one of our most distinguished psychologists, Dr. A. A. Brill off New York, who first introduced psychoanalysis into the United States.

"From so many women," he told me, "I have heard stories of marital unhappiness with the doleful refrain, "I did everything for my husband, gave him my whole life—and now he treats me like this!' What can I answer? There is only one true thing to say to these wretched wives—'You poor fools'!

"Gratitude," he emphasizes, "is not an animal emotion, and therefore not natural for the human animal. It is an acquired characteristic of civilization and extremely valuable as such. Without gratitude, society as we know it, could not function. But because human beings are not grateful by instinct, the feeling often does not enter at all into the love-relationship.

—o-o—

"PRIMITIVE peoples do not know gratitude. Give one of them something and he takes it—that is that. Then he tries to grab something more. He feels no kindly impulse toward a giver.

"With children, there is the same reaction. We must always teach a child to say 'thank you'.

"So for one partner to try to keep married love alive and vigorous by arousing the other partner's gratitude is foolish and useless. It cannot be done that way. It is particularly futile in the case of husbands."

A woman, the scientist added, who puts her husband in the position of having to be grateful to her, not only is getting an acquired emotion mixed up with a primitive one, but is offending the natural masculine instinct toward superiority.

"One reason why men resent gratitude," according to Dr. Brill, "is because it makes them feel inferior.

"So don't be too unselfish," he warned in conclusion. "It's a mistake to give too much, especially for women. Let the men have the pleasure of being magnificently generous, of showing off a bit. They will enjoy that far more than the compulsion to feel eternally grateful for wifely self-sacrifice. Affectionate over-indulgence can spoil a husband as well as a child, and in the end break up a home."

And what do women think?

I asked Thyra Samter Winslow, famous short story writer, whose sympathetic and yet keenly incisive studies of American women are in several magazines. She has often described the "gave you the best years of my life" type, and shown how martyrdom can become a vice.

"Gratitude neither has nor should have anything to do with love," she said crisply. "People are givers or they are takers, just as they are blondes or brunettes. If you are the giving type, that's how you find your pleasure in life. To try to collect in terms of gratitude is asking for excess profits. You won't get them, in all probability, and you're a poor sport.

"This, of course, is no justification for deliberate selfishness. The selfish woman may seem to get away with her exacting demands as long as she is pretty and young, but she loses out in the long run. On the other hand, the selfishly unselfish person—usually a "she"—does have an unhappy faculty for goat-getting. I remember hearing the eminent Dr. Brander Matthews of Columbia refer to 'woman's damnable passion for self-sacrifice!'

"Instead of being noble 24 hours a day, why not be charming?" she offers. "It was charm—interest—personally, rather than superlative virtue, which caused you to fall in love with each other. Why not concentrate on retaining the charm?

"Nobody takes away a husband or a wife. They walk away because they lose interest. The other night I saw a young couple dining together in a restaurant, and I knew something was wrong. Why? Because every time the doors opened, the woman looked up."

Anyhow—things Thyra Samter Winslow, with whom myself and a lot of other women agree—giving to someone you love is great fun, a virtue which is its own reward. If you get gratitude in return, that's so much velvet—but "dunt esk!"

If You Ask My Opinion -:- -:- By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE been reading your column very regularly, but didn't think I would ever have need of your advice. I find, however, that I want to come to you to weigh my problem, as someone who is capable of doing it.

Not long ago, I met a girl who, I thought, was the one I had been looking for. It seemed too that she liked me. She told me, frankly, that once she had been in love with a fellow, but quit him because of some talk he started about her.

Recently this boy went to see her and made a date. After the date I called on her and she wasn't the same girl; she was downhearted and blue. She told me she wasn't going out any more or going to talk to another boy; saying it was not, however, because she didn't like me. I would like to know the way to make her forget him and not allow him to spoil her life. Because this boy didn't stack up like a man, she shouldn't be discouraged. She is only 18 years old. Your advice will be welcome — and thank you. DISAPPOINTED.

You should not feel in the least downhearted about this. As you may know, many a young girl or boy has been known to recover from what they believed a life-long blow in the matter of love; especially at the age of 18. Go to see her occasionally whether she seems particularly glad to see you or not. And when you arrive avoid bringing up the subject or letting her dwell upon it. Interest her in all kinds of outside things.

This girl may believe she is seeing the end of the world, so far as happiness and romance are concerned, but youth is in an unnatural and usually temporary stage of despair when life seems so dark. Ask her not to try to see him, as she will only add unhappiness to the past experience. Then distract her all you can by a cheerful devotion which does not accept or admit "No."

—o-o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

A YEAR AGO I made a New Year's resolution. It has been almost a perfect year. I resolved to make this home a happy one; it has been. I started by not scolding my husband, no matter what time he came home. I tried to have the house fresh and myself just as though I were going to have a date. If he came home to dinner, I had the children bathed and dressed and made them feel it was the biggest event of the day. We would turn on the porch light and all meet him at the door to kiss him. Now he is home every night. He has been bringing little surprises home to us and calls us if he is going to be late.

Housewives can get terribly run down, so every day I try to read something interesting to repeat. I stopped telling my husband my household troubles, for a tired man does not want to hear them.

When my husband left this morning, he said, "Honey, I am the luckiest man in the world; the finest little wife and the finest children. You send me off with a smile and make me feel that I can lick the world."

One bit of advice I want to add: Don't keep asking your husband if he loves you; that shows you are slipping. Show him how much you love him. A HAPPY WIFE.

—o-o—

Dear Martha Carr:

DON'T YOU THINK in this day and age, teachers should keep pace with the times? Why should a child 6 or 7 years of age be threatened that he will have to stay after school if he misses a word in spelling? Do you suppose the teacher ever missed a word when she was growing up? And why, oh why should a teacher tell a room full of tiny children if one of them dares miss a word, he will have to stay after school and write each word missed a hundred times? This method is out of date. I think teachers should know this method is passe; no good can possibly come of it. Isn't it a shame that children have to spend five hours a day, five days a week under such tutelage? I shall be anxiously awaiting your reply. M. N.

Your criticism would have more point were you to offer a better method. To say that "it is a shame" and "out of date" and the "method is passe" would seem to have little force, certainly, in making the "up-to-date" vaguely. If you can suggest better methods, why not do so in clear terms?

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WE are four sisters between the ages of 16 and 23. We have a very miserable home because our parents are always nagging at us. We never seem to do anything to suit them, although we do everything they say. For instance, they do not want us to go out. We have never had a date. We bring our pay checks home, and don't you think we ought to get an allowance? If we decide to go to the show together our father consents and our mother turns up her nose. If she consents (which she seldom does), he turns up his nose. We have to worry about the bills; and if a pair of stockings are needed, they tell us that if we keep buying things they will have nothing. When we come home from work we are expected to go to bed at 10 o'clock (which we won't do); if we talk too much or laugh loud they tell us about it. FOUR SISTERS.

"Which we won't do"—and you say you always do what they tell you? To me, you sound just a trifle contradictory. Are you by chance "stretching the blanket" just a little?

I have no doubt you four sisters talk so much about this that your trouble grows layer upon layer. And so you are blinded by the very small and few good qualities that your parents do possesss despite their unreasonableness and cruelty.

Of course, girls your age should have some pleasures and outings, and your loyalty and helpfulness in your household should have some reward. Couldn't you perhaps have a family session; the boldest of you might cite your combined efforts to help, your wish to do the fair thing and ask, since they must have been young at some distant date, if they will try to imagine themselves in your place.

—o-o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM 19 and the young man I am going with is 22. We had intended to be married in the spring, but now all our plans are off because his father died and he must help at home. He wants to do the honorable thing and says his salary and the small amount I make a week would not justify our doing this as yet.

I don't see why we couldn't get along on this sum; others have done it. So I am urging him to try it. But he thinks we can afford to wait until we see things just a little clearer. What do you think, Mrs. Carr? PEGGY J.

I believe the young man is actuated both by consideration for you and by common sense. You are both young, and the self-discipline this delay will bring you should make you all the closer and better prepared to meet what difficulties you may encounter later.

But while waiting you should look up the opportunities for both of you to prepare yourself so that you may earn more money. Why not the classes in adult educational training and vocational training, offered so freely now? This will be a bond and a mutual interest which should keep you all the more interested in each other.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I UNDERSTAND the best time to transplant rose bushes is in the fall of the year. But I was doing so much other work that I neglected to do so. Will it be all right to transplant them in the spring? E. AND E. B.

You will have to do this very early, probably not later than April. And while it may retard their bloom somewhat, I believe they will be safe.

—o-o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM COMING to you for advice. I became acquainted with a boy whom I thought very nice and he had written me a letter, but he came to see me before I answered it. The second time he came he was asked by my father not to come back. This is what I want to know: Shall I answer his letter now as I have not seen him since this all happened? CURLY HEAD.

Do you think your father spoke to this young man in such a manner just for pastime? Surely he must have had a good reason for objecting to the association (you must know this of course) and you would be foolish to attemp to keep up the acquaintance against your father's judgment and wishes.

Girl about Town

by Clarissa Start

WHILE most people have regretfully put away the ornaments, the tinsel and the holly wreaths in the attic or the basement locker, for an eleven-month rest, and strong men are concentrating more on their income tax than on that one strand of lights that kept going out, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ellicock are still holding open house in their flat at 4548 Clarence avenue for the people who continue to visit the large and elaborate Christmas scene which Albert Ellicock made, unassisted and entirely by hand, during the past year.

News of this miniature carpentry wonder reached us last week and we went out to have a look at the small village of wood and cement and cotton snow that lies under the Ellicock Christmas tree. At first glance the scene, which spreads over half the room, looks so life-like it does not occur to you to wonder at it. Later you realize the painstaking work that has gone into the construction of the church and six houses, the rocky hills and trees, the bridge and two viaducts that grace the scene.

AGAINST a cardboard background of chalk and crayola hills and trees and sky, the church dominates the setting. It is a copy of Grace Lutheran Church, 3117 St. Louis avenue, which Mrs. Ellicock's mother attended, and the work is, in a way, a memorial to her, as she died during the past year. Made of wood, the church can be taken apart, as can all the houses. Around the church is an iron fence made of nails of different sizes, and wood. Lights shine from within and as the bells ring you almost expect the tiny figures on the steps to hurry their pace. The sound of music comes from the church and the voice of Mme. Schumann-Heink singing, "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht" is heard. This comes, Ellicock told us, from a phonograph in the hall, with amplifier attached, and a small loud speaker inside the church, but despite this matter of fact explanation, we still wanted to look inside the church for the singer.

The most interesting thing about the Ellicock display is the authenticity of small details. The train station, for instance—there is a train, of course, which Mrs. Ellicock claims her husband enjoys playing with most of all—with a telegraph instrument ticking inside, hurrying red caps and pasesngers on the platform, men unloading of trunks, even a hobo plodding further down the track. The bridge over which the train passes is made of metal, bolted and soldered together by tiny bolts, and runs over a frozen stream. Another viaduct has busses and automobiles crossing it, and traffic dividers at either end.

Street lights stand alongside the road which curves from the viaduct and runs past the houses. All of the houses are constructed with doors that open and shut.

—o-o—

ON A SLOPING HILL made of rocks collected during a vacation, and held together by asbestos cement on a foundation of screen wire, stands the largest residence, a copy of a house on Forsythe avenue, which Mrs. Ellicock admired and which Ellicock copied from a rough sketch of the house. The house is furnished, even to the two tiny pictures painted by an artist friend, and lights inside. The other houses are smaller, one a copy of a Clayton home, and the trees on the grounds are real cedar trees, grown in Wisconsin. Many of the figures—the group of carol singers outside the large house, the minister with a Bible under his arm, the Sunday school class entering church, the skier on a distant mountainside, the couple leaving a house accompanied by a dog and cat—were made in England, and the street lights were made by Ellicock, the older styled ones in the residential section a number of years ago, the newer modern ones on the viaduct more recently. No wires are visible, but there is a switchboard at one side, which Ellicock operates to secure varying lighting effects.

—o-o—

QUIET AND soft spoken, Ellicock tells how his display was originally started for a small son, no longer living, and became more elaborate through the years. He is a real estate man and has had no architectural or engineering training, but seems to have an instinctive knowledge of building on a miniature scale. The angles on the house he secured the first try and there was no waste of lumber or material, although he does not work from plans or blueprints. Everything was made, he said, "in a little corner in the basement."

So far nothing commercial has been done with the display. It took a year to build and three weeks to put up in the living room, so it was not finished in time this year for any purpose other than the enjoyment of the Ellicocks themselves and the people, about 200 of them, who have come to see, examine, and marvel.

Girl about Town

by Clarissa Start

WHILE most people have regretfully put away the ornaments, the tinsel and the holly wreaths in the attic or the basement locker, for an eleven-month rest, and strong men are concentrating more on their income tax than on that one strand of lights that kept going out, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ellicock are still holding open house in their flat at 4548 Clarence avenue for the people who continue to visit the large and elaborate Christmas scene which Albert Ellicock made, unassisted and entirely by hand, during the past year.

News of this miniature carpentry wonder reached us last week and we went out to have a look at the small village of wood and cement and cotton snow that lies under the Ellicock Christmas tree. At first glance the scene, which spreads over half the room, looks so life-like it does not occur to you to wonder at it. Later you realize the painstaking work that has gone into the construction of the church and six houses, the rocky hills and trees, the bridge and two viaducts that grace the scene.

—o-o—

AGAINST a cardboard background of chalk and crayola hills and trees and sky, the church dominates the setting. It is a copy of Grace Lutheran Church, 3117 St. Louis avenue, which Mrs. Ellicock's mother attended, and the work is, in a way, a memorial to her, as she died during the past year. Made of wood, the church can be taken apart, as can all the houses. Around the church is an iron fence made of nails of different sizes, and wood. Lights shine from within and as the bells ring you almost expect the tiny figures on the steps to hurry their pace. The sound of music comes from the church and the voice of Mme. Schumann-Heink singing, "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht" is heard. This comes, Ellicock told us, from a phonograph in the hall, with amplifier attached, and a small loud speaker inside the church, but despite this matter of fact explanation, we still wanted to look inside the church for the singer.

Co-operative Plan for Stars In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14.

OUR movie producers were pretty upset when Manager Myron Selznick announced that at least a dozen of his biggest stars, directors and writers would work for him on a co-operative basis. A pretty daring thing to do, but such a good idea that Walter Wanger instantly started to carry it out on "Trade Winds."

Now the biggest producers in Hollywood have put their heads together and are trying to work out a plan whereby all our top stars, writers and directors will make pictures on the co-operative plan. It will lessen their burden and stars won't have to pay such tremendous income taxes because profits, if any, will cover a much longer period. And it will lessen the headaches of all studios where expenses have increased 30 per cent the last year. Then, too, through this method we'll actually find out if they're worth $150,000 a picture.

Of course, the difficulty will be, as always, to find good stories. For instance, Freddie March won't make nearly as much money on "Trade Winds" as he would have made on "A Star Is Born" had he done that on the same basis.

Hollywood won't be sending out on personal appearance tours players who made one success five years before, with the exhibitor as usual taking the loss.

Why New Yorkers Go to Night Clubs -:-

By LUCIUS BEEBE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.

INFORMED persons around the town are getting a hearty snicker out of the circumstance that that curious night club which so widely advertised itself as closed to the reporters and photographers, and whose subscribers so smugly announced they would tolerate no publicity (and immediately scrammed out of there for the Stork and El Morocco, where they could be sure of rating press attention), having blown up with a resounding bang, is going to be re-opened as a public deadfall and various editors and paragraphers around town are being consulted as to how to make it a go. Even allowing for the fact that most of the original sponsors of these preposterous premises were well beyond the age where the most adroitly wielded camera could conceivably be flattering, the loud fanfares with which they announced that their saloon was going to be, oh so private, made them over night the town's first comedians.

The night after the opening, when to the immense chagrin of the members, no single reporter or cameraman had shown the slightest interest in the proceedings, Walter Winchell discovered the entire board of directors discussing what to do at the bar at Jack and Charlie's, and from that moment on the club was the most humorous floppo of the last two seasons. Now the management of the hotel which owns the place wants to open it as a muzhik trap where all the great public with its lovely, lovely money will be welcome.

This department can give them some advice as to how to get away with it. Throw away the name; tear down the building in which it is housed; forbid forever the presence of any of the pretentious phonies originally associated with the dreary dump, set up business on some other site with a new name, new management and new staff and see to it, if it can be arranged, that there is one fashion reporter, one Broadway paragrapher and one photographer present for each paying guest at all times. Publicity is the only thing people in New York go to night clubs for and every other proprietor in the business knows it.

Frank Chapman in a conventional black morning tailcoat and striped trousers, thank heaven, after his last year's gag of black trousers and striped coat. . . . Marion Cooley, big as life and, of course, urging every one to come to her own parties at the Pierre. . . . Mrs. Orson Munn in a hat sprouting an asparagus patch from the crown. . . . Sigourney Thayer, back from travels abroad and circulating again like crazy.

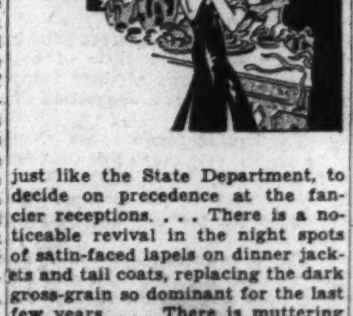
THE VERY NEXT DAY at an even dressier grange meeting, so far as the masculine element was concerned, but fewer female mad hatters, much the same chivalry foregathered to help the Lawrence Tibbetts celebrate their wedding anniversary. Noted for its super-elegant buffet, with an immense table laden with everything from cold smoked eel and bowls of foie gras to sturgeon and pots of hot kidney beans, all of it splashed down in floods of champagne, the Tibbetts' party is always one of the high points of the holiday season and calls out great numbers of musical celebrities as well as the regular Sutton place carriage trade. Visible at one sweep of the eye were Clara Bell Walsh, the Donald Oenslagers, Harry and Daphne Bull, Maury Paul, Dwight Fiske, Herman Sartorius, Peter Arno, Brock and Margaret Pemberton, Patricia Coffin, Jules Bache, splendidly be-monicled and tailed; Tullio Carminati, Russell and Marcia Davenport, Edward and Mrs. Hungerford and John Barbirolli. The party put a climax to the season before the town started melting away to Florida and Hot Springs and contrived to cap with a glittering panache the greatest holiday weeks of urban rowdydow in a decade.

—o-o—

THE WINE served at the most loudly publicized of all the season's debutante parties was a non-vintage champagne of such quality that most of the guests preferred whisky . . . The management of the World's Fair, you'll be fascinated to know, has a "Chief of Protocol" just like the State Department, to decide on precedence at the fancier receptions. . . . There is a noticeable revival in the night spots of satin-faced lapels on dinner jackets and tail coats, replacing the dark gross-grain so dominant for the last few years. . . . There is muttering among "New Yorker" magazine fans that the opening paragraphs in the "Talk of the Town" department are getting too serious and philosophical instead of being the amiable froth they used to. . . . That onetime local society reporter made no hit by remarking to Peter Arno that she enjoyed so much his covers on "Collier's." . . . The "Collier's" artist is Jaro Fabry. . . . Notable for her terrible mistakes in print, the same onetime word slinger had already made a grand entry at the same party by slipping on a rug and doing an elegant fall backwards, to which Mrs. Chet La Roche, standing near by, remarked sweetly: "There you go again, Molly, always falling on your face!"



—o-o—

FOR A COUPLE of decades now, the camera has threatened the reported and printed words as the paramount news recording device. Its potentialities have been obvious: it was spectacular, instantaneous in its impact on the consciousness of the beholder and it was graphic to folk who could neither read nor write. But the essential editorial mendacity of photographic reporting will, in the end, be its undoing and already there are visible signs and portents that the camera, as a dominant news device, isn't here to stay

The editors of "Life" magazine, than whom there are none more astute, have begun to see the defects of photography as an authentic record and are now employing the old-time sketch artist to supplement their camera record, and it's drachmas to obols that other picture-record magazines and even newspapers will follow their lead.

Features of General Interest

let Me Suggest

by Josephine Walter

WE will take up our lessons again this week where we left off last time, and talk once again about some of the decorative trends that will bear watching this year. Even if you have no intention of changing so much as a small vase in your own home, it is, I think, always rather pleasant to be able to recognize a new fashion when it jumps up and hits you in the eye. And from all indications, several of the new fashions are startling enough to do just that.

First off, I want to speak about color. Color, of course, like the poor, is always with us and although all colors are always seen in the fashion picture, there are some that stand out at different times. And, for the nonce, the violet, mauve, pink range has the leading role in decorating just as it has in women's fashions. In fact, it is very interesting to note that trends in decoration and in fashion often closely follow one another, especially in color.

—o-o—

The recent visit here of the Ballet Russe is a case in point. The color combinations that were used in many of the costumes would prove a veritable gold mine of inspiration for any woman contemplating the redoing of a room. Outstanding to me was the very unusual combination of chartreuse and tangerine in one costume and that of pink and an emerald green in another. Many decorators are suggesting just such combinations today, especially in such manner as a room predominately chartreuse with accenting touches of tangerine or a pink room with flashes of emerald green.

—o-o—

● MANY OTHER colors, too, are utilized, and bright yellows and sharp, tangy greens bear close watching. Black has been greatly touted for some time past but so far has proved an "also ran." But keep watching it, for it is apt to slip in and gallop home a winner any day now. Black in a dull, soft finish for a ceiling, shiny black for a tiny room to give it gaiety and sparkle and doors in a deep slate gray that has the feeling of black. Black as the background color for fabrics printed with brilliant floral patterns, and black furniture and accessories of classical derivation, accented with touches of gold.

—o-o—

Materials have never been more fascinating or more unusual, in addition to all the more usual but still very lovely materials. Chintz, both figured and quilted, is still the darling of the decorators and has increased its scope by being used more and more for wall treatments as well as for draperies and upholstery. Other materials that are also being used in this manner are scenic patterns, toiles and rough silks. Incidentally, these scenic patterns, many of which are now being placed on the materials through photographic processes, are being revived in a big way and promise to be increasingly important for some time to come.

—o-o—

● MOST INTERESTING, however, are the strange and unusual ways in which some fabrics are being printed. The passion for simulation that seems to have struck decorating in general is particularly active in regard to fabrics. Linens are printed to look like such animal skins as zebras and leopards while others resemble tortoise shell. Real snakeskins are also being used and shiny patent leather in both black and white are shown. Leather is becoming increasingly important because it is now possible to dye it any shade to match other fabrics in a room. In its most unusual form, however, it is dappled to look like a horse's hide. Then, too, many dress materials such as lame and thin chiffon velvet have been taken over by the decorators.

● THERE IS one fabric that has become the darling of the decorators because of its tremendous versatility—felt. It is used in Victorian and classical rooms on round tables as a cloth hanging to the floor; it is used as both an upholstery and a slip cover material in many luscious shades; is is used as rugs, plain as a background to smaller throw rugs, or alone as a throw rug itself, with appliques in geometric or flower patterns or finished with a thick wool fringe. It is even used for picture frames.

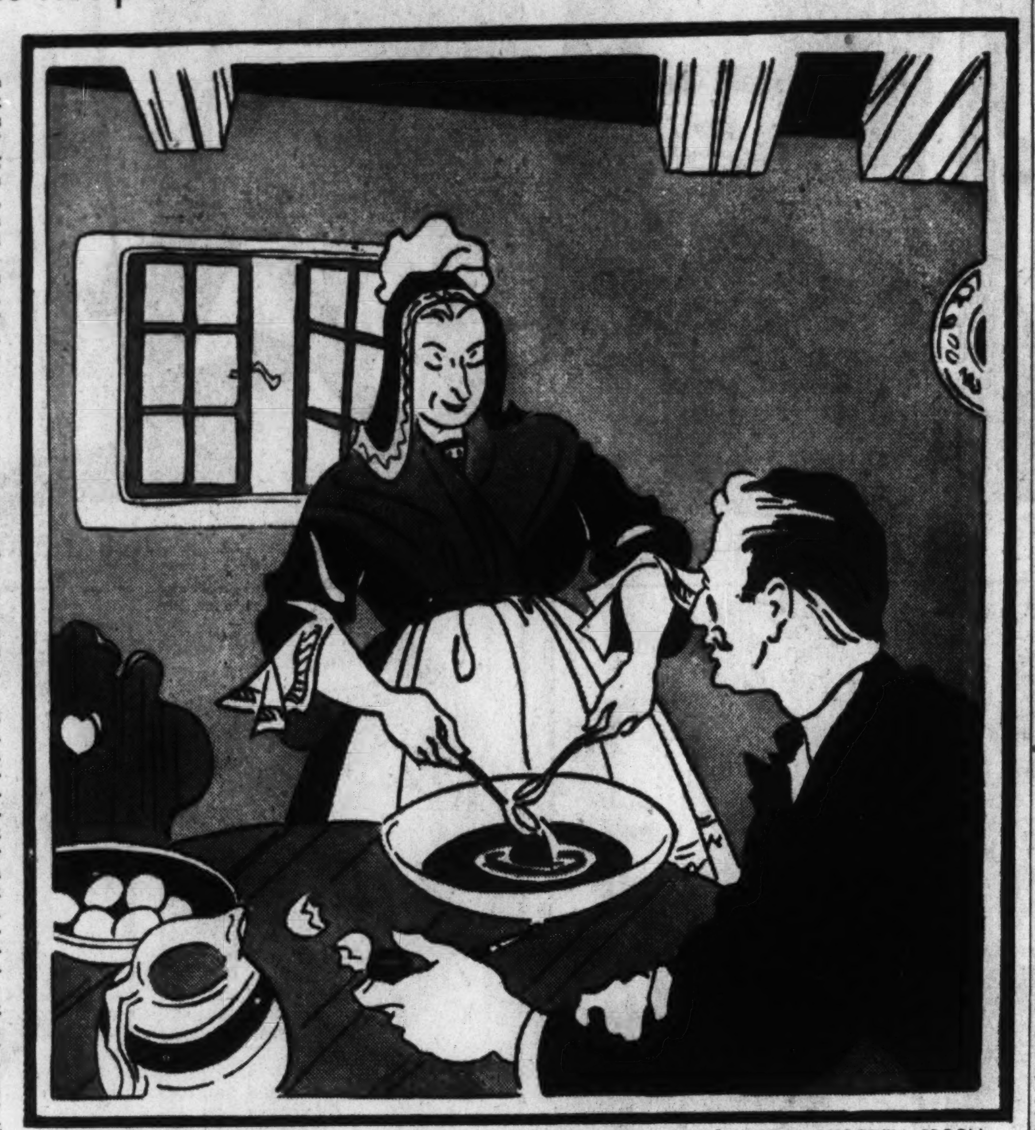
The use of mirror is a fashion that decorators are slow to give up because there is nothing like this material to add interest, perspective and sparkle to a room. However, there are constantly new and changing methods, both as to the treatment of the mirrors and the ways they are used. Much of the mirror is now treated in such a manner as to have a smoky, silvered effect that makes it less glaring than a real mirror and that gives it a certain antiquated feeling. Other mirrors, extremely decorative in effect, have crustal appliques of fruit or flowers applied to them to give added interest.

Wide expanses of mirror for wall panels or on doors, as well as over mantels, are still being used but they are now frequently broken up by being used as a background for some precious object such as a bust, a clock, or a barometer. And over and over again you will find mirrors framed in plaster to be used now for table centerpieces as well as to hang on walls or set on dressing tables. So cheerio for a gay and decorative season.

Scrambled Eggs—Light and Fluffy

Famous Chef Gives Recipe for Them That He Picked Up in France in 1902.

By George Rector



SHE INSISTED THAT EGGS SHOULD BE BEATEN IN A WOODEN BOWL WITH A WOODEN SPOON.

A SHORT time ago I read in the papers that President Roosevelt is a devotee of scrambled eggs for breakfast, and aren't we all? Since then I have been wondering just how the cook in the White House prepares the scrambled eggs, as it's a most delectable dish when done a certain way, and I will tell you what that way is now.

Once upon a time, and that was way back in 1902, I had lunch in the famous William the Conqueror Restaurant at Mont San-Michel in Normandy, France. This restaurant was owned and managed by a woman named Madame Poulard. She did much of the cooking herself. The specialties, de la Maison, were eggs. Her omelets were absolutely perfect—nicely browned on the outside and moist inside.

What made such a hit with me was the way she did scrambled eggs, and it's so simple that perhaps you, too, will wonder why you didn't think of it yourself. First of all madame insisted that eggs should be beaten in a wooden bowl with a wooden spoon, which is sound figuring as I will explain later.

The eggs were gently beaten and one tablespoon of Normandy cream was added for each egg along with a little salt and white pepper. Instead of cooking the eggs in a skillet as most cooks do, the bain-Marie (double boiler) was brought into play. The water in the lower part was boiling and a tablespoon of butter was put in the upper part to melt. The eggs were then poured in and gentle stirring started immediately and constantly until the scrambled eggs were sufficiently set to be served.

Naturally, without direct heat under the eggs, they cook slowly, but that's the trick and why they are when cooked so light, fluffy and tender. Smooth—never hard or lumpy. The theory of beating eggs in wood with wood is that it is less harsh than china or metal. We all know that beating an egg cooks it, so Poulard's method was the most gentle that could be employed to prepare them for cooking over steam in the bain-Marie.

—o—o—

I AM SURE you will welcome a chicken recipe which is a little different. All I ask you to do is read it carefully and unless I am greatly mistaken you will not delay too long in trying it.

Select a young chicken weighing about two and one-half pounds. Have it cut in four pieces. Cover with boiling water and simmer until tender, adding a little salt to the water to season. When the chicken is cooked allow to cool in the broth; then shred chicken meat into fine pieces putting the skin and bones back into the broth. Bring to boiling point and let simmer for 45 minutes. Remove cover from saucepan and let broth boil furiously for 10 or 15 minutes, as this will reduce the broth to about two cupfuls.

Meanwhile thinly slice one-quarter pound of mushrooms and saute them in butter over moderate heat until soft and lightly browned. Break one-half pound of Italian spaghetti into small pieces and cook in a large amount of boiling salted water until tender, or about 15 minutes.

Make a cream sauce as follows: Melt two tablespoons of butter, blending in two tablespoons of flour and gradually add the hot strained chicken broth (about two cupfuls), stirring until perfectly smooth and boiling point is reached. Then stir in one cup of heavy cream and three tablespoons of dry sherry wine. Divide the sauce, add the shredded chicken to one-half and the cooked spaghetti and mushrooms to the remaining half. Put the spaghetti half into a baking dish, making a hole in the center and banking it around the side of the dish. Pour chicken half in the center, sprinkle grated Parmesan cheese over the top and bake in a moderate oven until lightly browned—about 10 minutes.

In looking through my index I find that very few recipes have been given on shrimps during the past year, so I have picked out three corking good recipes for you to try:

SHRIMPS A LA CREOLE.

One pound of fresh or canned shrimps; one medium sized onion; one green pepper, diced; one-half cup mushrooms, thinly sliced; two cups canned tomatoes; one cup tomato soup (condensed); two tablespoons minced cooked ham; one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; salt; pepper; one tablespoon butter; boiled rice.

If fresh shrimps are used cook them in boiling water for 15 minutes. Drain; remove shells and black vein. Canned shrimps are all ready to be used and need no cooking. Cover onion and green pepper with water and cook until tender or about 10 minutes. In the meantime saute the sliced mushrooms in butter until soft. Then add the onions, green pepper and mushrooms to canned tomatoes and cook together for 10 minutes. Stir in thick tomato soup, add minced ham, Worcestershire, and salt and pepper to taste. Add shrimps and bring to boiling point. Just before serving add butter and stir until blended. Serve in a ring, or border of plain boiled rice.

MINCED SHRIMP LOUISIANNE.

One pound of fresh or canned shrimps; two tablespoons butter; one tablespoon minced onion; two cups canned cream of tomato soup; one-half teaspoon salt; pinch of cayenne pepper; one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; patty shells or toast.

Cover fresh shrimps with boiling water and cook for 15 minutes. Drain; remove shells and black vein and cut shrimps into small pieces. Canned shrimps are cooked and need only be minced. Melt butter and cook minced onion colorless for five minutes. Add cream of tomato soup and seasonings and bring to boiling point. Then add minced shrimps and heat thoroughly. Serve in patty shells or on freshly made toast.

FRIED SHRIMPS, MAR DONG.

Two cups of cooked shrimps; one cup of sifted bread crumbs; two eggs; three tablespoons cold water; two-thirds cup mayonnaise; one-third cup Bengal cutney (puree).

Remove shells from shrimps and split half through convex side removing black vein at the same time. Spread shrimps open but do not split in halves. Dip each shrimp in sifted crumbs and then in egg which has been beaten with water. Dip again in bread crumbs and fry in deep hot fat (hot enough to brown a one-inch cube of bread in 60 seconds) until nicely browned. Serve with sauce which is made by stirring the chutney puree into the mayonnaise until thoroughly mixed.

DESIGNING WOMEN---The Square Face

By Margaretta Byers and Consuelo Kamholz

CHAPTER NINETEEN.

WHAT bothers you most, if you are square faced, is your square jaw!

The right coiffure can make it do a marvelous disappearing act.

First of all, no dips or bangs for you because they shorten your face and make it squarer than ever.

Next, if you lift the hairline at the temples into two pronounced corners, this will make the jaw seem less square by contrast.

Then either a center part or a low side part can be worn with great success by this type of face, providing the hairline is squared off as described above.

Finally the square face must never crop the hair short at the sides leaving the bare face hanging out with that determined jaw well in evidence, as you see it in the left-hand sketch.

On the other hand, a long bob will obliterate that jawline completely.

Now this type usually has straight brows. We don't advise lifting them bodily because Nature designs brows to follow the bony structure of the face.

And elevating them so drastically gives the painful look of a real face-lifting job.

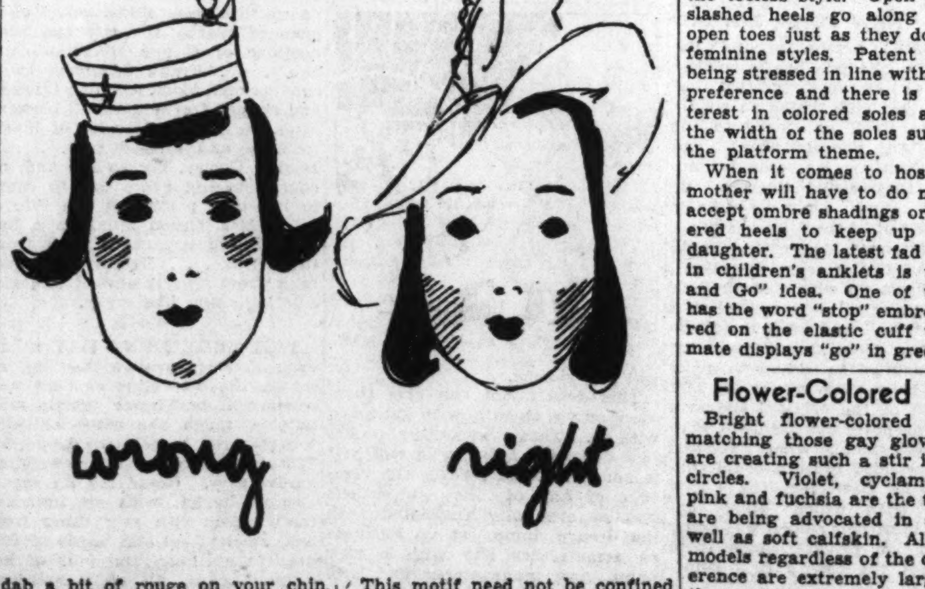
But you can by discreet plucking or penciling, or a little of both, leave those brows at their natural level and yet get a suggestion of a low arch.

The square face's rouge should be applied very much like the round faced type's.

This may sound strange. But actually the problem here is much the same.

This face, too, needs length. And so we start the rouge low and near the nose and extend it well over the offending jaw.

Never let anyone induce you to dab a bit of rouge on your chin. Because this shortens the face.



The square face is apt to have a straight, thin mouth. But curves should be applied discreetly and not too fulsomely or they will shorten and widen the face.

Millinery for the square face should never be flat, naturally. This type, like the round face, needs height.

But you must get it differently. Those soft, floppy brims pulled downed diagonally in the Garbo manner are particularly flattering.

This motif need not be confined to sports hats. Even a dinner hat can get the same swooping effect.

The square-faced woman who tries out these principles will, we think, get from the shops something far better than her former square deal.

If you have a long, thin face, soft, fluffy coiffures will give you that "round-cheeked" look all women wish they had.

TOMORROW—The Thin-faced Woman.

Use of Bible In Education Of Juveniles

Not Really Difficult When One Thinks It Over, Says Patri.

By Angelo Patri

"WE agreed," writes a mother interested in teaching children the good way of living, "that the Bible is invaluable in child education, but some of us here would like to have a few words on how to use it."

I agree that it is not easy to use the Bible intelligently in the education of children, but it is not really difficult when one thinks it over. I like to begin with the old stories. Children love the story of the Creation, the Garden, the naming of the animals. That story can be told over and over again; it has to be, until there dawns an appreciation of the personal relationship of the individual child to the Creator.

The story of Moses is fascinating, the wandering in the wilderness, the Ten Commandments. I would teach all children those commandments as a guide for life. Joseph and his Brethren, Esther, Daniel. Daniel is a boy's hero and his life pattern a fine one for them. The Psalms are to be searched for comforting verses. I like the First Psalm, the Twenty-third, the Ninety-first; and I would coax, cajole, drive and wheedle children into learning them for use in the day of tribulation.

During the recent flood in New England a lone woman faced the destruction of her farm, her all. Friends called her, saying, "Leave the house and come up here to safety." But she clung to her home. As the water rose, creeping ever nearer her doorstep, she groaned, "God, you couldn't let this happen to me." And she heard very distinctly, "It shall not come nigh thy dwelling." A verse out of her childhood had spoken, and she was content. The flood did not touch her. In the moment of distress a Bible verse had sustained her.

The stories of the New Testament are fine. Children love the Parables. Every one of them holds treasure for children and old age. I would try to have children learn the Fifth Chapter of Matthew, the Sermon on the Mount, and try, harder, to have them live by it. The Bible is a history of the human race; its weakness and wickedness, its strength, courage, faith, nobleness, are all there, written in beautiful language. The Bible is literature. It contains great poetry. It holds challenge and inspiration for the human soul. One finds there what one needs, and one may overlook what he does not need without loss.

The begats are of interest only to Bible scholars. They are of no interest to children, or to most of us grown people. There are chapters and verses of interest only to specialists of one sort or another. They, too, can be skipped without loss. What we need from the Bible is its strong drive to righteousness, its clear direction to walk in the way of Trust and Beauty.

The Stories of the Bible, versions that select what children can read easily, and profit by directly, are easy to get, and easy to use. Teachers and parents who want to use the Bible can well begin with such helps. It is only the matured, trained reader who can read straight through the Bible with profit. Children need selected bits, the dramatic stories, the musical Psalms and the Parables, first. Give them a taste of good Bible reading and they will go the rest of the way themselves.

Open Toes Popular In Juvenile Sandals

MOTHER'S acceptance of cut-out sandals is leaving its imprint on daughter's footwear fashions. Outstanding among the juvenile shoes for the coming spring are numerous versions of the toeless style. Open sides and slashed heels go along with the open toes just as they do in adult feminine styles. Patent leather is being stressed in line with mother's preference and there is much interest in colored soles and heels, the width of the soles suggesting the platform theme.

When it comes to hosiery fads, mother will have to do more than accept ombre shadings or embroidered heels to keep up with her daughter. The latest fad to appear in children's anklets is the "Stop and Go" idea. One of the socks has the word "stop" embroidered in red on the elastic cuff while the mate displays "go" in green letters.

Flower-Colored Bags

Bright flower-colored bags are matching those gay gloves which are creating such a stir in fashion circles. Violet, cyclamen, blue, pink and fuchsia are the tones that are being advocated in suedes as well as soft calfskin. All of these models regardless of the color preference are extremely large and of the squashy type. Some models are without handles and are to be carried carelessly under the arm. Others have very wide double handles.

The vogue of the soft bag has brought new interest in fabrics so the woman who is tired of carrying a leather type may vary her costume with one of grosgrain or faille silk, embroidered material or a tweed that matches her suit. Snakeskin in colorful effects is another diversion in handbag materials.

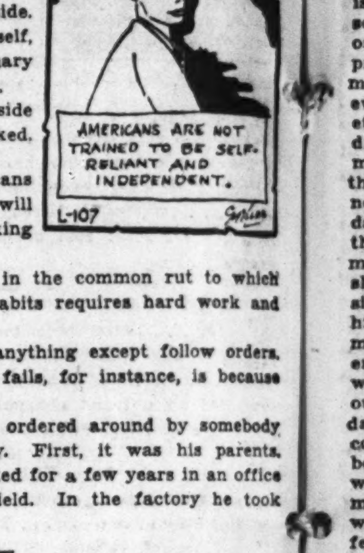
Case Records of a Psychologist

by Dr. George W. Crane of Northwestern University

CASE L-107: Ronald, aged 9, decided he would be kind to the family canary, and let it out of the cage for a little while. So he opened the door and released the bird, although he had to shoo it out of the cage. It seemed rather timid about accepting its new freedom.

After a couple of short flights to the top of the piano and then the radio, it seemed to grow panicky. Returning to the cage, it beat its head against the wire bars, vainly striving to get back inside. To prevent the bird from injuring itself, Ronald finally opened the door. The canary hopped inside the cage in apparent joy.



AMERICANS ARE NOT TRAINED TO BE SELF-RELIANT AND INDEPENDENT.
L-107

"Why didn't he like to stay outside where he could fly around?" Ronald asked.

—o—o—

DIAGNOSIS: Thousands of Americans are much like Ronald's canary. They will not accept new freedom if it involves taking on new obligations. Why?

Because it is easier to drift along in the common rut to which we are well adjusted. To build new habits requires hard work and months of practice.

Most of us aren't educated to do anything except follow orders. One reason why the average salesman fails, for instance, is because he has had a canary background.

All his life previously he has been ordered around by somebody else who took the major responsibility. First, it was his parents. Then his school teacher. Maybe he worked for a few years in an office or factory before entering the sales field. In the factory he took orders from the foreman.

—o—o—

WHEN HE entered sales work, he found himself largely on his own. How he should budget his time, was largely his own responsibility. For the first time in his life he was comparatively free—outside his canary cage.

But he seldom knows what to do with himself, for Americans are not trained to be self-reliant and independent. He worries. He is afraid. He sheds "cold sweat" in getting up nerve enough to contact his customers.

Under the alibi that he prefers a regular salary instead of the hectic up-and-down income of the commission check, he soon gets a job in office or factory, quitting the sales field. Canary fashion, he is actually eager to avoid responsibility for directing his own behavior, so he punches a time clock thereafter, and lets a foreman do the head work.

—o—o—

THERE IS still plenty of room at the top because we have too many human canaries. Part of a psychologist's work consists of helping build self-reliance in such people. The wife who must run home to mamma, or the man still tied to his mother's apron strings, are simply variations of the canary. Our divorce courts are full of such yellow birds who squawk instead of sing.

Take a warning, therefore, and build self-reliance in your children. Let them have spending money, a garden, a pet to care for. Don't smother their individuality by too much coddling. Get them used to staying at home occasionally with the maid, while you go out, etc.

Lose Weight Safely without suffering a hungry moment, or taking strenuous exercises or harmful drugs
FROM coast-to-coast, you now hear women singing the praises of a thrilling new reducing method. A method which Dr. Damrau of New York demonstrated in tests among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, was responsible for an average loss in weight of 7 pounds per month. Most amazing, this method does NOT call for special diet lists. You never suffer a hungry moment. Nor is it necessary for you to take strenuous exercises, or harmful drugs. All you have to do is eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating, and drink ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice, mixed with ¼ of a glass of water, before meals and at bedtime. Thus reducing the caloric intake considerably.
How This Pleasant Way Takes Off Excess Fat!
Nothing could be easier, or more pleasant. Yet!—this is what happens. First, this delicious drink satisfies your craving for rich, sweet foods. You have less desire to overeat fattening foods—but you do feel comfortably full. Second, the grape sugar in Welch's is quickly consumed, and by this process helps nature to consume excess fat. Thus weight is lost naturally and safely. And this remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men, as it is for overweight women.

Irene Rich, past 40, still has her lovely slenderness of 16. She says, "Eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating, and drink Welch's Grape Juice daily before meals." Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably.
Watch One Thing Carefully
Follow this proved way to take off excess fat. Eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating—and be sure to use Welch's pure, aged, full-strength grape juice before meals. Always made from the pick of the grape crop. No water added; no artificial coloring. Good Housekeeping approved. Insist upon genuine Welch's Grape Juice for the results you want. For economy's sake—buy Welch's by the case.
NEW TYPE TOMATO JUICE THRILLS THE NATION
If you think all tomato juice is alike, try Welch's new vitamin-rich tomato juice for the thrill of your life. A noted chemist tested five brands and found Welch's Tomato Juice superior—larger Vitamin C content; as much Vitamin A as milk—and rich in Vitamin B. Welch's is so rich and thick, you can add ⅓ water, or ice, and still have a most delicious tomato juice. So it's economical to serve. Get Welch's Tomato Juice from your dealer today. It's pure, pasteurized, laboratory controlled and Good Housekeeping Approved. Double your money back if you don't say it's the finest tomato juice you ever tasted.

Features of General Interest

Music and Music Makers

by Thomas B. Sherman

ELIE SIEGMEISTER, a composer and lecturer at the New School for Social Research in New York, has written an interesting and well documented pamphlet called "Music and Society" which has been issued by the Critics Group press. Judging from the fact that it was handed to me by a friend and is not on sale at most book stores I gather that it has had a rather narrow circulation, which is a pity, for it has an importance for every one who has an interest in music as a continuing institution.

Stated briefly it holds that music, like all other human institutions, is affected by and has an effect upon the society of which it is a part. Stated thus it does not sound like a particularly daring or original thesis. Even so it is surprising how many people regard music as a thing wholly apart from every other phase of life and society; who seem to feel that it is drawn miraculously from some mysterious hinterland of the soul, that it exists in a vacuum and has no correspondence with the everyday affairs of the world. Indeed this view is not confined to sentimental adolescents. As Siegmeister shows, it is shared by certain musicians. Even such a creature of his times as Stravinsky says that music produces in us a "unique emotion having nothing in common with our ordinary sensations and our responses to the expression of daily life," while Walter Damrosch, commenting on the fact that Schubert was poor and Mendelssohn was rich and they both wrote good music, concluded that it proved "to what a limited extent genius is affected by the conditions of existence."

—o-o—

In opposition to this unreal view of music Siegmeister contends, and to a certain extent proves, that the history of music is organically and dynamically related to the history of society; that music at all times has a social function corresponding to the objective needs of society; that social changes cause changes in music and that specific classes always have had music of their own though the music of the several classes have specifically interacted on each other.

—o-o—

● BUT TO AVOID misunderstanding Siegmeister, it should be remembered that when he speaks of music he means all kinds—work songs, campaigns songs, military songs as well as the "luxury music" which is performed in concert halls and opera houses.

But even if we confine ourselves to serious or "classical" music it is easy to demonstrate the general truth of Siegmeister's hypothesis.

When Bach wrote for the general public of his day his music had, in its surface aspects at any rate, a jolly, homely quality which agreed with the predilections of the small town burghers and country people he knew; when he wrote for the nobility it had a sort of galanterie. The element of struggle which is evident in Beethoven's music has a definite relationship to the then new conceptions of the dignity and rights of man and the possibilities of human achievement. The Wagnerian revolution in opera was to a certain extent an expression of his reaction to the political revolution in Germany, for it was his intention to create a monumental synthesized art form that would be accessible to the whole "volk." Schumann's romanticism drew its impulse from the poetry of Jean Paul Richter and others who, before him, were a part of the general romantic movement in European letters. The disillusionment of the immediate post-war years gave rise to the unsentimental, objective music of the post-armistice composers. And so on.

—o-o—

But Siegmeister, like most persons who approach a large and complicated subject with a clearcut hypothesis, has a tendency to push it too far. He would have you believe, for instance, that the "Marriage of Figaro" was a direct result of Mozart's disillusionment with aristocratic society which followed by his expulsion from the services of the Archbishop of Salzburg and his contact with egalitarian ideas that had sifted in from France.

—o-o—

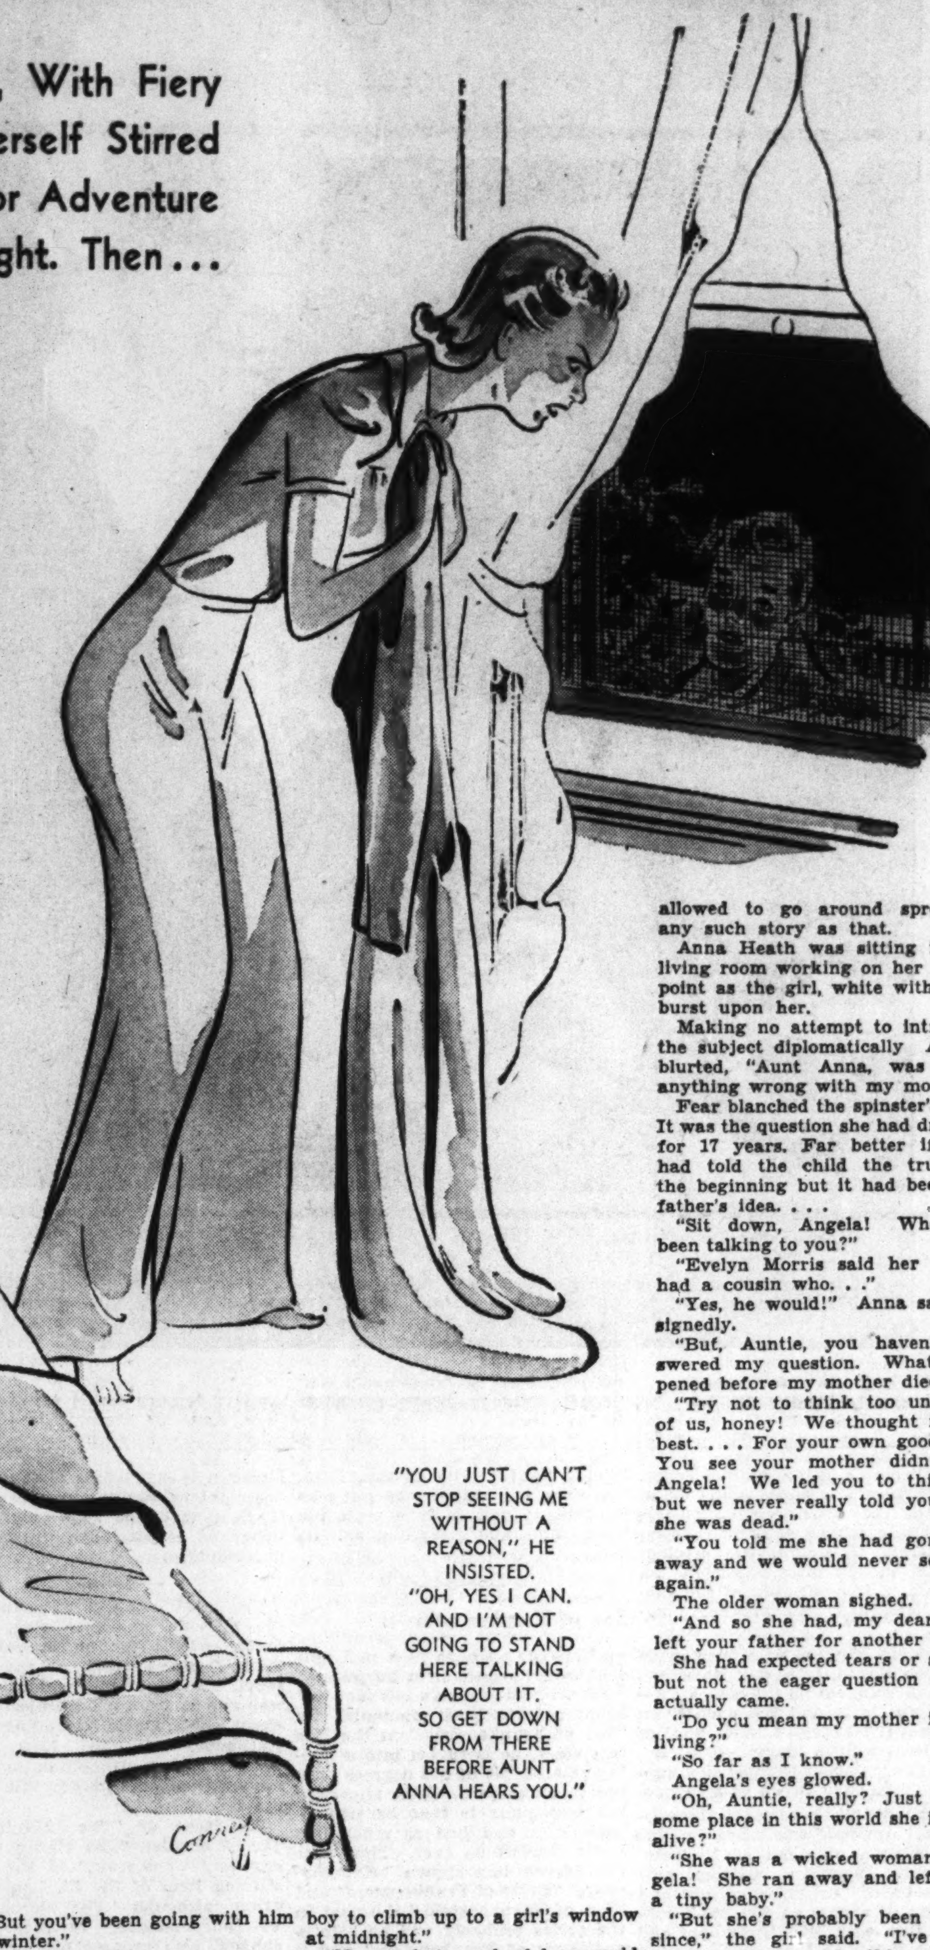
● THAT MOZART had a strong will and a broad, generous sensitive nature and was therefore unsuited for the narrow functions of the court composer, is quite evident. But it is equally evident from the available facts that he had little conscious knowledge of revolutionary ideology. A man who could say of Voltaire, "He died, as he deserved, like a dog," could have had little knowledge of French intellectualism.

Siegmeister also attached too much importance to what can only be called propaganda music — songs for workers' choruses, operas of strong contemporary social significance and the like. No doubt great and lasting music can be written for such a purpose but only when it synchronizes with deeper, recurrent human impulses.

Even so the pamphlet is interesting and important if only because it shows that new movements in music do not appear spontaneously but always have a whole

Restless New Serial Starting Today By Vida Hurst

Angela Heath, Youthful and Slim, With Fiery Red Hair and Blue Eyes, Felt Herself Stirred By Strong Desires and an Urge for Adventure One Moonlit, Rose-Scented June Night. Then . . .



"YOU JUST CAN'T STOP SEEING ME WITHOUT A REASON," HE INSISTED. "OH, YES I CAN. AND I'M NOT GOING TO STAND HERE TALKING ABOUT IT. SO GET DOWN FROM THERE BEFORE AUNT ANNA HEARS YOU."

CHAPTER ONE.

ANGELA HEATH was not asleep. Wide awake she lay in the high four-poster bed which was flooded with moonlight, watching the frilled white curtains billow away from the open window. The air was heavy with the perfume of roses. June roses which rioted in crimson profusion from the trellis below. It was a night for romance.

The kind of night, Angela thought, when something thrilling seemed bound to happen. She had the feeling as she often did that she had the leading role in an exciting play. It was the opening night. Almost time for the curtain to rise.

When it did, she would sweep upon the stage to take her part in the drama of a life far removed from the one she had known as an inexperienced girl of 18. But she was not unprepared for it. Unseen forces had been tutoring her for years.

Intangible desires stirred in her. An urge for adventure which sometimes frightened her was in her blood. Trembling but determined, she stood in the wings waiting for her cue. . . .

A stealthy sound beneath the window made her sit up in bed. A moment later the rose-laden trellis creaked with an added weight, then a boy's dark head appeared between the ruffles of the dimity curtains. With the silent swiftness of a young animal Angela flashed across the room. Her voice was scornful but cautious.

"What do you think you're doing?'"

"I have to talk to you," he whispered.

His hands gripped the window ledge. His thin face, strained and eager, pressed against the screen.

"I told you I didn't want to see you again."

"But you can't treat me like that. What have I done?"

Angela shrugged.

"You can't just stop seeing me without a reason," he insisted.

"Oh, yes I can. And I'm not going to stand here talking about it. So get down from there before Aunt Anna hears you."

"I won't unless you promise to give me a chance to see you some other way."

"You can't bully me," the girl cried. "I don't have to listen. I can put the window down."

"But you won't," he pleaded. "Look, Angela, I'll do anything. Promise anything. Only don't stop going with me."

She raised her arm to lower the window but before she could do so the frail wooden trellis snapped beneath its added burden, dropping the boy to the ground. He lay there groaning and almost immediately lights flashed on in the adjoining room.

"Now he's done it," Angela thought. She opened the door looking like an excited child in pajamas and bare feet.

"What in the world is that?" the gray haired woman inquired.

"I'm sorry," Angela began.

"Some one is groaning, Angela! It sounds as if they've been hurt."

"It's Louis Brown. He fell from the trellis outside my window."

"The trellis?" he aunt repeated. "Angela, you don't mean . . ."

"I couldn't help it, Auntie! You see I quit him yesterday."

The round faced plump little spinster was fastening a dressing gown about her.

"Put your slippers on and call your father."

It was not necessary. Milton Heath stood in the hall outside his room looking like a rosy faced copy of his older sister. Plump, gentle, distressed.

"I thought I heard voices. What is it?"

Leaving Angela to explain, Aunt Anna was already half way downstairs.

"A fine thing to have happen in the middle of the night," she muttered.

—o-o—

UNLOCKING the front door she crossed the wide porch and hurried around to the side of the house. But the boy was no longer alone. His cries had attracted a passing motorist. Robert Morris, of all people. President of the school board, and an elder in Aunt Anna's church. As well as the father of a daughter Angela's age.

Evelyn Morris was one of the nicest girls in town. Nothing like this would ever happen to Evelyn, Aunt Anna reflected bitterly.

But she was too loyal to her own motherless charge to desert her in this hour of need. Sternly she bent over the boy who had recovered sufficiently to sit up.

"Where are you hurt?" she demanded.

"He's probably broken a rib or two," Robert Morris surmised.

"It's a wonder it wasn't his neck," Aunt Anna retorted.

The broken trellis with its crushed, detached roses was irrefutable evidence of what had happened. If she was to protect her niece, it must be done quickly.

"I should think you'd have too much pride to keep hanging around a girl who has quit you," she said.

But scarcely had the words left her lips when Angela rushed to the boy's side, bending over him with broken words of sympathy.

"Louis, darling, I'm so sorry. I do hope you're not hurt."

Anna Heath saw the older man's expression of doubt harden into disapproval. It had been useless after all. Like most of her attempts where Angela was concerned. The girl's father was no help, either.

He was as ineffectual with his daughter as he had been years ago with her mother. He stood there now looking at the culprit sympathetically.

"Can you walk, Louis?" he inquired. "Or shall we send for a doctor?"

Painfully the boy lumbered to his feet.

"I can walk, I guess."

"I'll get the car out and take you home," Milton offered. "Or, maybe, Mr. Morris wouldn't mind since it is on his way."

Robert Morris consented to help the boy into his car while the other three walked across the wet grass to the porch. Not a word was spoken until the door had closed behind them, then Aunt Anna said: "This will make a fine story, Angela."

The girl cried hotly, "It wasn't my fault."

"You'll get the blame for it. If you've quit him why did you call him darling?

"I was sorry for him."

"Louis ought to have had more sense than to pull such a trick," her father said mildly. "But there's no use discussing it now. We'd better go back to bed and get some sleep."

—o-o—

THAT was the trouble with Milton, Anna Heath fretted as she climbed into bed. That had always been his trouble. He was utterly incapable of worrying about anything until it was too late. As it had been finally with Rosemary.

How could he be so indifferent to the fact that there were increasingly evident signs that Angela had inherited many of her mother's tendencies?

"She's born for trouble," Anna sighed. "Tonight was just one instance of it." Angela had never cared for Louis Brown. The infatuation had always been on his side yet the tenderness in her voice would have fooled a less suspicious person than Robert Morris.

Mr. Morris would tell Evelyn and the story would be all over town tomorrow. She hoped Angela wasn't lying awake thinking about it. The child might have been more upset than she admitted.

Stealing from bed, Anna opened the connecting door between the two rooms, but Angela was asleep. One arm thrown above her head. Her face with its mop of auburn curls so angelic in the moonlight that it brought a lump into the spinster's throat.

Twelve hours later, Angela was prancing down Main street serenely oblivious of comment. Slim, young and with fiery red hair, deep blue eyes and a smile which would have been worth money across footlights, she neither cared nor suspected what people said.

Her temperament was keyed so much higher than that of the average girl of her age. She moved in a world of dreams with no conception as yet of her own power. Life in the shabby old house at the top of the hill had been kind to her.

Her father adored her. Why shouldn't all men feel that way? Other girls did not trust her, but she was too popular with the masculine sex to be ignored. If a hostess wanted her party to be a success, Angela Heath must be included. It was an unwritten rule observed even by those who resented it.

As she entered the postoffice, she met Leslie Baxter, son of the village banker. Leslie had just returned from the State university, where he had been graduated a few days earlier. Brown-eyed and smiling, he took her hand and held it.

"I telephoned you last night," he said, "but you weren't at home."

"No. I went to a movie, but I was in bed before midnight."

"So I understand," he laughed but she could sense the disapproval in his voice. "Why don't you behave yourself, Angela? Sometimes I think you deliberately do things just to give the cats in this town reason to talk."

"Are they talking?" she inquired disdainfully.

"Are they? I heard all about it before I'd been downtown an hour."

Angela's chin was in the air.

"Is it my fault if a silly boy tries to climb the rose trellis?"

"But you've been going with him all winter."

"I'm not now."

"Can I depend on that?" he asked eagerly. "Because if it's true, I'll put my bid in now for Evelyn's party tonight."

"I didn't know Evelyn was having a party."

"Yes, she called me this morning and said she was having all the old crowd."

"Fine! I'll stop in to see her so she can invite me," Angela said airily.

She found the other girl sitting on the shady side porch of a large house at the edge of town. Evelyn was doing a cross word puzzle. Neat as a pin in a cool blue and white printed house coat with fair hair and long lashed eyes Evelyn surveyed her friend with both curiosity and envy.

Angela was wearing light blue slacks with a white shirt open at the throat. Evelyn's mother didn't approve of slacks, Angela remembered, amused at the idea. Well, Evelyn's mother wouldn't.

"I understand you're entertaining tonight," Angela remarked.

Evelyn looked surprised.

"Who told you?"

"Leslie. I met him downtown. He asked me for a date."

"Tonight?" Evelyn asked, her face reddening, as Angela nodded. "But he can't. He promised to come to my party."

"He said you were having the whole crowd," Angela confided.

Too late she realized her mistake. Evelyn might be having all the rest of the crowd but she had not intended to invite Angela. This fact was obvious even without her faltering explanation.

"I'm sorry, Angela, but papa has put his foot down. . . . After last night. . . . He absolutely forbade me to ask you."

Prickles of resentment bristled up and doown Angela's spine but her voice was composed as she drawled, "Oh, really? How funny! I can't imagine anyone taking such a childish trick seriously."

"It isn't exactly childish for a boy to climb up to a girl's window at midnight."

"No one but a school boy would do such a thing," Angela asserted loftily. "Not that it matters to me what anyone thinks. Louis is only 17. That's one of the reasons he bores me."

"Of course, it isn't only that. . . . What I mean is that isn't the only reason," Evelyn said, defensively.

—o-o—

ANGELA'S blue eyes widened.

"You mean there are others?"

"Well, after all, Angela, it isn't as if you were like the rest of us. You've always been different. And just as papa said with a background like yours you ought to be doubly careful."

"What's the matter with my background? My father may not have as much money as yours but aside from that there's no difference."

"Oh, but there is," Evelyn cried eagerly. "Your mother . . ." She clapped her hand over her mouth. "I'm sorry! I shouldn't have said that. I promised I'd never mention it to anybody."

"Mention what?" Angela demanded fiercely. "My mother died before we moved here when I was a tiny baby. She was lovely and beautiful and charming. Everyone adored her."

Evelyn looked at her with a satisfaction mixed with pity.

"I know that's what they've always told you but you see papa has a cousin who used to live in the same town. She told him the TRUTH."

Without another word Angela rose from the swing where she had been sitting and darted down the steps. Anger blazed in her eyes. Tears scorched her throat. How dared Evelyn Morris talk to her like that? She would go to her aunt and insist upon her calling Evelyn's father. Force him to admit that he had lied.

Let them think Angela was wilful and unrestrained but no one could say anything about her mother and get by with it. She'd show them. That smug little cat allowed to go around spreading any such story as that.

Anna Heath was sitting in the living room working on her needle point as the girl, white with rage, burst upon her.

Making no attempt to introduce the subject diplomatically Angela blurted, "Aunt Anna, was there anything wrong with my mother?"

Fear blanched the spinster's face. It was the question she had dreaded for 17 years. Far better if they had told the child the truth in the beginning but it had been her father's idea. . . .

"Sit down, Angela! Who has been talking to you?"

"Evelyn Morris said her father had a cousin who. . ."

"Yes, he would!" Anna said resignedly.

"But, Auntie, you haven't answered my question. What happened before my mother died?"

"Try not to think too unkindly of us, honey! We thought it was best. . . . For your own good. . . . You see your mother didn't die, Angela! We led you to think so but we never really told you that she was dead."

"You told me she had gone far away and we would never see her again."

The older woman sighed.

"And so she had, my dear! She left your father for another man."

She had expected tears or shame but not the eager question which actually came.

"Do you mean my mother is still living?"

"So far as I know."

Angela's eyes glowed.

"Oh, Auntie, really? Just think some place in this world she is still alive?"

"She was a wicked woman, Angela! She ran away and left you a tiny baby."

"But she's probably been sorry since," the girl said. "I've read stories where such things happened and in the end they always come back. After all I do belong to her. I'm her own flesh and blood."

Aunt Anna shivered as if an icy blast of wind had blown across the room.

"That's why you must watch yourself, honey! Nip your tendencies for evil before they have a chance to develop."

"What do you mean my tendencies for evil?"

Aunt Anna groaned, but the determination to do her duty at any cost kept her voice stern.

"Men were mad about her just as they are going to be about you. Your father adored her. He would have done anything for her. But she longed for romance and excitement. A good husband and home weren't enough."

—o-o—

DIMLY Angela realized what she meant. Romance and excitement. Yes! The longing for something to happen . . . The feeling that she must make it happen . . . That she must put herself in a position to take her part in that drama of life where as yet the curtain concealed the stage . . .

She heard herself talking as if she were someone else.

"That's why I want to get away from here, Auntie; I know how she felt and you can't expect me to stay in a town like this all my life. Particularly," she added with dramatic cunning knowing it would be far more important to her aunt than it was to her, "now that I am in disgrace."

"What are you talking about?" Aunt Anna asked sharply.

"Evelyn is having a party tonight and has invited all our crowd except me."

"Evelyn is jealous of you. She always has been jealous because Leslie Baxter likes you better."

"She said it was because of last night. Her father has set his foot down . . ."

Anna Heath frowned.

no reason for leaving town. It wasn't your fault and I've no intention of letting you take the blame for it."

"But I'm going anyway, Auntie! You know I've always wanted to live in the city."

"It takes money to live in the city," Aunt Anna remarked, picking up her needle point.

"I'll have some. I'll get a job."

"That's easier said than done," the older woman reminded her.

Angela could see that Aunt Anna didn't believe her and there was no use arguing about it. Angela's plans were made and when it came to laying out a course of action and following it she rated with the most famous tacticians of history.

No route was too circuitous nor was it possible to waylay her. She had made the decision to get a position in the city years ago before she had taken the business course which she had just finished.

That evening at supper she looked at her father with new eyes. Why had her mother left him? He was so good and kind. Afterward she locked her bedroom door and sat on the edge of the four poster bed staring hungrily at the pretty painted likeness of the mother who seemed to have been resurrected from the dead.

The miniature was in color faithfully reproducing the auburn curls and deep blue eyes. Even the smile, provocative, dazzling, curling unexpected tendrils around your heart was Angela's own . . .

—o-o—

"MOTHER!" she whispered. I forgive you, darling, whatever you did. And sometime I know you will want to see me again. You will come back to me."

"Angela!" called Aunt Anna from the foot of the stairs.

Angela rose and replaced the picture on the dimity curtained dressing table. She had expected Leslie to telephone before he came but he was waiting for her on the front porch dressed in white flannels. Angela closed the door behind her and led the way to the swing.

"You'll have to go without me, Leslie. I'm not invited."

"Not invited? But Evelyn told me she was having everyone in our crowd."

"Everyone except me," Angela smiled. "I'm in disgrace on account of last night. But you must go without me."

Seating herself in the swing she gazed at him starry-eyed.

"Of course you know I won't," he stated, sinking down beside her. "Let Evelyn have her old party."

"But, darling, she's having it for you."

"Then she should have my girl," he grumbled. Taking her cool, little hand he stammered, "I love you, Angela! You're different from any other girl I've ever known. . . . I'm going to work in the bank next week. . . . Look, darling, we could be married by fall. . . ."

But his words, broken and earnest, had no reality for her.

"I can't Leslie. Don't ask me."

"Why can't you?"

She did not take her hand from his, but he had the feeling that she was infinitely removed from him.

"I can't explain it," she admitted, "except that I just know I was never meant to settle down to the kind of life I'd have here. I must have adventure . . . excitement. . . ."

"What kind of excitement?" he demanded jealously.

"Let's not talk about it," she murmured. She could not explain her dream of a stage with the curtain ready to lift on a drama of thrills and romance such as could never happen in this little town. But a subtle sense of her own power mounted to her head like wine as they sat, hand-in-hand swinging gently back and forth in the gathering darkness.

Full-Skirted Themes

If you are adopting the fad of gay taffeta petticoats, you might as well ally them with frocks which look best with petticoat ruffles. Full-skirted themes with an inch of bright petticoat showing at the hemline are in keeping with the advance spring trend. Since taffeta is heralded as an important fabric for the coming season you might try a navy or black taffeta frock with a red and blue plaid petticoat.

Smartest Hats Of 1939 in Bright Colors

New Headgear Also Features Wide Mixture of Fabrics and Straws.

THE more materials and colors that are involved in the concoction of a woman's hat, the nearer it comes to achieving smartness for 1939. Winter resort models that are on display in the St. Louis shops present a galaxy of colors and such a mixture of fabrics and straws that they seem to be pieced together.

Suede and straw form the most popular combination, although felt and straw or suede, straw and corded ribbon are conspicuous in the collections. As for the color alliances, any proves style right providing that it is sufficiently brilliant. Tones of chartreuse, royal blue and cerise often are used together, while white or black may form the background. Pink and green offer another suggestion, following a trend that is becoming successful in sports apparel.

The hat which has a straw crown and a felt brim illustrates one style that is being featured extensively. Equally impressive is a reversal of this theme with a wide brim of white straw and a crown that is covered with vivid felt flowers or leaves. The stovepipe crown of felt in three tones arranged in a spiral formation proves most striking, especially if the wide brim that forms the base happens to be white.

Anyone who likes to blossom out in advance of the spring season in a flower-covered toque will find colors and shapes to her liking. Various hues of blue and the violet tints are represented in cleverly styled pill boxes covered with tiny blossoms. If such a hat is to be worn with a black costume, then a long black veil is draped to the shoulders. Navy blue apparel calls for a navy veil.

Trim little hats that are made entirely of suede or straw are being covered with twisted strands of contrasting veiling. In fact, veiling by the yard is playing such an important part in the new fashions that many hats are created of it exclusively. Sailors as well as turbans and pill box types have succumbed to this vogue.

When Mr. Wellein emphasizes "quick relief" he's only one of thousands who have commented on the speed with which REM works. REM is thorough, for coughs resulting from colds, because it works two ways . . . in the throat and also systemically. REM is much more than just a "tickle stopper."

Ethel Barrymore in Role Of Canadian Centenarian

'Whiteoaks,' Arriving at American Theater Tomorrow Night, Based on Affairs of Family In Mazo de la Roche's Series of Novels.

ETHEL BARRYMORE, last here in a revival of "The Constant Wife" in 1935, returns to the American Theater tomorrow night in the character of 101-year-old Gran Whiteoak, in Mazo de la Roche's dramatization of her "Jalna" saga. The play, called "Whiteoaks," was a success of last season on Broadway.

Five novels compose the "Jalna" saga—"Jalna," "Whiteoaks of Jalna," "Finch's Fortune," "The Master of Jalna" and "Young Renny." All were drawn upon in some part for the play, so that four generations of one Canadian family appear. One incident, however, is the pivotal point around which the action revolves. That incident involves the drafting of Gran Whiteoak's final will, and it makes Gran and Young Finch, her grandson, the principal characters.

In the role of Finch is Harry Ellerbe, best remembered in St. Louis for his performances in the Ibsen revivals of Mme. Alla Nazimova. Ellerbe replaced Stephen Haggard in the role before the company left New York. Allan Hale is to be seen as Piers, another grandson, in place of Richard Carlson of the original company and Martha Hodge has replaced the star's daughter, Ethel Barrymore Colt, as Pheasant, but Lenore Chippendale, Wyrley Birch, Reynolds Denniston, Robert Shayne and others of the Broadway cast are still with it.

The "Jalna" series, most important fiction work written in and of Canadian life, tells of the internal relations of a large family settled in Ontario. Of Anglo-Indian origin, the family in its later stages shows an odd esthetic tendency, due to a marriage to a governess in the line. With all of the Whiteoaks intent on getting Gran's money when she dies, she discovers that Finch is leaving the house at night to practice on the village organ and makes him confidant of her long, sleepless watches. She leaves the money to him to help him do what he wishes to do, unhampered.

Miss Barrymore first learned of the character she plays in an excited cablegram from her brother, Lionel, then in England to make the film, "A Yank at Oxford." He had seen Nancy Price as Adeline in the London production of "Whiteoaks" and urged her to secure American producing rights. Miss Barrymore's London agent did his best but failed.

Yet when Victor Payne-Jennings, London producer, decided to bring the play to this country and Miss Barrymore was still available, an intervening venture in "The Ghost of Yankee Doodle" having gone under, he secured her for the part. "Whiteoaks" ran 865 performances in London, to establish the third longest run on record there, and was seen 112 times in New York.

The transcontinental tour originally was to include eight weeks of Canadian time, which it still does, but the original date, in rough draft, was for Saskatoon on Jan. 16. Miss Barrymore, who had stipulated that the route should "follow the birds" and keep out of cold weather as much as possible, insisted on the change that substited St. Louis for Saskatoon. The company will go even farther South from here and will not reach Saskatoon until May 1. The tour will end appropriately in Ontario the first part of June.

—o-o—

WITHDRAWAL of "Golden Boy" from the list of the American's plays for the season has resulted in a rearrangement in bookings which will bring "Shadow and Substance" to St. Louis three weeks ahead of its formerly announced date and puts the Sinclair Lewis play, "Angela is 22" back a week.

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in their racy Olympian comedy, "Amphitryon 38," arrive a week from tomorrow night at the American, to be followed by Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Julie Haydon and Sara Allgood in "Shadow and Substance" on Jan. 30. "Angela is 22," in which Philip Merivale has replaced Lewis in the lead, although the author remains in the play, is set for Feb. 5 and the Cornelia Otis Skinner revival of "Candida" for Feb. 13.

"Amphitryon 38" is S. N. Behrman's adaptation of a comedy by the French dramatist, Jean Girardoux, and the "38" of the title refers to the fact that this is the thirty-eighth time an author has found amusing material in the Greek legend of Jupiter wooing the faithful wife of a soldier, Amphitryon, while Amphitryon is away at the wars.

"Shadow and Substance," by Paul Vincent Carroll, was voted the outstanding drama from abroad last season by the New York critics and the star, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, received an award from the Drama League for his performance in the role of a scholarly Catholic canon in Ireland.

Slugging-Match For Stars While History Is Made

By Colvin McPherson

GOOD citizens who have been itching to see Robert Taylor smacked all over the place, even as he was not in "The Crowd Roars," are seeing it at Loew's Theater this week. The several fistic combats in which Taylor and Wallace Beery engage are noisily realistic and Bobby-boy gets his pretty mug well mussed up. But I, for one, hardly think that is what most of the movie public desires.

On the point of Mr. Taylor's being an A1 he-man, the public is well convinced by now and is ready at any time, if necessary, to accept the handsome romancer as successor to William S. Hart, whom he somewhat resembles. The Taylor-Beery feature, "Stand Up and Fight," therefore, is commendable, not for the pugilistic prowess of the stars, but for new views of the American scene.

It goes into the frontier of Western Maryland, long before the Civil War. Its shows railroads in their horseless carriage stage. It centers around slave-running by abolitionists and establishes that hijacking and double-crossing were familiar American customs even in that day. It is colorful, it is comic and whatever nonsense has been written to suit Mr. Taylor's particular abilities, or Mr. Beery's particular abilities, it is an interesting film.

Sequences showing how the passengers pushed trains up grade when the locomotives couldn't make it by themselves, or showing how the trains raced against stagecoaches, are worth all the crudeness of characterization. For the competition and the eventual victory of the railroads constitute a phase of an American story that never grows old.

Generally the writing reveals only how Taylor, a bankrupt aristocrat, goes to work for the stage line, learns of the slave-running and does valiant sleuthing to clean up the business. And in part for Florence Rice, who happens to own the stage line and doesn't know about the wickedness going on under her very nose.

The nefarious traffic is in the hands of Beery, manager of the line. And since Beery eventually is whitewashed, one wonders if he knew much about it. Apparently as evil as Lucifer at the opening of the film, he turns out to be a kindhearted old walrus who saves Taylor's life in a snowstorm. Superb clown and as amusing as he is inconsistent, he contributes much to the entertainment.

For program balance at Loew's, there is "Blondie," first of a series of comedies to be based on Chic Young's comic strip, which appears locally in the Post-Dispatch. With Penny Singleton, hair bleached, as Blondie, and Arthur Lake as Dagwood, there is facial resemblance to heighten the familiar humor of the film. Dagwood's whirlwind departures to the office, his six-decker sandwiches late at night and many other features of the comic strip reappear. The farce employs time-tried elements of American stage and screen comedy plot—a big contract to land, suspicion over another woman, a night in jail and huge financial reward at the finish.

Ambush.

RECOGNITION for the most grotesque casting in history should go here and now to "Ambush," at the Ambassador. Gladys Swarthout, operatic star, is required to portray, under contract which may or may not be a bone of contention, a bank secretary who doesn't sing a note. Ernest Truex, who almost any week is the timid soul or the absent-minded professor, heads a band of bank robbers. Broderick Crawford, the original Lennie in "Of Mice and Men" on the stage, is a member of the robber band and just another plug-ugly.

Antonio Moreno, who once made love to Garbo, is a city detective. Polly Moran, once a top comedienne in films, is behind the counter in a cheap restaurant and one of the least in the lineup. The film needs only Shirley Temple as a gun-moll and Bobby Breen as a G-man.

Yet with all its complex arrangement, "Ambush" has more genuine thrills than nine out of 10 melodramas. Ingenious writing, new methods of crime, a split-second timing of events as the bank robbers flee, with Miss Swarthout and Lloyd Nolan as their prisoners, all leave many viewers breathless. Whatever else it is, "Ambush" is good melodrama.

While the excitement is kept at high pitch, the police, not so stupid as usually pictured, go about their business in a painstaking, methodical way. The film is, in some sense, a tribute to day-by-day hard work.

"Zaza," which gets incomparably bigger billing at the Ambassador than "Ambush," is acted very energetically and understandingly by Claudette Colbert, Helen Westley, Bert Lahr and others but is so tame, so lacking in essential conflicts that its costuming is more interesting than its drama. Zaza, this time, is a rather nice girl who happens to fall in love with the wrong man and gives him up. So what?

—o-o—

Son of Frankenstein

BURNED up once in a mill and blown up once in a laboratory, Dr. Frankenstein's old Monster keeps coming back for more. In "Son of Frankenstein," at the Fox this week, he is tossed into a boiling sulphur pit of 800 degrees temperature and presumably is stewed but our guess is that he will be back later and just as much like Boris Karloff as ever. Now that the screen has shown "Frankenstein," "Bride of Frankenstein" and "Son of Frankenstein," the next in the series probably will be "Mother-in-Law of Frankenstein" and it ought to be a pip.

"Son of Frankenstein" runs an hour and 39 minutes, with several murders, many screams and much lightning, but aside from being highly imaginative, it is no very great shocker. Its events presume that the original Dr. Frankenstein's son, also a doctor, returns after 25 years, finds the old chassis his father assembled still about, and begins to tinker with it. Basil Rathbone is the doctor, Josephine Hutchinson his American wife, Bela Lugosi an insane and highly atmospheric shepherd.

"Swing, Sister, Swing" second Fox feature, shows Johnny Downs, Kathryn Kane, Eddie Quillan and other jitterbugs teaching the country a new dance step. Only the hungriest of jitterbugs will find it nourishing.

—o-o—

Two continued-run programs, at the Missouri and St. Louis, have much reward for movie patrons. "The Dawn Patrol," at the Missouri, has captured the tension of war and is vigorously projected by Errol Flynn, David Niven and Basil Rathbone. "While New York Sleeps" is a metropolitan mystery story with smooth progress throughout its length.

An issue of "The March of Time," entitled "The Refugee: Today and Tomorrow," is the most stirring item of the St. Louis program, although "The Declaration of Independence," another short subject, also arouses patriotic fervor and the two features, "Off the Record" and "King of the Underworld" have their own worth.

Jackie Cooper Gets Lead in 'What a Life!'

Jackie Cooper has signed a new contract with the Paramount studio and will be starred in "What A Life!", comedy about a high school youth, which was seen at the American Theater in November. Betty Field, currently in the same play on Broadway, has been engaged to play opposite him and will make her screen debut in the role she now has.

Dance Pantomimes At the Auditorium

The program which Erdix Winslow Capen, creator of dance pantomimes, will present in Assembly Hall No. 3 at the Auditorium tomorrow night, is composed of a talk entitled "An Evening With the Mask Theater," followed by a demonstration which includes these subjects: Chinese Actor-Warrior, Mad Monk of the Middle Ages, Grotesque-Ghoul, Sailor Dance and Byzantine Church Figure.

Capen, who comes from Boston, is making his first appearance in St. Louis, under auspices of the St. Louis committee for the publication, Social Work Today.

Spanish Dancer In Concert Jan. 27

Sarita, Spanish dancer who recently has appeared in a concert with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and elsewhere through the East, will be seen in a program of Spanish and Latin American dances at the auditorium on Friday, Jan. 27. She will be accompanied by Ricardo Romero, young South American composer-pianist, with Josephine Schomogy, soprano, as assisting artist.

The concert is for the benefit of the Russian Refugee Children's Welfare Society. V. Netchvolodoff, 5418 Cabanne avenue, is in charge of the concert.

Irish Schoolmaster Lands Another Play on Broadway

Paul Vincent Carroll's 'The White Steed' Succeeds to the Favor Won Last Season by 'Shadow and Substance'—Along Same Lines.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.

THE Irish reckon events to celebrate by anniversaries, and Paul Vincent Carroll is back on Broadway with a second triumph in playwriting, just a year from the month when his "Shadow and Substance" appeared on Broadway, to win him rich royalties. That success financed him, an Irish schoolmaster, to quit his classroom job in Glasgow, Scotland, for the more affluent task of providing manuscripts for the Broadway theater.

Carroll's new play, "The White Steed," is revealed as a document similar in attitude to "Shadow and Substance," but one with even more understanding reprimand of the Catholic clergy. This slim, bald schoolmaster is an Irish Catholic who seems intent upon telling the clergy that there is as much to correct within their own frocked circles as there is to correct among their flocks.

In "The White Steed," he presents the living room of Canon Matt Lavelle's parochial house in the seaside village of Lorcan, County Louth, Ireland. The Canon is a wise old Catholic father, bed-ridden with paralysis, who tosses orthodox laws of theology overboard when they are opposed to the happiness and well-being of his people.

The Canon's age, together with his physical incapacities, persuades the church authorities to send in a new priest to take over his active duties. They send Father Shaughnessy, a vigorous churchman who is a little dictator at heart.

Father Shaughnessy organizes private moral squads to spy on private citizens and eventually tries to dictate his own laws as opposed to those of the legal police. The young schoolmaster he makes such a virtual slave that he becomes a weakling and almost ruins himself with drink. As the Canon remarks of the schoolmaster when he hears that he has been so cowed by the priest: "As a teacher he is a gem; as a man he is a spittoon."

The pushing Father Shaughnessy pushes farther in the private lives of people with his self-appointed morals squad, which meets its come-uppance when its members try to become the personal dictators of Nora Fintry, an Irish girl, and a good one. She is in love with the young schoolmaster, but will have no part of him until he breaks away from Father Shaughnessy and becomes an independent man himself, either bad or good.

The very wise old Canon suddenly regains strength and rises to call out to a hysterical mob and tell each of them their individual sins. Then the Canon turns on the priest and tells him in blistering terms the harm he has done and admonishes him that it is not so much the rules of theology he should follow as it is the humane emotions of the heart.

A splendid cast has Barry Fitzgerald, star of the Dublin Abbey Theater, in the role of the Canon and George Coulouris as the dictatorial priest.

DODIE SMITH, a gently sentimental playwright, came in this week with her new "Dear Octopus," which extols the virtues of English family life as opposed to the rough reality of the outside world.

Miss Smith is an erstwhile London stenographer who became an author in 1932 when she wrote the hit, "Autumn Crocus," under the pen name of C. L. Anthony. Three years later she wrote, under her own name, the Theater Guild hit, "Call It A Day," which had Philip Merivale and Gladys Cooper in the leading roles.

"Dear Octopus" is another play in the same mood, the sugary, tea and spice story of an English Matriarch and her kindly husband who use their golden wedding anniversary as a device to settle all the troubles that beset their children and grandchildren who have wandered away too long from the family fireside. Sparkplug of the cast is Lucile Watson in the role of a grandmother who hasn't lost her sense of humor—or of understanding.

Two-Piano Recital For Civic League

TWO-PIANO arrangements of standard works from Mozart, Bach, Mendelssohn, Schubert and more recent composers will be heard in the program with which Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Nemenoff will make their St. Louis debut, at the Auditorium Opera House Tuesday evening. The concert is in the Civic Music League series.

The pianists will open the program with the Overture to Mozart's "Magic Flute," in the transcription by Busoni. Two works by Bach are followed by a Mendelssohn Scherzo, written especially for four-hand performance on the piano.

In the second half of the program is a two-piano paraphrase of waltzes from Schubert by Serge Prokofieff, contemporary Russian composer, which was presented for the first time in America last Nov. 25. Near the end of the program is a "Valse Tzigane," composed by Mischa Levitzki and dedicated to Luboshutz and Nemenoff.

The two pianists originally were solo artists but following their marriage eight years ago, gave up individual concerts. Luboshutz, was born in Russia, where he received his musical training. His wife was born and educated in France.

Their program, in detail:

Overture to "The Magic Flute"—Mozart-Busoni
Now Comes the Gentle Savior — —Bach
Sonata in G major — — — — — —Bach
Scherzo — — — — — — — Mendelssohn

Musical Satire

"Matrimonial Follies," a musical satire in eight scenes by the Rev. Daniel A. Lord, will be presented at the St. Louis University auditorium on Feb. 9 and from Feb. 11 to 18. A cast of 200 will take part in the production, which is sponsored by The Queen's Work.

Pop Concert Today, Then Season's First Tour by Symphony

TSCHAIKOWSKY'S Fifth Symphony, in its entirety, is the major selection for the second "pop" concert of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, at the Auditorium Opera House at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, under the direction of Vladimir Golschmann.

Also to be played are the Suite for Strings, Four Horns, Two Flutes and English Horn, derived from the music of Henry Purcell by John Barbirolli, conductor of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony and Debussy's Prelude to "The Afternoon of a Faun."

The concert will mark the orchestra's last local appearance until the regular subscription concerts of Jan. 27 and 28, since it leaves tomorrow on its first tour of the season. On its return, it will have Jascha Heifetz as guest artist, playing two concertos new to St. Louis—the No. 4, in D Major, by Mozart, and the Second, in G Minor, by Prokofieff—and Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony as its own major offering.

The first stop on tour is at Quincy, Ill., Tuesday night. The following evening the orchestra will make its fourth annual appearance in Chicago, in an all-Russian program which will include Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony. Subsequent concerts will be given at Battle Creek, Mich., Thursday night; Toledo, O., matinee and evening, Friday; Columbus, O., Saturday night. The orchestra returns to St. Louis next Sunday afternoon.

Television Not Ready for General Public, FCC Finds—Father Coughlin's Rejection of Invitation to Take Part in Discussion of "What Is Americanism?" Causes Change in Town Meeting of Air Plans—Studio Gossip.

TELEVISION is not ready for standardization or commercial use by the general public, the Federal Communications Commission finds, although progress in development is satisfactory. Without standardization, television remains a laboratory and stunt affair. The official pronouncement on television is contained in the FCC's annual report to Congress under the signature of Chairman Frank R. McNinch. The commission points out that television transmitters are operating and television receivers are on the market, but the equipment is costly and "because of the experimental status of the art may become obsolete at any time due to new developments."

Thus far, 23 experimental television stations have been authorized by the FCC, including the RCA-NBC station in the Empire State Building, New York City; the CBS station being built in the Chrysler Building, and four stations to be erected by General Electric. One of the new General Electric television transmitters will be the most powerful in this country. It will be of 10,000 watts power, will be put into operation within three months and will be built on a 1500-foot hill 12 miles from Schenectady, N. Y. The studios for it will be in WGY's building in Schenectady. Images will be broadcast from an ultra short-wave transmitter on the WGY building on 1.4 meters to the television transmitter 12 miles distant, and will be received and rebroadcast in the 66-72 megacycle band or on about 4.5 meters.

"FATHER CHARLES E. COUGHLIN'S curt rejection of an invitation to participate in a panel discussion of 'What Is Americanism?' in the Town Meeting of the Air set for Thursday night, Jan. 19, has led to a cancelation of the original plans for the broadcast," Martin Codel writes from Washington. Instead, the Town Meeting of the Air discussion that night will be between Morris Ernst, a noted liberal attorney; Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party; Prof. J. B. Matthews, who assailed Communist party activities before the Dies committee, and Channing Pollock, the playwright, and the topic will be 'Is America Menaced by Foreign Propaganda.'

"When Earl Browder, the former Communist candidate for President, asked the network for time last month, presumably to reply to Coughlin's attacks over the priest's independent network of stations, NBC launched a plan whereby Fr. Coughlin might participate in the Thursday night forum, conducted by George V. Denny, along with Browder, Dorothy Thompson and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson. The subject suggested was 'What is Americanism?' Codel writes.

"Father Coughlin, who has sought to buy time over the network for his Sunday discourses but has been unsuccessful because of the network's policy not to sell time to clerics or religious organizations, refused in a telegram in which he said that 'Americanism is not a debatable subject with me nor is it controversial' and added, 'I am constrained to refuse your kind offer lest I should be suspected of accepting a sop from the NBC and its censorial commisars.'

"Thereupon Mr. Denny, who had offered to pick up Fr. Coughlin from Detroit or pay his expenses to New York, invited him again to choose his own subject, declaring the Town Hall programs had never been censored. The Detroit priest again declined, although it is understood Browder, Thompson and Johnson were all prepared to participate in the forum. Representative Martin Dies, chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, was for a time considered for the program in the priest's place, but later it was decided to schedule him separately on another spot the night of Jan. 19 on the Mutual network."

VIRGINIA PAYNE, who plays the title role in KSD's Ma Perkins serial, also has the part of Mrs. Mulhern in Road of Life and is a member of the Arnold Grimm's Daughter cast . . . Charlie Grimm, former manager of the Chicago Cubs baseball team, has begun another weekly sports program on WBBM, at 10:15 p. m., Mondays. . . . Alec Templeton, the blind pianist, has been engaged for seven appearances in the National Barn Dance Saturday night . . . Half-hour broadcasts, designed to give high school students a creative interest in radio as a social and educational force, are scheduled on WMAQ, Chicago, at 10:30 a. m. Saturdays under the title, High School Studio Party . . . Dr. James Rowland Angell, former president of Yale University, who now is educational counsellor to the NBC, and Dr. Walter Damrosch, NBC music counsel, were among speakers at a luncheon in New York recently given in honor of Irene Wicker, who writes, directs and acts in her musical plays for children; Paul Leyssac, Danish translator of Hans Andersen's fairy tales for the current network series; Laurie York Erskine, author of the Renfrew of the Mounted serial, and Pauline Gibson, whose Chimney House serial is on the WEAF net Sunday mornings.

CLEM McCARTY will have Edwin C. Hill as assistant when he covers the Joe Louis-John Henry Lewis fight at 9 o'clock Wednesday night, Jan. 25, on KSD and the WEAF net. . . . Johnny Mercer, song writer and singer, has been signed as a permanent member of the cast for Benny Goodman's Tuesday night show. . . . Leonard Warren, the baritone, who will sing the role of Paolo in the Metropolitan opera broadcast of "Simon Boccanegra" next Saturday afternoon on KSD, was a co-winner with John Carter, the tenor, of last year's Metropolitan Opera Auditions finals. Following the award, he went to Italy and spent last summer coaching for operatic parts. . . . Joan Blondell has postponed her New York trip and radio appearances with Walter O'Keefe and Orson Welles because of a picture assignment with Bing Crosby.

A number of St. Louis actors are playing roles in Sunday broadcasts planned to depict the activities of various agencies associated with United Charities. This morning, Hans Kolmar will direct an I Am My Brother's Keeper program at 10:15 on KMOX in which parts will be taken by Martha Jensen, Frances Buss, Mildred Basden, Bill Miller, Barry Mineah, Dorothy Liese, Jay Holmes, James Woolvine, Bobby Karnes and Robert Schulman. Mary Alice Hart will play the inquiring reporter at 10:30 on KWK. Harry McClain will direct a Letters to the Public program at 11:30 on WEW in which the roles will be taken by Lillian Eastham, Jane Garrett, Bill Miller, Vic Zusenak, James Woolvine and John Fleming.

A PERFORMANCE of the opera, "Martha," with a libretto rewritten in the vernacular of 1939 for speaking of the lines, is scheduled for 9:30 next Monday night, Jan. 23, on WGN and the Mutual network. The arias in the opera will be sung by Attilio Baggiore, WGN's tenor, who has sung in performances of the same opera at La Scala, Milan, and the Royal Opera, in Rome, as Lionel; Kathryn Witwer, soprano, as Lady Harriet; Margery Mayer as Nancy and Mark Love, basso, as Plunkett.

A monthly radio forum arranged by the General Federation of Women's Clubs has been assigned a half hour on the WJZ net at 2:15 p. m. the first Wednesday of each month.

The Music as You Desire It programs of recorded fine music are still broadcast on WENR, Chicago, at 11 o'clock nights.

Under the title, "What Price America?", the discovery and waste of this country's natural resources and the fight to regain control of them and conserve them will be dramatized in programs scheduled at 4 p. m. Saturdays on the CBS net, starting Jan. 28. The programs will be gotten up jointly by the Department of the Interior and the CBS. Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes will speak briefly in the opening broadcast.

In addition to broadcasting the speech of Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson at the annual banquet in St. Louis of the National Aeronautic Association, KMOX will put his address on the CBS network at 9:45 Tuesday night.

The first early morning broadcast in Spanish by a United States station will be a 9 o'clock daily feature on W2XAD, Schenectady, starting tomorrow. W2XAD operates on 21.55 megacycles at that time with a beam directed toward South America. This broadcast will supplement the night time news broadcast which W2XAF, Schenectady, has carried since February, 1927.

Nathan Milstein will play Tschaikowsky's Violin Concerto with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra next Sunday, when the program will include the same composer's Fifth Symphony. Helen Jepson will be the Concert from Detroit soloist.

Another radio forum will be started Jan. 31 when WENR, Chicago, will broadcast the first of a weekly series of 8:30-9:30 Tuesday night WENR Town Meetings for Chicago speakers. The idea is to discuss local Chicago problems rather than those of national interest. The moderator of the meetings will be Dr. Samuel N. Stevens, dean of the University College, of Northwestern University.

Prof. John T. Frederick's "Of Men and Books," now scheduled at 1:45 p. m. Tuesdays on WBBM, will be shifted to 1:45 Sundays on and after Jan. 29.

FOR FIELD MEASUREMENTS OF FACSIMILE BROADCASTING

SPECIAL DOUBLET AERIAL USED BY THE ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT OF WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY IN MAKING FIELD MEASUREMENTS OF THE INTENSITY OF RADIATIONS OF W9XZY, THE POST-DISPATCH'S FACSIMILE RADIO EDITION TRANSMITTER, AND W9XPD, THE ULTRA HIGH FREQUENCY BROADCASTING AUXILIARY OF KSD. THE AERIAL IS COLLAPSIBLE, AND CAN BE CARRIED AROUND IN AN AUTOMOBILE AND ERECTED ALMOST INSTANTLY WHEREVER IT IS DESIRED TO MEASURE THE SIGNALS. IN THE PICTURE, WHICH WAS TAKEN ON THE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY CAMPUS, PROFESSOR ROY S. GLASGOW, CHAIRMAN OF THE ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT, IS STANDING IN THE REAR, AT THE LEFT. ROBERT L. COE, CHIEF ENGINEER OF KSD, IS HOLDING THE AERIAL. INSTRUCTOR HENRY ZIMMERMAN IS TAKING NOTES, AND LOUIS SHOTLIFF, A STUDENT IN THE ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT, IS MANIPULATING THE CONTROL OF A METER.

Jussi Bjoerling Sings Tonight in Detroit Concert

MUSIC by Bizet, Dukas and Saint-Saens is among that programmed for the Radio City concert at 11 a. m. today, on KWK. Maurice Baron will conduct.

Part of the "Requiem Mass" by Faure will be performed by the choir of the Broad Street Presbyterian Church, Columbus, O., under the direction of Nadia Boulanger at 1:30 p. m. today on the CBS net.

Ernest Schelling, the pianist, will play Paderewski's "Polish Fantasia" with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra at 2 p. m. today on KMOX. John Barbirolli also will conduct Beethoven's "Prometheus" overture, Schoenberg's "Verklarte Nacht" for string orchestra, the intermezzo from Delius' "A Village Romeo and Juliet" and Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony.

At 2 p. m. on the WJZ net and KWK, Frank Simon's Band will begin another series of weekly concerts. The program includes Goldman's "Jubilee," Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Cortege," Massenet's "Fete Boheme," the De Capua "Maria Mari" and a cornet solo by Miss Verna Kellogg of Flint, Mich.

Competitors in the Metropolitan Opera audition at 4 p. m. today on KWK will be Garfield Swift, a New York baritone; Mimi Roselle, a lyric soprano, of Scranton, Pa., and Morton Bowe, the tenor, who is known to most listeners.

Jussi Bjoerling is to sing the "O, Paradiso" aria from "L'Africana," Rossini's "La Danza," Sibelius' "The Maiden Returned From the Trysting Place," Hildach's "The Spring," Althen's "Land of the Walsing's Glory" and "Finiculi, Finicula" in the Concert from Detroit at 8 p. m. today on KMOX. The Swedish tenor, who will be singing for the second time this season in this concert series, will return home in a few days after highly successful appearances at the Metropolitan Opera.

Tomorrow, Margaret Speaks will again be the soloist in KSD's concert at 7:30 p. m., singing Vincent Youman's "Through the Years," Arditi's "Il Bacio," Strauss' "While Hearts Are Singing" and the "Un Be Di" aria from "Madame Butterfly" with Alfred Wallenstein's symphonic orchestra. Marek Weber will feature music of Hungary or by its composers at 9 p. m. on KSD, playing Kondor's "The Old Gypsy" as his violin solo.

Wednesday, the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra will play from 2 to 3 p. m. on the CBS net, its program including Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony.

Thursday, Jose Iturbi will conduct a concert by the Rochester

"CAVIAR ON THE COB"

Facsimile Signal Strength Checked By Washington U.

A START has been made by the electrical engineering department of Washington University and the engineers of KSD on their co-operative project of measuring and plotting the relative intensity throughout the St. Louis area of the radiations from W9XZY, which broadcasts the Post-Dispatch's facsimile radio edition, and W9XPD, KSD's ultra high frequency broadcasting auxiliary on 31.6 megacycles.

These field measurements, which will extend as far as St. Charles, Mo., are but part of a project which will include measurements of radiations with the transmitting aerials positioned vertically, horizontally and at various angles, and a study of the effects on transmission and home reception of intervening buildings of various heights and types of construction, of neighborhood and general interference and of the types and positions of home aerials.

The facts gathered, and the curves plotted, will be forwarded to the Federal Communications Commission in Washington for study by its engineers as a guide for developing a definite policy as to facsimile and ultra high frequency broadcasting.

Measurements of the radiation of the stations have already been made by Prof. Roy S. Glasgow, chairman of the electrical engineering department at the university; Instructor Henry Zimmerman and students, from the vicinity of the transmitter on the Post-Dispatch Building, Olive at Twelfth street, for a distance of 14 miles out Twelfth street, Gravois road and Highway No. 30 to a point beyond Fenton, and west as far as Ladue and Warson roads. Similar measurements will be made in every direction from the transmitter location, so that there will be data available for plotting the field

Captains in Peril Program on KSD For Boy Scouts

At 6:30 Tomorrow—Cheri McKay Show in Second Week—Marie Harrington Schedule Changed.

TOMORROW evening's Captains in Peril program on KSD, from 6:30 to 7 o'clock, will be devoted to a special program for the Boy Scouts of America, which will dramatize episodes in the history of the Boy Scouts, including the work of the St. Louis scouts in the tornado of 1927. At the conclusion of the dramatization, Russell Gardner, chairman of the 1939 campaign fund drive for the Boy Scouts, will make a brief address.

KSD's new Cheri McKay Company musical show, at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday through Saturday, will bring a variety of musical entertainment this week. Tuesday evening, Cheri McKay will feature "My Bill," which Helen Morgan made famous. Wednesday evening, Russ David will feature Chopin's "Minute Waltz" as a piano solo and Miss Cheri McKay, another favorite song. They will be supported throughout the week by the Toppers and Bill Foreman, tenor.

Marie Harrington's The Romance of Home-making programs have been rescheduled on KSD at 11:45 Wednesday and Friday mornings instead of Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The story of "Jennie-on-the-Green," a woman gambler, will be related by the Old Ranger in KSD's Death Valley Days period Friday night.

James Barton, star of "Tobacco Road," Tim and Irene, the radio comedians, and Irving Jaffee, the skater, will be interviewed by Fred Uttal on KSD's For Men Only program Tuesday night. Men and women students from the University of Pittsburgh will battle it out on Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson's program Tuesday. Bob Hope's guests that night will be Patsy Kelly, the film comedienne.

Tommy Dorsey will have his brother, Jimmy, and the latter's orchestra in his show Wednesday night. Fred Allen plans to have Marie V. Payne, one of New York's seven licensed women taxicab drivers, in his Town Hall Tonight Wednesday and to take his Mighty Allen Art Players to sea in search of the billows titled "Salt on Ham."

Donald Dickson, the baritone, has been selected as the singer to replace Nelson Eddy KSD's Sunday Charlie McCarthy hour while Eddy takes a vacation from radio after Jan. 29. Unknown two years ago, Dickson got his start in radio for a career which has been featured on important NBC programs, was engaged for the Metropolitan Opera spring season in 1937, and sang as a guest twice in the Charlie McCarthy period last year.

NEW SUPER SOAP WINNING MILLIONS!

IT'S SIMPLY AMAZING HOW MUCH MORE SUDS YOU GET! RICH, ACTIVE SUDS THAT WASH YOUR CLOTHES FAR WHITER CONCENTRATED Super Suds
for WASHING CLOTHES
GET THE BLUE BOX!

COMBINES SUPER SPEED WITH SUPER SAFETY

New Concentrated Super Suds in the Blue Box Ends Washday Drudgery for 1,200,000 Housewives!

Here is the last word in granulated soap—a super-cleansing soap that surpasses other less modern package soaps in 5 IMPORTANT WAYS!

This amazing super soap is the new CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS in the blue box. It is TAILOR-MADE to the order of American women!... For 7,000 housewives, testing the most popular brands of granulated soaps in their own homes, told us exactly what they wanted in the perfect laundry soap. Colgate-Palmolive-Peet spent over a million dollars to make and perfect the new Concentrated Super Suds!

Already more than 1,200,000 women are using this new super soap . . . and what amazing results they are getting! For this new Concentrated Super Suds in the blue box gives you:

1. SUPER ACTION! Twice as much suds as you get from less modern package soaps—richer suds, cup for cup, in hardest water—thicker suds that last three times as long. You don't need to add extra soap to finish the job!

2. SUPER SPEED! Bursts into rich suds in 5 seconds! Soaks dirt free in 10 minutes! Grime and grease dissolved in an instant : : : backbreaking scrubbing banished forever!

3. SUPER WHITENESS! Gets clothes up to 25% whiter than old-fashioned soaps, cup for cup, as shown by Electric Eye photometer tests!

4. SUPER SAFETY! Efficient, yet so mild—so gentle to colors, to fabrics, to your hands! Clothes last 2 to 3 times longer when washed the scrubless Concentrated Super Suds way!

5. SUPER CLEANSING! Not only banishes dirt and grime, but kills or removes most germs . . . gets clothes super clean : : : Hospital-Clean!

DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

We are so sure that Concentrated Super Suds in the blue box is the finest laundry soap you ever used, that we make this startling offer:—Get a package and test it against any other soap. If you do not agree that Concentrated Super Suds gives you better results, mail the empty carton to Concentrated Super Suds, Jersey City, N. J., and we'll send you DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

7,000 WOMEN HELPED CREATE IT!

Yes! 7,000 women like yourself, in home laundries like your own—actually tested and retested the most popular brands of granulated soaps. They told us where some succeeded . . . where others failed. They told us with utter frankness what they wanted in a soap to make it perfect.

Then the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet research laboratories went to work—test followed test, regardless of expense. At last came the amazing result—the new Concentrated Super Suds . . . made by a special process . . . a really modern, new-day super soap that is revolutionizing home laundering across the nation. Try it today and see for yourself!

NEW SUPER SOAP GIVES TWICE THE SUDS!

The new Concentrated Super Suds—made by a special process developed through years of research—gives twice the suds, cup for cup, than less modern soaps—richer, longer-lasting, more active suds! Yet it's utterly safe for clothes, gentle to your hands!

EXPECT THESE ASTONISHING RESULTS FROM CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS!

ALFALFA FOR HUMANS

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

A BUSY doctor friend of mine drove his automobile up beside mine in the parking place at the hospital the other day. Looming out of the back was a stack of green grass and clover.

"What in the world is that load you are hauling?" I asked.

"Alfalfa," he answered. "A dose or two for a patient of mine. Didn't you know that alfalfa is the very newest treatment?"

I did know it because alfalfa is supposed to be the best source of the new vitamin—vitamin K. And I had also heard a story of its efficiency, a story related by the chief of a great American hospital. But I had no idea its use was becoming so widespread.

Its use somehow reminds me of the famous retort Boswell made to Dr. Johnson—one of the times that Boswell scored on his antagonist. "Oats," said Dr. Johnson, "is a food for horses in England and for men in Scotland." "And where," observed Boswell, "will you find such horses and such men?" We are using alfalfa for cattle and invalids in America. And where will you find such healthy cattle and such well-cured invalids?

—o-o—

THE STORY which I heard goes as follows:

A woman was brought into this famous American hospital with jaundice. The jaundice had come on suddenly and deepened rapidly in three or four days. Up to the time of the onset she was perfectly well. She became, as the saying goes, "as yellow as a pumpkin."

Then she began to bleed from her nose, from the mucous membranne of her mouth, from the bowel, and clots of blood formed spontaneously under her skin.

It is well known that bile in the blood—which is what jaundice is—is liable to prevent the clotting of blood. Surgeons are very loath to do a surgical operation on a patient with jaundice for that reason.

It was evident that this woman had some impediment to the clotting of her blood, which accounted for the spontaneous hemorrhages from the nose, under the skin, etc. It was found by laboratory tests that the pro-thrombin in her blood was only 5 per cent of what it ought to be. Pro-thrombin is an element in the blood which is necessary for clotting.

—o-o—

THE PATIENT was very sick and going down hill. No treatment did her any good. Finally a new consultant was called in who said that he had heard of a disease of cattle, due to eating spoiled clover, and that it was cured by feeding alfalfa.

The woman's husband was chemist at a brewery, and on this hint he obtained a fresh supply of alfalfa and proceeded to concentrate it in a vat. In a day or two he appeared at the hospital with a green jelly-like mass, which was concentrated alfalfa.

This was fed to the patient, with immediate favorable results. She stopped bleeding with the second dose, and to the surprise and delite of everyone she recovered and walked out of the hospital hale and hearty.

So don't be surprised if you see your doctor riding around with what looks to be a truck garden in his car.

—o-o—

J. F.' "Would there be scarlet fever germs on a chair not fumigated at the time of the illness 10 years ago?"

Answer: Scarlet fever does stay on furniture, draperies, etc., a long time, but it is generally said to be gone in six weeks.

—o-o—

H. K.: "I have a tendency toward low blood pressure. Please inform me if a reducing diet can be used."

Answer: Yes.

—o-o—

Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Curry of Lamb

Two cups chopped cooked lamb, one cup chopped celery, one chopped onion, one and one-half cups left-over gravy, two tablespoons butter, one-eighth teaspoon curry powder, a dash of Tabasco sauce, salt and pepper. Brown onion and celery in butter, add gravy, meat and seasonings. Cook until piping hot. Serve in a ring of well-seasoned spinach.

Large Handbags For Late Winter

IF you are a superstitious person and believe it is lucky to start the New Year with a new handbag, there are many encouraging suggestions in the accessory shops. Capacious themes predominate so the first consideration is the size of the bag. Next it is well to investigate the number of clever little compartments for gadgets and knick-knacks since these are features of many of the new 1939 styles. Third, there is the matter of leather and now that suede has had such a season of popularity it is time to think of calfskin, kid and patent leather.

Noted among the striking bags is one which suggests a basket. It has two completely individual sections, one opening left and one opening right with tabbed zippers. Each section has several compartments. Another bag created especially for use with tailored clothes adopts the vagabond style and is made of calfskin. A two-tone silver and gilt frame curves smartly at the side. A plaque pouch bag which has a place for one's name or initials is a happy choice for the woman who has a habit of mislaying things. Also if it happens to be made of calfskin or patent leather it will be a practical accessory for spring as well as for late winter months.

Beach Costumes

Beach costumes that hearken back to the Gay Nineties for their inspiration are appearing on the beaches at the Southern resorts. Outstanding among the most spectacular models is the bloomer suit. Of course the bloomers are briefer than those which were worn in grandmother's day but they are made of black taffeta, a favorite fabric of the nineties. High necklines and short puffed sleeves are other modest features of the beach costumes.

Overblouse

The overblouse has returned to popularity. Some of its interest is due to the fashion for long-waisted themes which a two-piece unbelted frock suggests. Part of it is due to the vogue of pleats that are more flattering when started below the hip line. One of the smartest versions of the theme is a frock of navy blue crepe which has a high-necked basque-like blouse and a cartridge pleated skirt. Another interesting example enhances the hemline of the blouse by quilted scallops.

Parlor Games Regaining Their Old Popularity

This Holds True Even in Sophisticated Circles, Says Writer.

By Elizabeth Boykin

THERE is no doubt about it, home parties are back in style. And they're playing nice old-time parlor games again, even in very sophisticated places. We probably have Elsa Maxwell to thank for that.

Try some guessing games yourself sometime if you have your doubts. Give the amateur magicians the stage and let's hear from the men who know card tricks.

Or just settle down to some rowdy simple-minded games that people don't take as hard as they do bridge. You'd be surprised what a good time will be had by all.

In table games there are quite a number of new editions of old favorites. Chinker Chek is one—it's really Chinese checkers, which can be played by two to six persons and is quite a racey game. Table badminton looks as if it were going to give ping pong a run for its money, for it's full of speed and thrills.

Deck games are having their day. Ring toss (quoits) is the best one for home consumption because any number can play in any place. But horse race games such as you play on shipboard are just as exciting on land, and there are some miniature boat race games that are jolly too. Deck tennis is a good game for winter nights if you have a game room big enough for the cause.

Indoor archery is getting quite a hold on people's affections. So are home-size bowling outfits. There's one set of carpet bowls, and another miniature bowling alley that could be tucked away in most anybody's house. Darts is another old game that is popular again.

Fencing has always been a great sport, which no doubt accounts for the renewed interest that real sportsmen are showing in it. The various types of fancy wrestling seem to be winning new followers, particularly jiu jitsu. For that you need a wrestling mat—they're expensive, of course, but a lot of fun for the men.

—o-o—

REFRESHMENTS are half the story. They needn't be formidable, but they should be fastidious. 'Tis well to figure out what you do best, then equip yourself to serve this as a specialty. If you want to make a real splash, you could go in for Swedish smorgasbord — which is really just a whole supper of hors d'oeuvres served with coffee. For that you would need plenty of nice serving dishes, relish plates and serving silver. And oh yes, a nice cloth for your table, for you serve a smorgasbord buffet style. Have interesting plates, not the largest size, big-enough napkins and of course silver covers for the number you're likely to be entertaining. Remember it's the more the merrier with a buffet.

Or maybe you have to have a simpler party plan. Punch is just about the easiest idea of all—with it you only need little cakes and sandwiches. But the secret here will be to have an impressive punch bowl and plenty of punch cups. There are many stunning glass punch bowls in the stores these days that look very festive. Also jolly are the modern metal ensembles of either Kensington metal or spun aluminum. China punch bowls are gracious, too. But if you can possibly wangle a sterling one, well, that would "make" any party table. You'll want a proper cloth for a punch table—something gay and peasantry if you're using an informal bowl, but nothing less than damask or lace will do justice to your nicer punch bowls. Then you can still vary what you serve—egg nogs for your very grand parties, hot or cold fruit punch for any old time—a zippy hot tea punch for the youngsters' parties. Here's the recipe for an innocuous but very delicious hot-tea punch for the teen-agers:

Two cups of pineapple; one pint of strong black tea; one quart of apple juice; one quart of loganberry juice; six cloves; one stick cinnamon; lemon juice to taste.

Make very strong tea, steeping the cloves and the cinnamon with it. Strain and add fruit juices, adding the sugar if it is necessary. Then with a glass of lemon juice in one hand and a tasting spoon in the other, add the finishing touches, for it must be zippy in flavor. This should be served piping hot.

—o-o—

IF YOU'RE FAMOUS for anything special, that should be the theme of your winter parties—welsh rarebit and beer; waffles and hot chocolate; doughnuts and coffee; ginger ale and a fancy refrigerator confection; fruit salad and China tea.

If you want to entertain with an air, the main thing is to settle on one menu that you do nicely, then get accessories to serve it beautifully. You can play on the same theme with all kinds of variations, but don't try to skip all around with one kind of party this time and another the next. Not until your cupboard is versatile enough in its equipment, that is.

Frilly Season Ahead

A frilly season is ahead, if all of the early signs of style trends are to be taken as a criterion. Tailored frocks and suits appearing in St. Louis shops introduce pleated frills at the necklines and cuffs or protruding from the top of pockets.

Jussi Bjoerling Sings In Concert Tonight

Philharmonic Orchestra at 7:30 p. m. on the WJZ net.

Friday's concert list includes Walter Damrosch's hour at 1 p. m. on WSM (650 kc.), the Lucille Manners-Frank Black hour at 7 p. m. on KSD, and a program from Oberlin College directed by Nadia Boulanger at 9 p. m. on the WJZ net.

Saturday, Beethoven's Seventh Symphony will be featured in a concert from Cincinnati at 10 a. m. on the CBS net (10:30 on KMOX). The opera which will be performed in a broadcast from the Metropolitan Opera House at 12:55 noon on KSD will be Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra." Lawrence Tibbett will sing the title role, with Elisabeth Rethberg as Maria Boccanegra, Giovanni Martinelli as Gabriel, Ezio Pinza as Jacopo and Leonard Warren, Louis D'Angelo, Pearl Besuner and Giordano Paltrienieri also in the cast, and Ettore Panizza conducting. Toscanini will lead the NBC Symphony Orchestra, at 9 a. m. on KWK, in Berlioz' "Harold in Italy" symphony, the prelude to Act IV of Catalini's "La Wally," the Dance of the Water Sprites from Catalini's "The Lorelei" and the prelude to Act 11 of Goldmark's "Queen of Sheba."

Hal Kemp and his orchestra are billed for KSD's Band Wagon program Sunday, Jan. 29 . . . The Rogues, now featured in "Hellzapoppin'," will be Tommy Riggs' guests on KSD Saturday night, Jan. 28 . . . Marek Weber's concerts on KSD Monday nights will bring music of Scotland Jan. 23, of Hawaii Jan. 30, of Poland Feb. 6 and of Vienna Feb. 13 . . . Eddie Cantor has found a portable microphone which he can strap to his chest so that he can use his bouncing musical comedy tricks when broadcasting.

Alice Frost, who has her own CBS net daily program, has been signed to play the lead in "I Must Love Someone," which Jack Kirkland plans to produce on Broadway soon.

The first of five programs sponsored by the National Youth Administration and designed to show how youth is finding itself will be broadcast at 8:30 p. m. Friday on the WJZ net.

Novelty Belt

Novelty belts for your plainest, trimmest dresses are always in demand and there is one that will bring out the Mexican tendencies in anyone. It is made of plaited straw in all the bright Mexican colors, and instead of a buckle, the front is graced by a matching straw Mexican sombrero.

Serial Broadcast From Plane Above New York Friday

Stunt Planned for Howie Wing Program—Van Loon Billed for Information Please Period Tuesday Night.

TOMORROW, the life of Stephen Foster, the song writer, will be dramatized in the Cavalcade. The Radio Theater will star Fred MacMurray and Paulette Goddard in "Front Page Woman." The Columbia Workshop will produce "Mr. Whipple Is Worried," a whimsical play about a customer's man in a brokers' office written by James Frederick, gag writer for Henny Youngman and other comedians. Boris Karloff will be Eddie Cantor's guest.

Tuesday, Gilbert and Sullivan's "Patience" will be performed at 7 p. m. on the WJZ net. Ogden Nash, the verse writer, and Hendrik Willem Van Loon will join Franklin P. Adams and John Kieran on Clifton Fadiman's Information Please program. Leslie Howard will be Al Jolson's guest.

Wednesday, Eddie Cantor will do a turn as master of ceremonies for the Star Theater, John Barrymore having left this show to appear in a play on Broadway. At 8:30, KWK will broadcast another installment of the Wings for the Martins serial. KWK also has scheduled, at 9:30 p. m., Mark Sullivan and Jay Franklin's discussion of issues of the day.

Thursday, at 4:15 p. m., KWK will carry one of Paul Luyssac's Hans Andersen fairy tales programs. Claire Trevor will be Kate Smith's guest. Dick Powell will appear with Walter O'Keefe and Kay Thompson and her Rhythm Singers on the new program which also features Andre Kostelanetz and a large orchestra.

Friday, the Howie Wing serial installment will be broadcast from an airliner flying above New York City and carrying a miniature transmitter as well as the actors. Burgess Meredith and Orson Welles will play the principal roles in a Welles' Playhouse performance of "The Chicken Wagon Family" a best seller of a decade ago.

Saturday, animators and other workers in the Walt Disney studios will be featured in the Americans at Work period. Lanny Ross, singing in the Hit Parade, will observe his tenth radio anniversary. A Music Hall program from London will be carried from 2 to 3 p. m. by WGN.

Plaid Wool

Even if you can't get enthusiastic over sleeveless dresses and beach clothes at this time of the year, you can look far enough ahead to visualize yourself in one of the woolen suits now recommended for the southland. One particular plaid in green and tan and brown will probably be on your preferred list, and if you always connected plaids with fall and winter clothes, you're in for a change of opinion.

Suzanne Bitting To Be Wed to D.B. Morgan Jr.

Engagement Announced at Cocktail Party for About 70 Guests—His Home at Biltmore, N. C.

THE engagement of Miss Suzanne Bitting and David Bradley Morgan Jr. of Biltmore, N. C., was announced last night. The announcement was made informally to about 70 young friends of the bride-elect who were invited for cocktails from 6 to 8 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Bitting Jr., 5240 Westminster place. Mr. Morgan and his father arrived Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. Harley F. Shuford of Hickory, N. C., to visit the Bitting family for the week-end, and were guests of honor at the party. Later some of the group motored to the St. Louis Country Club, where the fifth annual Bachelor Club ball was in progress.

Miss Bitting was Mary Institute May Queen in 1934, the year of her graduation, and the next fall sailed with her parents on a world cruise, returning after an absence of several months. She made her debut in 1935 at a reception at Bellerive Country Club, and subsequently became a member of the Junior League.

Miss Bitting is a granddaughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. William C. Bitting, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Ellwood Smith. Her paternal grandfather was, for many years, pastor of the Second Baptist Church.

Mr. Morgan, whose mother died several years ago, prepared at Episcopal High School, Alexandria, Va., for the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, of which he is a graduate. He is a member of the Biltmore Country Club.

The Morgan home is near the winter residence of Mr. and Mrs. Bitting, which was built about two years ago in Biltmore Forest, and where they spend much of their time.

The wedding is planned for late spring.

Eleanor Eiseman To Become Bride Of H. V. Putzel Jr.

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK B. EISEMAN, 6463 Cecil avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eleanor Eiseman, and Henry V. Putzel Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry V. Putzel, 4463 Westminster place. The wedding will take place in June.

Miss Eiseman is a graduate of John Burroughs School, class of 1932, and Vassar College, 1936. In the fall of 1936 she served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. She has spent this season in Philadelphia, returning home just before Christmas, and is now completing work for her Master's Degree in social work at the George Warren Brown School of Washington University.

Mr. Putzel was graduated in 1931 from Country Day School; in 1935 from Yale, and last June from Yale Law School. He is associated with the law firm of Nagel, Kirby and Shepley. His Yale undergraduate club was Elizabethan.

Mrs. Paul Mecray of Rochester, Minn., the former Miss Justine Eiseman, has arrived to spend a week with her family, and to be here for the announcement.

Debutantes Feted By Bachelor Club At Annual Ball

THE Bachelor Club of St. Louis repaid obligations incurred during the debutante season and officially closed the season at its annual ball last night at 10 o'clock at the St. Louis Country Club. This fifth annual ball was an attempt of St. Louis bachelors to entertain debutantes who have entertained them at parties since October, when the first debut was made.

The club dispensed with elaborate floral decorations and motifs to concentrate on music—Don Bestor of New York and his orchestra—who played in the main dining room. After 1 o'clock breakfast of scrambled eggs and bacon was served.

About 350 guests attended. First year members of the club, according to rules, either escorted a debutante or went alone. Older members had their choice of either debutantes or those from past seasons. Sustaining members of the club, those who have married, were present with their wives.

Active members of the club wore red carnation boutonnieres in contrast to white carnations in the buttonholes of sustaining members. Each young woman received a corsage of gardenias, a gift of the bachelors, and those who arrived wearing or carrying other corsages were asked by the door committee,

St. Louisans Sail On Winter Cruises

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.

NOW that shop windows are blossoming into a false spring and blustery winds are whipping up the idea at every street corner, many a person is thinking of some place else besides where they happen to be, and Florida, and Nassau and Havana are leading topics of conversation. When the Empress of Britain sailed last Saturday, heading for the Mediterranean, on a trip around the world, Mrs. William H. Keech of the Chase Hotel and Miss Eliza Sproule were on board. Miss Sproule is a sister of Mrs. Edward K. Love and of Mrs. Daniel H. Clark.

Mrs. Keech was at the Waldorf before sailing and Thursday evening entertained her cousin, Mrs. Sidney Francis, at dinner. Mrs. Francis was the former Miss Julia Holmes of St. Louis.

Miss Caro Holmes and her brother, John Holmes, were in New York to see their aunt, Mrs. Keech, off when she sailed. John Holmes later went to Philadelphia to spend the week-end with his cousin, Mrs. Francis Boyer, the former Miss Mary Brooks Holmes, who has a home at Cold Point, Pa. Miss Caro Holmes spent the week-end at Southbridge, Mass., with Mr. and Mrs. Channing McGregory Wells Jr. Mrs. Wells was Miss Mary Dana, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Dana of Brentmoor Park. The Danas' oldest daughter, Judith, now Mrs. Ward Thorne Jr., formerly of Chicago, now lives at Westport, Conn., with her husband and little daughter, Judith. Earlier this week, Miss Holmes and Mrs. Wells went to Boston for a brief visit with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Rulon-Miller have returned to their home in Princeton, N. J., after their trip to St. Louis, where both took part in the wedding of the former Miss Jane Alva Johnson and John Hylan Heminway. Mr. and Mrs. Rulon-Miller's children, Henry Gardner Rulon-Miller and Sumner Rulon-Miller III, who have been with their grandmother, Mrs. Junius Spencer Morgan since early December, have now gone to Sharon Springs, N. Y., for the winter. Mr. Rulon-Miller is president of the newly opened Ski and Winter Sports Club at Sharon Springs.

In February when the Junior League of Morristown, N. J., will put on a play, "The Stay-at-Home Rebel," Mrs. Calvin Anderson Case, formerly Miss Elise Whittemore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Levering Whittemore, will be in the cast. Mrs. Case lives at Madison, near Morristown. So many of LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Jan. 14.

MISS JANET STRYKER YOUNGS, daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel and Mrs. William H. W. Youngs of Fort Leavenworth, and Osgood Hazard Peckham, son of Mrs. Frank E. Peckham of St. Louis, were married at 7 o'clock tonight in the Episcopal Chapel of the army post. The Rev. James Hofmann, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church of Leavenworth, performed the ceremony.

The church altar was simply decorated with white snapdragon in tall vases. Lieutenant-Colonel Youngs gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride wore her grandmother's wedding gown, made 50 years ago. It is fashioned of heavy ribbed ivory silk with a tight pointed bodice and V-neckline edged with Duchess lace. Sleeves are short and puffed. The skirt is gathered at the back in a bustle effect, and trimmed at the hem with lilies of the valley. She wore her grandmother's jewelry—seed pearl earrings and necklace—and a long tulle veil. The bride carried a white prayer book, marked by satin streamers knotted with lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Mary Sue Peckham, sister of the bridegroom and St. Louis debutante, wore a turquoise blue taffeta gown, the skirt bouffant over hoops, trimmed with wine velvet. She wore a small turquoise and wine colored chenille hat and carried an

William B. Seabrook To Address Junior League

WILLIAM B. SEABROOK, writer, explorer and adventurer in the North Arabian desert, will speak under the auspices of the Junior League at its Monday morning lecture at 11 o'clock tomorrow at league headquarters, 4932 Maryland avenue.

A graduate of Newberry College in North Carolina, Mr. Seabrook later became city editor of an Atlanta newspaper and took graduate work at the University of Geneva, Switzerland. When the World War broke out he served overseas with the army. While traveling in Arabia he became a member of a Bedouin tribe. He wrote "Majic Island" after a year with the voodoo worshippers in Haiti. Other books include "Adventures in Arabia," "The White Monk of Timbuctoo" and "Asylum."

Miss Georgia Wright Simmons And Harlan T. Pierpont Jr. Are Married by Candlelight

Late Afternoon Ceremony at Second Presbyterian Church in Green and White Setting—Reception for Families and Close Friends at Westmoreland Place Home of Bride's Mother—To Live in Chicago.

MISS GEORGIA WRIGHT SIMMONS was married by the candlelight in the Second Presbyterian Church late yesterday afternoon to Harlan Trimble Pierpont Jr., of Chicago. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. George Welch Simmons, at whose home, 21 Westmoreland place, a small reception was held after the ceremony. Mr. Pierpont is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Trimble Pierpont of Worcester, Mass., who came to St. Louis for the wedding and are guests of the Simmons family.

The setting was entirely in green and white. Two large vases of Easter lilies on the altar were set off by woodwardia fern which banked the chancel and covered the pulpit back of tall standards holding 100 lighted tapers. The communion rail was covered in huckleberry foliage.

The bride's eight attendants were gowned alike in American beauty red velvet fashioned with heart-shaped necklines, puffed short sleeves and full hoop skirts, the velvet caught into occasional shirred bands. For contrast their flowers were ranunculus, white fluffy blossoms with greenish centers brought from California. They were arranged into colonial bouquets fringed with white stock and inclosed in lace frills, tied with silver ribbon to match silver slippers worn by the bridal party. Their hats were old-fashioned Watteau models of American beauty velvet to match the gowns, upturned at the back and trimmed with deep red ostrich tips.

The bridal gown was of white satin, designed without trimming except for simple ruching about the heart-shaped neck and long sleeves. The style of the gown was princesse, with a long train formed from back fullness. With it the bride wore a fingertip tulle veil dotted with whole pearls and arranged with a face veil to a pearl Juliet cap and snood which almost covered her hair. She carried several varieties of white orchids, with sprays cascading to the hem of her gown.

Mrs. S. Hallock du Pont of Wilmington, Del., the former Miss Virginia Simmons, and Mrs. John H. Crago, who was Miss Lulie Simmons, were matrons of honor for their sister. Miss Maude Scudder verall was maid of honor, and Miss Nancy Lee Morrill, Miss Mary Lee Smidt, and Miss Frances Moore of St. Louis, and Mr. Pierpont's sisters, Mrs. William Grose of Great Neck, L. I., and Miss Janet Pierpont of Worcester, were bridesmaids.

Virginia Simmons, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Simmons of Chicago, and the bride's niece, immediately preceded the bride and her uncle, Thomas H. Wright, who gave her in marriage. She wore a miniature copy of the bridesmaids' frocks, with a matching ribbon in her hair, and carried a nosegay of Joanna Hill roses and white stock. The Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor performed the ceremony at 4:30 o'clock.

Mr. Pierpont was attended by his brother, John, as best man. Ushers, who led the procession, included William Grose of Great Neck, and Jack Ewer of Farmington, Conn., brothers-in-law of the bridegroom; Minot Grose and Morton Claflin of St. Louis; Gardner Barker of Brookline, Mass., and Richards W. Simmons, Corning Kenly and Arthur M. Jones Jr. of Chicago.

After the service the wedding party, out-of-town guests and a few friends returned to the Simmons home, to be received in the living room to the left of the reception hall. The white mantel and tall mirror above it were banked with white snapdragon and garcia pompons, lighted by white candles in crystal candelabra. Mrs. Simmons, who, with the bridegroom's parents, headed the receiving line, wore black crepe trimmed with flowers of orchid tinted sequins, fresh orchids at her shoulder, and a black hat. Mrs. Pierpont's gown was lavender, with which she wore a matching hat and orchids.

Spring flowers decorated the pine room across the hall and the hall itself, where huckleberry foliage and palms concealed the stair rail. A buffet table, spread in the east windows of the dining room, was decorated with white tulips, sweetpeas and snapdragon and bouquets of the same blossoms stood on the mantel.

In the John H. Crago home, which adjoins that of Mrs. Crago's mother, 32 guests, the bridal party and a few additional friends were entertained at dinner after the reception at a late T-shaped table. Round trees of white roses alternated with silver candelabra holding white candles down the entire length, and were garlanded together with ropes of sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierpont left on their wedding trip without disclosing their destination. After Feb. 1 they will live at 765 Sheridan road, Winnetka, Ill.

In addition to members of the wedding party, out-of-town guests included Thruston Wright of Pittsburgh, the bride's uncle, and Mrs. Richard W. Simmons, who accompanied her family from Chicago.

After graduating from Mary Institute, where she was May Queen during her senior year, the former Miss Simmons spent a year traveling abroad. She made her debut at a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club a year ago. Mr. Pierpont prepared at Loomis School, Windsor, Conn., for Harvard, where he was graduated with the class of 1935. His undergraduate clubs included Phoenix S. K. and Hasty Pudding Institute of 1770.

Paul J. Fisher to Marry Mrs. Anne F. Delano

PAUL J. FISHER, former St. Louisan, who has been living in California for the past 10 years, and Mrs. Anne Freeman Delano of Glencoe, Ill., will be married at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. J. P. Delano.

The engagement and wedding plans were told informally to St. Louis friends last week while Mr. Fisher was the guest of his sister, Mrs. Nathaniel W. Ewing, 23 Lenox place, and several small parties were given in his honor before he left Friday for Chicago. Mrs. Ewing departed this morning to join the transplanted St. Louisans carry on their Junior League and allied interests in their new surroundings. Just before Christmas, Mrs. Hobart Cale of Darien, Conn., the former Miss Marion Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lionberger Davis, took the part of the Goddess of Liberty at the World Cruise Ball, given at the Weeburn Club in Darien, for the Darien Community Association.

St. Louisans Sail From New York On Winter Cruises

Another St. Louisan who has been traveling extensively this winter, is Walter Schnaider, who was in New York for a few days this week. He came here from Montreal, where he spent Christmas with his nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Merrill, brother and sister-in-law of Mrs. William Hargadine Glasgow, who now lives in Memphis and was formerly Miss Yvonne Merrill of St. Louis. After Christmas Mr. Schnaider, his sister, Mrs. Robert A. B. Walsh, and his niece, Miss Polly Walsh, who also spent the holidays in Montreal, went out to the Log Chateau, at the Seigniory Club, in the Province of Quebec, for 10 days of winter sports.

Mr. Schnaider was at the Plaza from Monday to Wednesday, when he sailed for Havana on the steamer Oriente, on his way to Mexico. After a short stay in Cuba, Mr. Schnaider will sail for Vera Cruz, from where he will go on to Mexico City. There he will visit his nieces, Mrs. Franchesco de Rivero, Mrs. Carlos Martinez and Mrs. Miguel Acosta, wife of Gen. Acosta. Mrs. de Rivero spent several winters in St. Louis, where she had a house in Hampton Park, while her children were at school in this country. Mrs. Martinez and her children have often visited St. Louis relatives, and Gen. and Mrs. Acosta were in New York at the Plaza last fall, and stopped in St. Louis on their way back to Mexico. After visiting in Mexico City, Mr. Schnaider will go to Lake Chapalo, in the Province of Jalisco, where the Acostas have a summer residence. Mr. Schnaider will not return to St. Louis until the late spring.

Mrs. John N. Bayne of Afterglow Way, Montclair, N. J., will leave the end of the month for her house on Stone Island, Fla., where she will entertain her sister, Mrs. William Christy of St. Louis. Mr. Bayne and their daughter, Miss Joan, will join the family reunion in Florida when Miss Joan has her spring vacation from the Kimberly School in Montclair.

Debutantes Honored at Party.

Six debutantes—Miss Frances Lewis, Miss Caroline Gatch, Miss Louise French, Miss Theoline Bostwick, Miss Mary Jane Allen and Miss Becky Wells—will share honors at a cocktail party from 5 to 8 o'clock this evening at Bridlespur Hunt Club. The hosts and hostesses will be Mr. and Mrs. Leo de Smet Carton and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Benoist Langdon Carton. There will be 150 guests including debutantes of this and last season and their escorts, and a group of the young married set.

Tea at Maryville College Next Sunday

MRS. ARTURO ORENA of San Francisco will be guest of honor at a silver tea to be given next Sunday afternoon at Maryville College. Hostesses will be the Maryville College Club and the Maryville alumnae.

During the afternoon, Miss Johnnye Akin, instructor in dramatic art at the school, will read "Death Takes a Holiday."

Mrs. Orena is the third president of the Associated Alumnae of the Sacred Heart and will be in St. Louis on her way to a national board meeting at Chicago. The association was organized in St. Louis in 1933 at Maryville, with Mrs. William Julius Polk as president. St. Louisans now on the board are Mrs. Leo B. Fagan and Miss Frances Bates.

Members of the executive board of the Maryville Alumnae who will receive with officers of the college and preside at the tea tables are: Mrs. John L. Boland, Mrs. Isaac D. Kelley, Mrs. John A. Aid, Mrs. E. L. Franklin, Mrs. J. L. Gross, Mrs. Joseph Mitchell, Mrs. Charles C. O'Neal, Mrs. George T. Desloge, Mrs. John S. Johnson, Mrs. O. P. J. Falk, Mrs. Frank B. Griesedieck and Miss Eloise M. Jones.

Washington Scene

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.

WASHINGTON will celebrate the anniversaries of Gen. Robert E. Lee and Edgar Allan Poe, both of whom were born Jan. 19, Lee in 1807 and Poe in 1809.

Ten years from now, in 1949, the world will be observing the centenary of the death of Poe which took place in October, 1849. By that time Edgar Allan Poe will have achieved the literary immortality demanded by Mark Twain, who claimed that no man particularly no writer "is truly famous until he has been dead a hundred years."

The only sister of Edgar Allan Poe, Rosalie MacKenzie Poe, is buried in an unmarked grave in the Epiphany Church plot in Rock Creek Cemetery in this city. The lot has a handsome central marker and relatives and friends have marked many of the individual graves in the plot. But to date there is no marker on the grave of Rosalie MacKenzie Poe.

That "unmerciful disaster" of which Poe wrote so poignantly appeared to follow his immediate family closely. Practically all of them were indebted to strangers for their last resting places. David Poe, father of Edgar Allan Poe who died in Norfolk, Va., in 1811, is buried in an unknown and unmarked grave. Elizabeth Arnold Poe, mother of the poet, was buried in St. John's churchyard, Richmond, Va., on Dec. 9, 1811, in a grave provided through the bounty of friends. Its exact location is unknown.

Virginia Clemm Poe, wife of the poet, whose untimely end inspired the poem, "Annabel Lee," was buried first in a friend's vault in Fordham, N. Y. Later she was reinterred by her husband's side in Westminster churchyard, Baltimore, American women who have been presented at the Court of St. James's should leave their cards at the White House when King George VI and Queen Elizabeth are in residence there. They were put on the British court list at their presentation and this is expected of them.

Many of those presented at court live in Washington, among them, Mrs. George Barnett, widow of the World War commandant of the United States Marine Corps, and cousin of the Duchess of Windsor; Mrs. Wade Ellis, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, Mrs. Grace Lincoln Hall Brosseau and Mrs. William A. Becker, honorary presidents general of the D. A. R., and many others.

If you hear "I got the Emperor," "Three Captains to my credit," and the click, click, click of falling missiles coming from the drawing rooms of Washington after dinner, it is just the newest diversion of "Pick Up Sticks," the familiar Jack Straws of childhood but in reality a Chinese game, the origin of which has been lost in antiquity.

The present game of "Pick Up Sticks" is more difficult than Jack Straws, and the sticks often have names.

At "Notre Nid" the country home of Mrs. William N. Doak, widow of the former Secretary of Labor, mah jongg and "Pick Up Sticks" are close rivals in the amusement line. Mrs. Doak has recently had as a house guest for the second time this season Mrs. Virginia Skaife, daughter former Secretary of Labor of the Dominion.

The discarded gold piano from the East Room at the White House has been placed in the National Museum. It has been placed in the foyer there for all to admire. It is fenced in by a rope to keep the visitors from touching it.

Vice-President and Mrs. Garner took their granddaughter, Miss Genevieve Garner, with them when they arrived at the White House Tuesday night to be honor guests at the dinner in honor of the Vice-President.

It is one of the few times the Vice-President and Mrs. Garner dine out during the season for the Vice-President flatly refuses to live up to his official tradition "The Vice-President is the diner-out of the administration," and spends his evenings at home.

WEBSTER GROVES

MISS MILDRED EVA McGHEE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. McGhee, 304 Greeley avenue, became the bride of Frank Henry Koste Jr. of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Henry Koste, 114 Chestnut avenue, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The ceremony was performed at the Webster Groves Baptist Church by the Rev. H. L. Reader. The chancel was decorated with white flowers and greenery.

The bride-elect wore a street-length frock of sheer blue wool crepe and wine-colored accessories. Her corsage was of orchids. She had as her only attendant her sister, Mrs. Arthur Holekamp, who was in rose-colored wool crepe and wore black accessories, with a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Mr. Koste was attended by his brother, Bernard Koste.

After a small reception at the home of the bride's parents the pair left for a brief wedding trip. The two will make their home at 5948 Winthrop avenue, Chicago.

Mrs. Koste attended Washington University. Mr. Koste studied at the School of Fine Arts of Washington University and later was enrolled at the Chicago Art Institute.

Invitations have been received from Mr. and Mrs. Allan G. Jehle, 634 Sherwood drive, to a dinner dance at Algonquin Country Club next Wednesday evening. The dinner will be at 7:30 o'clock. The club will be decorated with spring flowers. The guests will be seated at tables for six or eight and each table will be centered with spring flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown and their daughter, Jessie, 15 South Rock Hill road, will leave the first of next month for St. Petersburg, Fla., to spend the rest of the winter. While in Florida they will visit their son-in-law and daughter in Tampa. Mrs. E. C. Stuart will entertain in honor of the Browns at a luncheon Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Harry Rhodes, 220 Blackmer place, have as their guest Mrs. Charles Powell of Louisville, Ky. Mrs. Powell arrived Thursday and is on her way to New York, where she will make her home. Mrs. Rhodes gave a tea Friday in honor of her guest. Tomorrow Mrs. Lamar Kishlar, 312 Planthurst avenue, will give a luncheon. Wednesday evening Mrs. Louis L. Roth, 441 West Jackson road, and her sister, Miss Ruth Craig, 215 Gray avenue, will be hostesses at a dinner for a group of Mrs. Powell's friends.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Achilles, 30 South Elm avenue, recently announced the engagement of their daughter, Lois, and Frederick Beeler, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Beeler, 1911 Union boulevard, St. Louis. Miss Achilles was graduated from William Woods College, Fulton, Mo., and attended the University of Missouri for a year. Plans for the wedding have not been completed.

Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Clements, who formerly lived at 216 Selma avenue, left Friday for Sioux City, Ia., to make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Lane, 505 Oakwood avenue, have returned from Beaumont, Tex., where they were the guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lane. On their return they brought Mr. Lane's mother, Mrs. Sara Lane, from Texarkana, Tex., to spend the winter with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin H. Bowersox, 19 Algonquin woods, sailed last week from New Orleans, on the SS. Rotterdam. They will spend three weeks on a Caribbean cruise.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Loune, 513 Hollywood place, entertained a group of friends at dinner last week. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stis, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hesse, Mr. and Mrs. Emmanuel Zerega and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zerega.

Harold D. Gates, 30 West Swon avenue, returned Thursday from a two-week visit in New York City.

Miss Dorothy Kirchner To Be February Bride

MR. AND MRS. HENRY C. KIRCHNER, 333 North Bemiston avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Kirchner, and Theodore Eugene Briell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Eugene Briell, 6225 San Bonita avenue.

News of the betrothal was told last night at a small dinner given at the Kirchner home for the two families. The wedding will take place the last of next month.

The prospective bride attended the University of Missouri and Washington University. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Mr. Briell did preparatory school work at the Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy and is a graduate of the Princeton University School of Engineering, where he was a member of the Cannon Club. He is a member of the Missouri Athletic Association in St. Louis.

Valentine Ball By U. D. C. Chapter Set for Feb. 10

INVITATIONS have been issued by Margaret A. E. McLure Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, for its forty-first annual Valentine ball, Friday night, Feb. 10, in the gold ballroom of Hotel Jefferson. The ball is given yearly to raise funds to help finance six scholarships which the organization maintains in connection with its educational program. Mrs. R. C. Mallory is president of the chapter; Mrs. E. W. Francis is chairman of the ball committee and Mrs. C. F. Stallings is vice-chairman.

Mrs. Henry Clair Armstrong Jr., will be matron of honor, and will be attended by two flower girls and 50 young women, who have been selected as maids of honor. The matron of honor and her maids will form the court of honor in a pageant preceding the ball.

The personnel of the ball committee includes Mrs. W. A. Grolock, Mrs. Leslie Pettus, Mrs. B. A. Thompson, Mrs. J. Brent Williams, Mrs. Frances S. Burkhardt, Mrs. Walter M. Williams, Mrs. E. G. Wilson, Mrs. W. R. Jasper, Mrs. George Dunford, Mrs. Robert Bruce, Mrs. M. P. Duke, Mrs. Joseph Sheldon, Mrs. Leonard Milton, Mrs. Charles M. Hay, Mrs. F. A. Smith, Mrs. Bruce Elliott, Mrs. L. William Ray, Mrs. W. M. Price, Mrs. O. E. Bardon, Mrs. H. P. Byrd, Mrs. H. F. Brey, and Mrs. William F. Dekker. Mrs. Dekker is treasurer of the finance committee and Mrs. Walter M. Williams and Mrs. Wilson are in charge of the distribution of tickets.

Sufficient funds were obtained at last year's ball to sustain five scholarships at the School of the Ozarks and one at Washington University.

Slips

Regular and Extra Sizes — 59c

You spend about 15 hours a day in your slip. If you wear it only once a week it's washed 52 times a year. That's a lot of wear for any slip. The "Wear-a-Year" Slip made SIXTY test trips to a laundry and showed no signs of wear. No wonder it's unconditionally guaranteed for 12 months. V top; white or tearose—in sizes 34 to 44 only!

Panhellenic

COLLEGE SORORITIES AND FRATERNITIES

SEVERAL member groups of the St. Louis Panhellenic Association this week reported having sold their entire quota of tickets for the eleventh annual scholarship bridge of the Association to be held Saturday afternoon, Jan. 28, at 2 o'clock in the Women's Building of Washington University. The association is composed of representatives from 20 social sororities having organized alumnae groups in St. Louis. Tickets for the bridge are apportioned to the sororities in accordance with the number of their resident alumnae. Many of the sorority and fraternity mothers' clubs also take tables.

Mrs. Frank I. Henderson, Delta Zeta, is general chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements, the other committee members being Mrs. Waverly P. Hays, Alpha Phi, tickets; Mrs. Clarence Muhl, Zeta Tau Alpha, attendance prizes and sale of candy; Mrs. Robert L. Bence, Phi Omega Pi, table prizes; and Mrs. Hal Lynch, Pi Beta Phi, publicity and tables.

Mrs. E. Lee Shrader, representing Alpha Delta Pi, is chairman of the Scholarship Committee having supervision of the granting of loans to women students at Washington and Missouri Universities from the association scholarship loan fund. This fund has been built up from the proceeds of annual bridge parties and has helped many girls to complete their education. The other members of the Scholarship Committee are: Mrs. R. W. Longstreet, Kappa Delta, treasurer, and Mrs. George E. Gibson, representing Kappa Alpha Theta.

The National Panhellenic Congress has authorized a special committee to make a thorough survey of rushing as practiced by member sororities. The new committee is headed by Mrs. Eugen C. Andres Jr., chairman of the National Panhellenic Congress Committee on College Panhellenics, and member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. With her will work four other active fraternity officers. The committee will contact every woman's fraternity council to secure their help and advice. These councils will be asked to make a statement on the points they wish the survey to cover. Each group will be asked to state its philosophy of rushing, and to estimate how the present system handicaps or furthers its realization. The committee will contact all deans of women in schools where fraternities exist, inviting their suggestions and criticisms. The opinions of undergraduate members who have recently gone through rushing will also be sought. In announcing the new committee, Mrs. Violet Young Gentry, chairman of the National Panhellenic Congress, stated that fraternities have too long out-done themselves in adolescent enthusiasm in the mad scramble to secure members, and that this method of perpetuating the fraternity organization is entirely out of keeping with the dignity and esteem of actual fraternity membership. In rushing rules there is a new trend toward co-operation as opposed to competition. And a growing belief that a successful rushing season on any campus means that every chapter is being built up with a sufficient number of desirable pledges who will insure the fraternity's making a worthwhile contribution to the student life of the college where it is represented.

The evening group of the Alpha Chi Omega alumnae chapter will meet Tuesday evening in the sorority rooms in the Women's Building. Mrs. Lee G. Cochran will speak on her experiences in newspaper and radio work.

The St. Louis alumnae chapter of Theta Sigma Phi Journalism Sorority will meet at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Sidney R. Stanard, 486 East Big Bend road.

The Alpha Xi Delta Mothers' Club will have a luncheon meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Philip Keller, 526 Sheffield avenue, Webster Groves. Mrs. I. M. Hoffman and Mrs. F. A. Borgsteadt will be assisting hostesses.

The Kappa Kappa Gamma Mothers' Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Will Docter, 7041 Kingsbury boulevard at 2 o'clock Wednesday. Mrs. Fred S. Milam will review the novel, "The Hill Grows Steeper" by Fannie Cook.

Mrs. Gustav F. Goetsch will speak on "Weaving" at a meeting of the Alpha Chi Omega Mothers' Club to be held in the sorority rooms in the Women's Building tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Mrs. J. Ray Cable will be hostess for the January meeting of the Kappa Alpha Mothers' Club to be held at her home, 154 North Bemiston avenue, Clayton, tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock.

The Sigma Alpha Mu Mothers' Club will meet at the fraternity house, 6186 Kingsbury boulevard, Thursday at 1 o'clock.

The Pi Kappa Alpha Mothers' Club of Washington University will give a benefit card party Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Stix, Baer & Fuller card room. Mrs. Arthur Spitzfaden and Mrs. Pearl Goessling are hostesses for the afternoon and in charge of arrangements.

MR. AND MRS. H. H. STEED, 735 Jefferson street, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary with a reception Monday afternoon and evening. Their son, Arthur W. Steed of Middletown, O., his wife and daughter, Martha, were here for the occasion. Seventy-two guests attended.

In the receiving line with Mr. and Mrs. Steed were Mr. and Mrs. William Bloebaum, who observed their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary last week. Mrs. Steed wore a corsage of yellow roses while Mrs. Bloebaum wore pink rosebuds. They stood before a large basket with 60 yellow rosebuds in it, one of several floral gifts from the Study Club, D. A. R. and other organizations of which Mrs. Steed is a member. The dining room centerpiece was composed of yellow chrysanthemums with 60 white narcissus blooms on the buffet. Mrs. Wade Admire of O'Fallon, Mo., poured coffee and Mrs. George Null served tea.

The Steeds gave a dinner party last Sunday for their son and his family. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Keithly were here from O'Fallon, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Markham and Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Keithly from St. Louis.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Jefferson Street Presbyterian Church honored Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Steed with a banquet on Wednesday night at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Lloyd B. Harmon, 556 Jefferson street.

Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards, 302 Madison street, received informally for relatives and friends Monday afternoon at her home. She was assisted by her son, Claude, and her daughter, Miss Margaret Edwards. The occasion was her ninety-fifth birthday.

Miss Clara Wentker, 709 North Fourth street, gave a kitchen shower last Sunday for Miss Jane Ahrens, who is to be a bride of next Thursday. Miss Ahrens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ahrens, 131 North Third street, will marry William Hosfeld of St. Louis. She was honored with a miscellaneous shower at a meeting of her bridge club at the home of Miss Kathryn Golden, 1317 North Fifth street, Tuesday night. Another miscellaneous shower was given for her Thursday with Miss Hazel Tally, 406 North Third street, as the hostess.

Miss Ann Donnell, a student in the freshman class at Lindenwood College last term, was married to Rufus King Barton Jr., Dec. 31, at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Jesse Franklin Donnell, in Crystal City, Mo. They will return today from a honeymoon trip to New York City and will make their home in St. Louis. The bride was one of the attendants of the Hallowe'en queen this fall at the college.

William Rose Benet will lecture on "Contemporary American Poets" at chapel service in Roemer Auditorium, Lindenwood College, at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

Members of the Rotary Club entertained their wives at the annual birthday party of the organization at the St. Charles Hotel Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Travis, 328 South Sixth street, gave a dinner for members of their bridge club Tuesday night.

Dr. and Mrs. Eugene J. Canty entertained their bridge club at their home, 605 Monroe street, following a dinner party at the Hollywood Cafe Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Oliver Link was hostess to her 500 Club at her home, Tenth and Jefferson streets, Wednesday afternoon.

The St. Charles Junior Service League held a business session at the Public Library Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Rauch, 505 Jefferson street, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Bernice Rauch, will leave today for Phoenix, Ariz., where they will visit Miss Olive and Miss Celeste Rauch.

Henry G. Rauch, 515 North Benton avenue, and his sister, Miss Marie C. Rauch, 615 South Fifth street, will leave today for Miami, Fla., for several weeks' vacation.

Mrs. Herman Braufman, 1500 Watson street, accompanied by her father, the Rev. Julius Hess, 809 Washington street, will depart this week for Miami, Fla.

Dr. and Mrs. William C. Wilson, 401 North Kingshighway, have returned after several months spent at Crystal, Colo., and Denver. At Crystal they visited their daughter, Mrs. Andrew McGaffin, the Rev. McGaffin and son, James.

Miss Bonne Leon Turna of Gans, Ok., and Edward M. Glosier of Sibley street, were married Tuesday afternoon in the priest's parlors of St. Peter's parish, the Rev. Arthur Behrmann officiating. A reception followed in the afternoon and a dance that night at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

The bride wore royal blue moire with a corsage of roses and baby's breath. The bride's attendants, Miss Celeste Schaefermeier and Miss Gertrude McMackens, both wore salmon taffeta and matching corsages. Emmett Amsinger and Nicholas Schappe were the bridegroom's attendants. The newly married pair will make their home on Boonslick avenue.

This is silver jubilee year at Lindenwood College in celebration of Dr. John L. Roemer's twenty-fifth year as head of the school. Plans have already been made for an alumnae banquet as one of the closing events of Commencement Week next June. On the Sunday night preceding Commencement a guest artist of note will appear at concert. The Faculty Club has planned a special dinner for the president on his birthday, May 2. On the committee making plans for events this year are: Dr. Alice Gipson, chairman; Dr. Kurt B. Stumberg, Dr. Florence Schaper, Miss Kathryn Hankins, Miss Ethel Cook and Guy C. Motley.

The senior class at Lindenwood College gave its annual date dance in Butler gymnasium last night. Miss Jean McFarland, the class president, was in charge.

Miss Gertrude Isidor of the Music Department at Lindenwood College entertained Mu Phi Epsilon Thursday evening with a party.

Lindenwood students were entertained at assembly Thursday morning, by Cyril Clemens, who spoke on "My Cousin, Mark Twain."

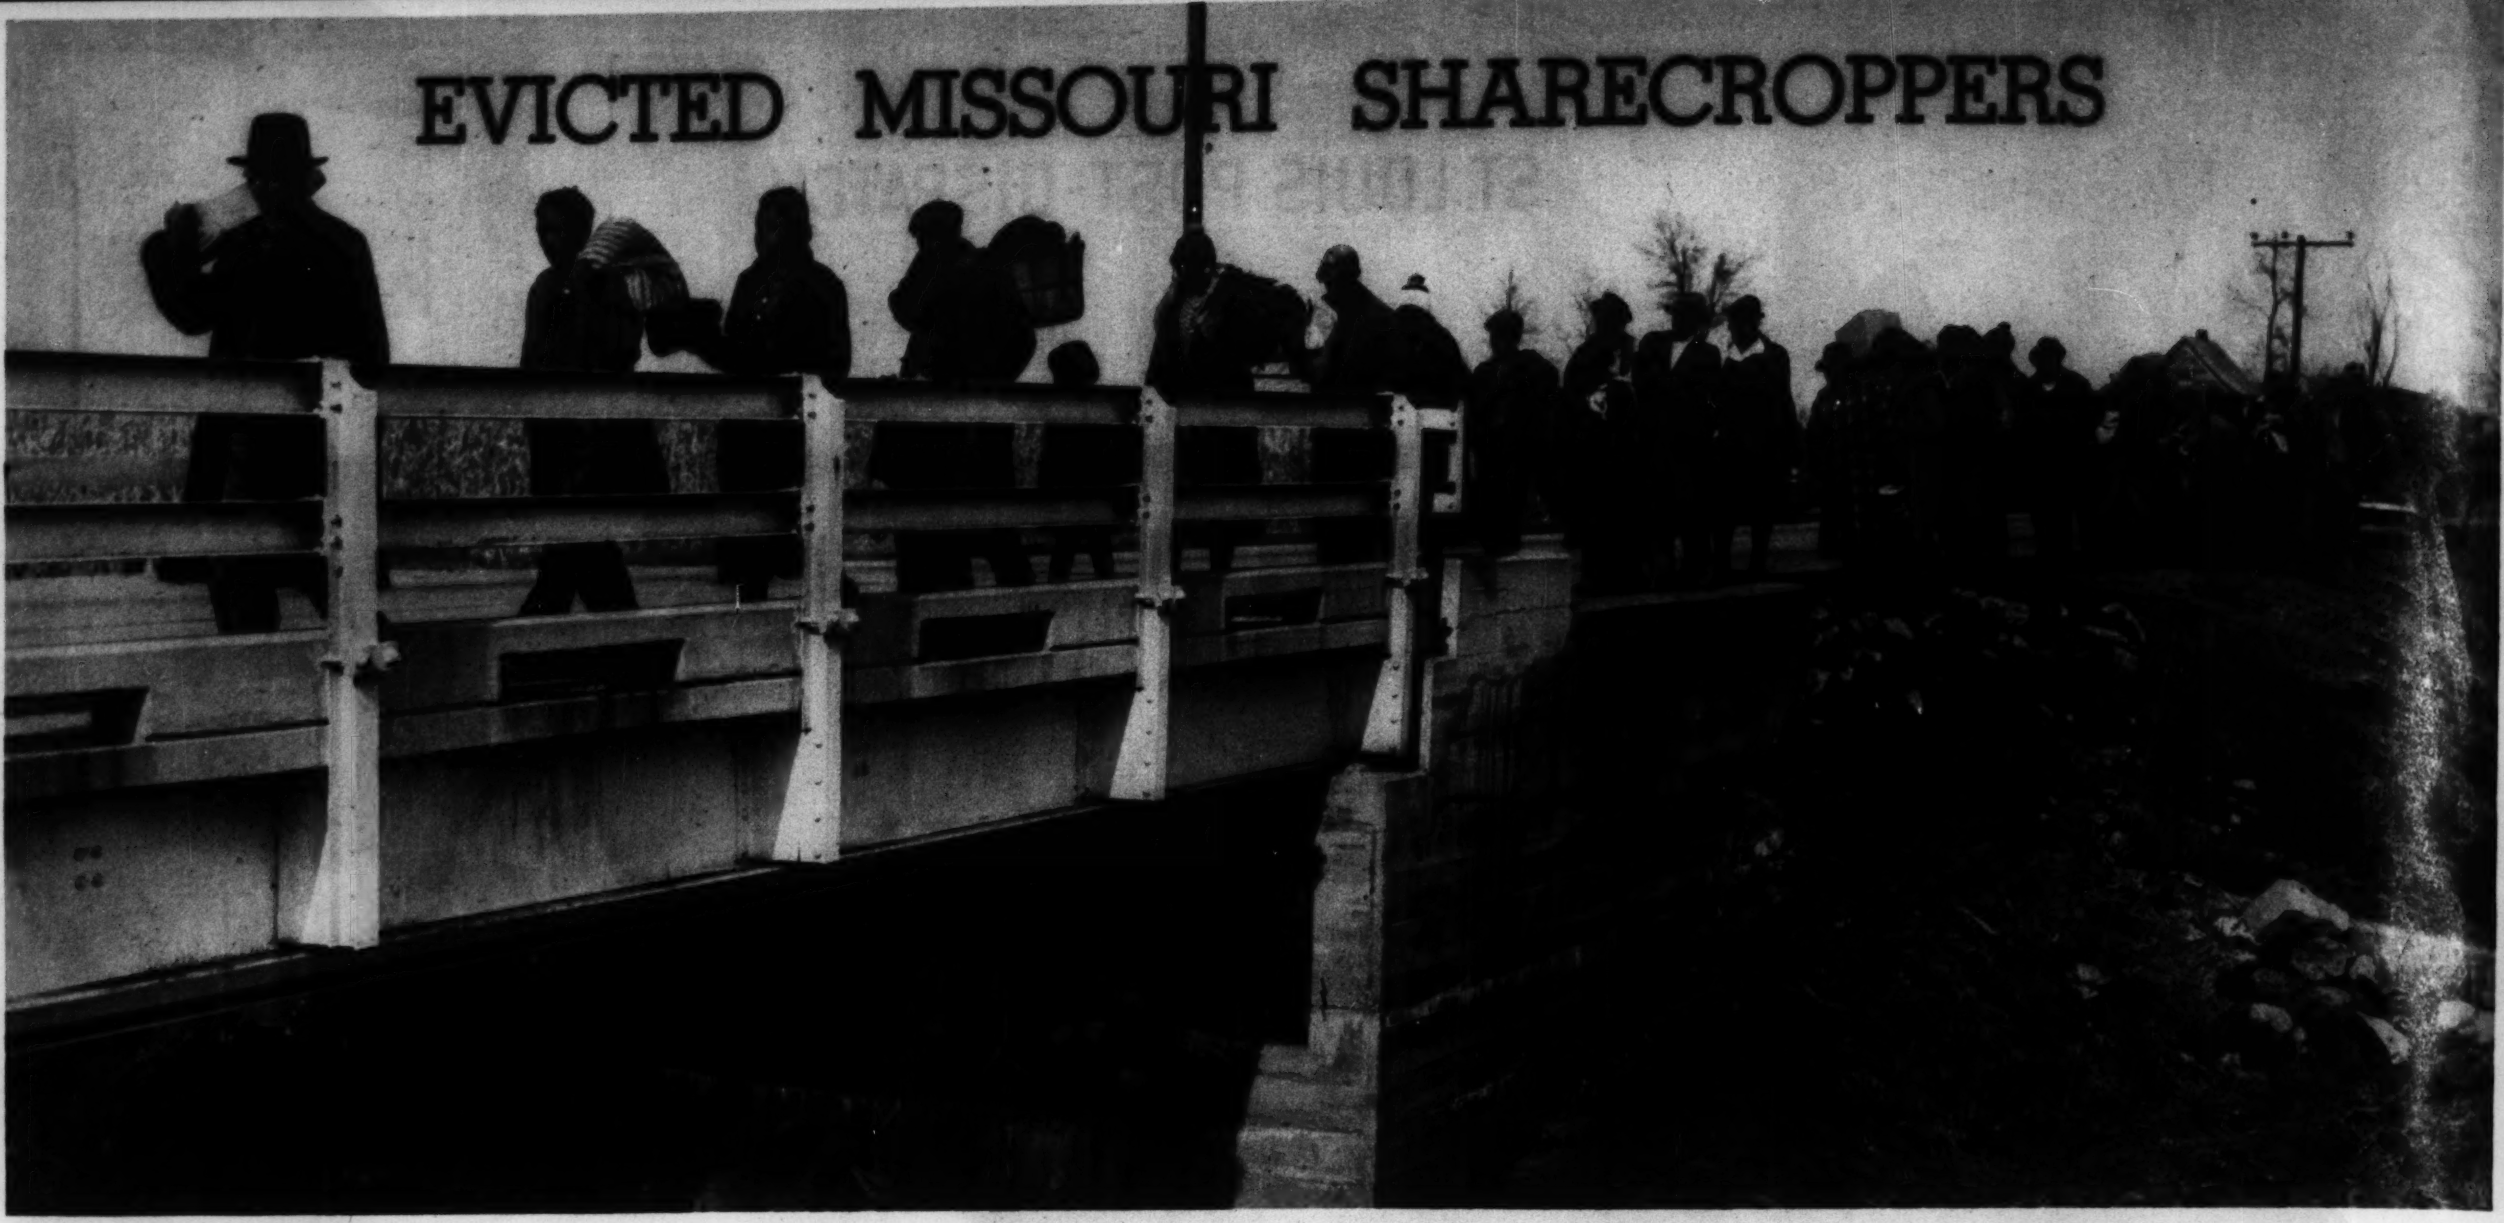
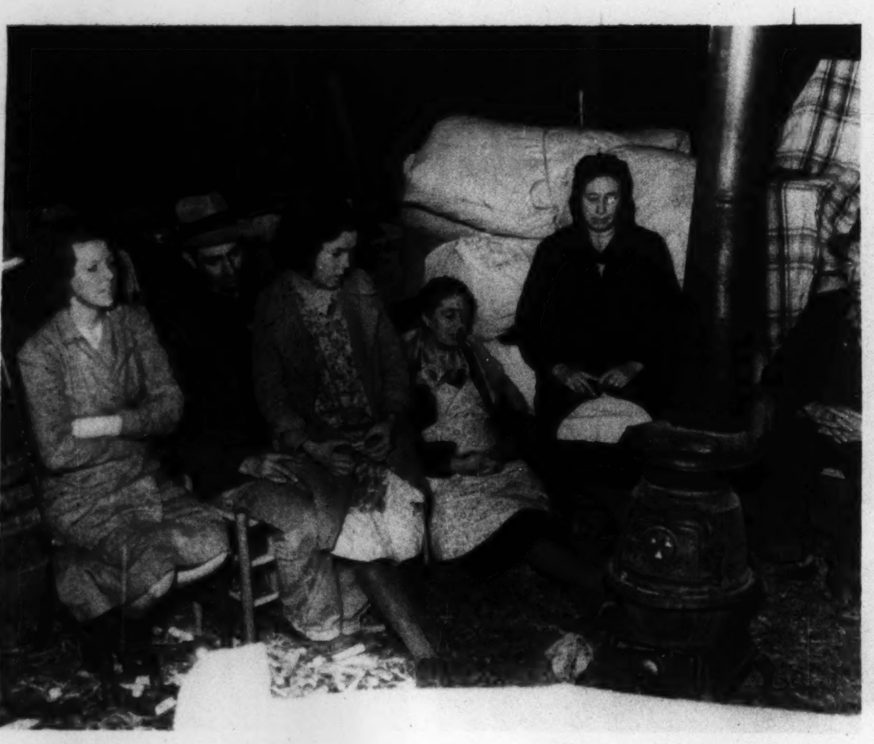
EVICTED MISSOURI SHARECROPPERS



Sharecroppers on the march.



Family group. A new home, under the sky and on a barren brown roadside.

FROM the farms of the flat, swampy cotton country of Southeast Missouri, along sandy side roads and out to the concrete ribbons of United States Highways 60 and 61 straggled 1500 ragged men, women and children last Tuesday. Some rode in rattling jalopies, wheezing trucks, and wagons piled with corn shuck mattresses, iron cook stoves, chicken coops, pots and pans, all they had in the way of home furnishings. Others trudged across fields toting their belongings on their backs. For 100 miles up and down the highway right-of-way their camp fires blazed that night while they slept in the open on mattresses that hardly kept off the chill from the cold ground, in autos, or under crudely improvised lean-tos, or huddled about the fires singing and praying to keep up their courage.

They were sharecroppers, most of them Negroes, evicted from their shanties and plots by landlords who hoped thereby to save for themselves A A A crop reduction payments in which sharecroppers otherwise would have shared. The landlords, sharecropper leaders declared, hoped to hire them as day laborers at 75 cents a day for 120 days a year, and pocket about $100 which each of the croppers would have averaged from the payments—one planter with 200 acres of cotton said he might save $1500 to $2000 a year by such a change. Other croppers who chose to accept the new status of day laborer remained in their shacks under tacit approval of their landlords, in spite of eviction notices.

Patient, devout, and inured to poverty and hardship, the homeless croppers carried out their demonstration without making trouble. Their leaders, mostly preachers, exhorted them to obey the law and compared their plight with the exodus of the Children of Israel from Egypt to the Land of Canaan. The State relief agency promised to send food but red tape held up its delivery. An investigation was begun by Government agencies at Washington, with a threat that landlords who evicted croppers might be deprived of crop reduction payments.

Sunrise comes to a sharecropper. The "house" is made out of blankets thrown over four stakes driven into the ground.

The President Gets a Laugh Out of Garner

EVEN though Vice-President Garner is the accredited leader of the conservative faction in the Democratic party, which is opposed to President Roosevelt's New Deal wing, he and the President are still personal friends and can laugh together over a good story, as shown by this photograph taken at the Jackson Day banquet in Washington the night of January 7. Whatever President Roosevelt said—and he was in good form, having told a funny story in Irish dialect in his radio address to point his plea for Democratic harmony—it is sending Mr. Garner into whooping hilarity. On Mr. Roosevelt's left is Speaker of the House Bankhead, and next to him, Colonel Watson, military aide to the President.

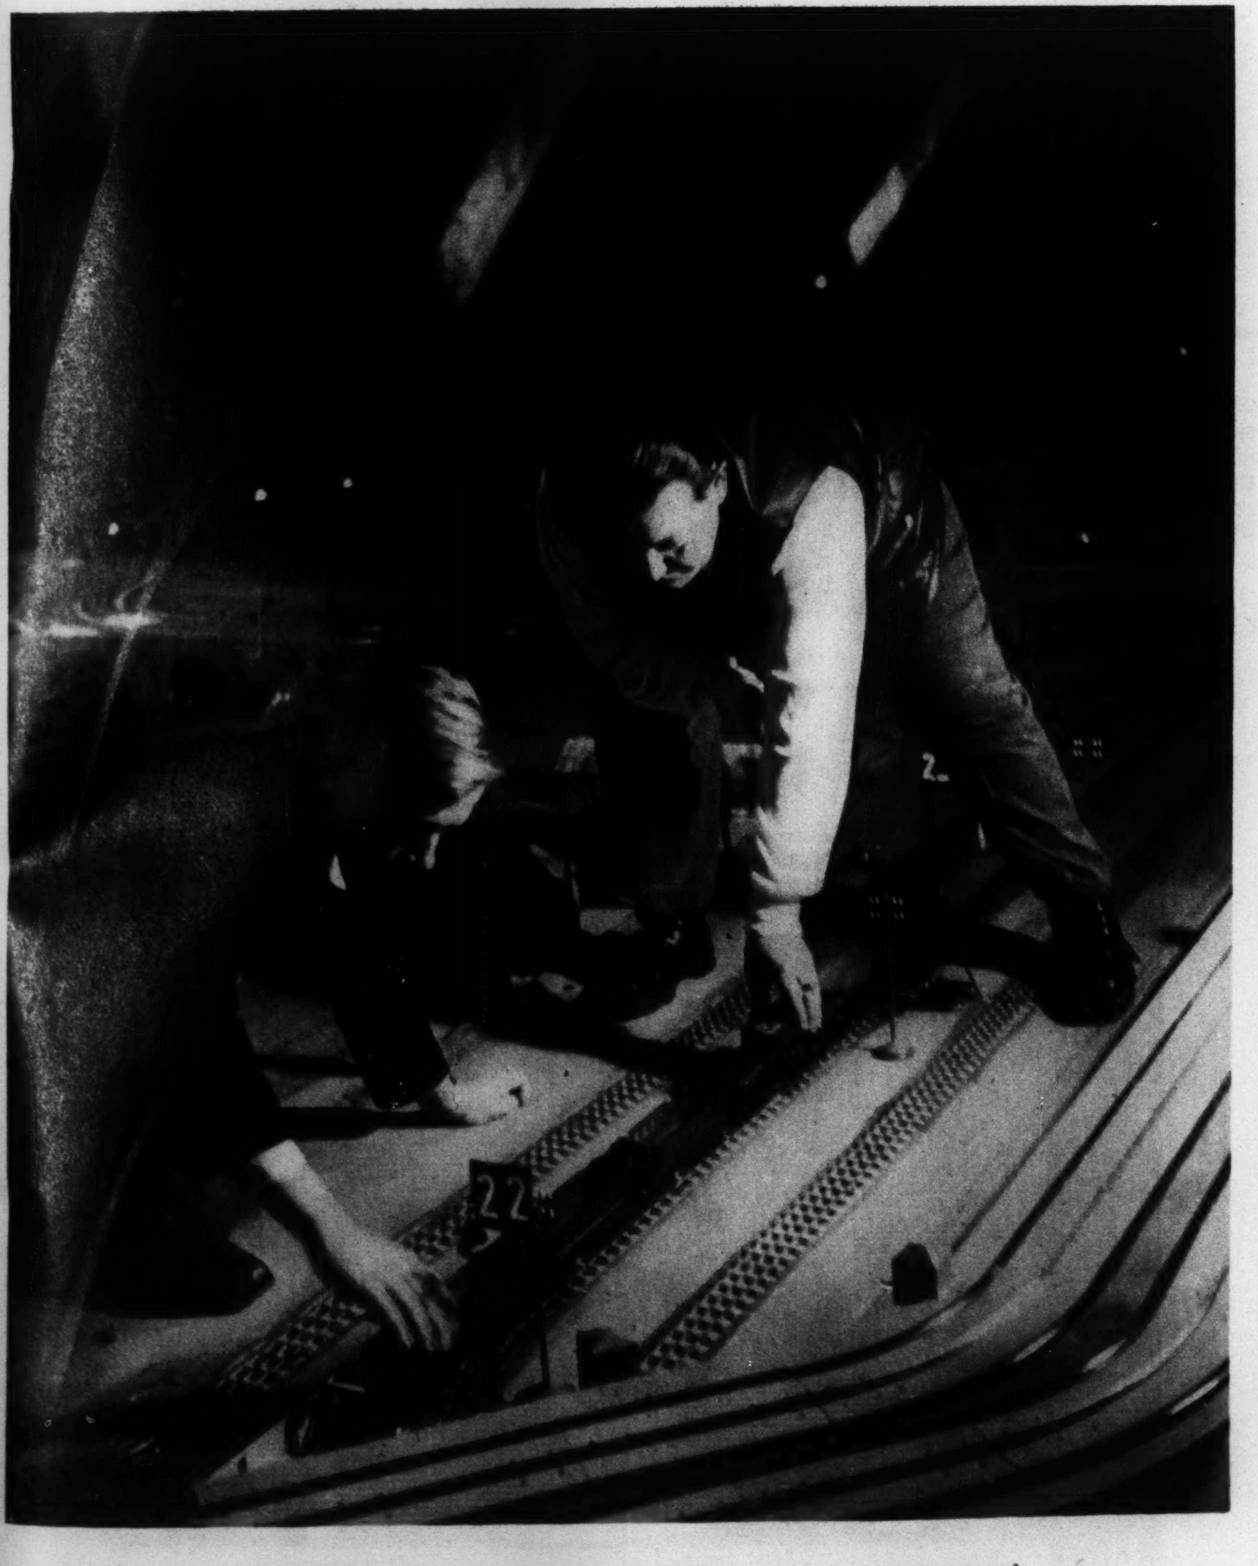
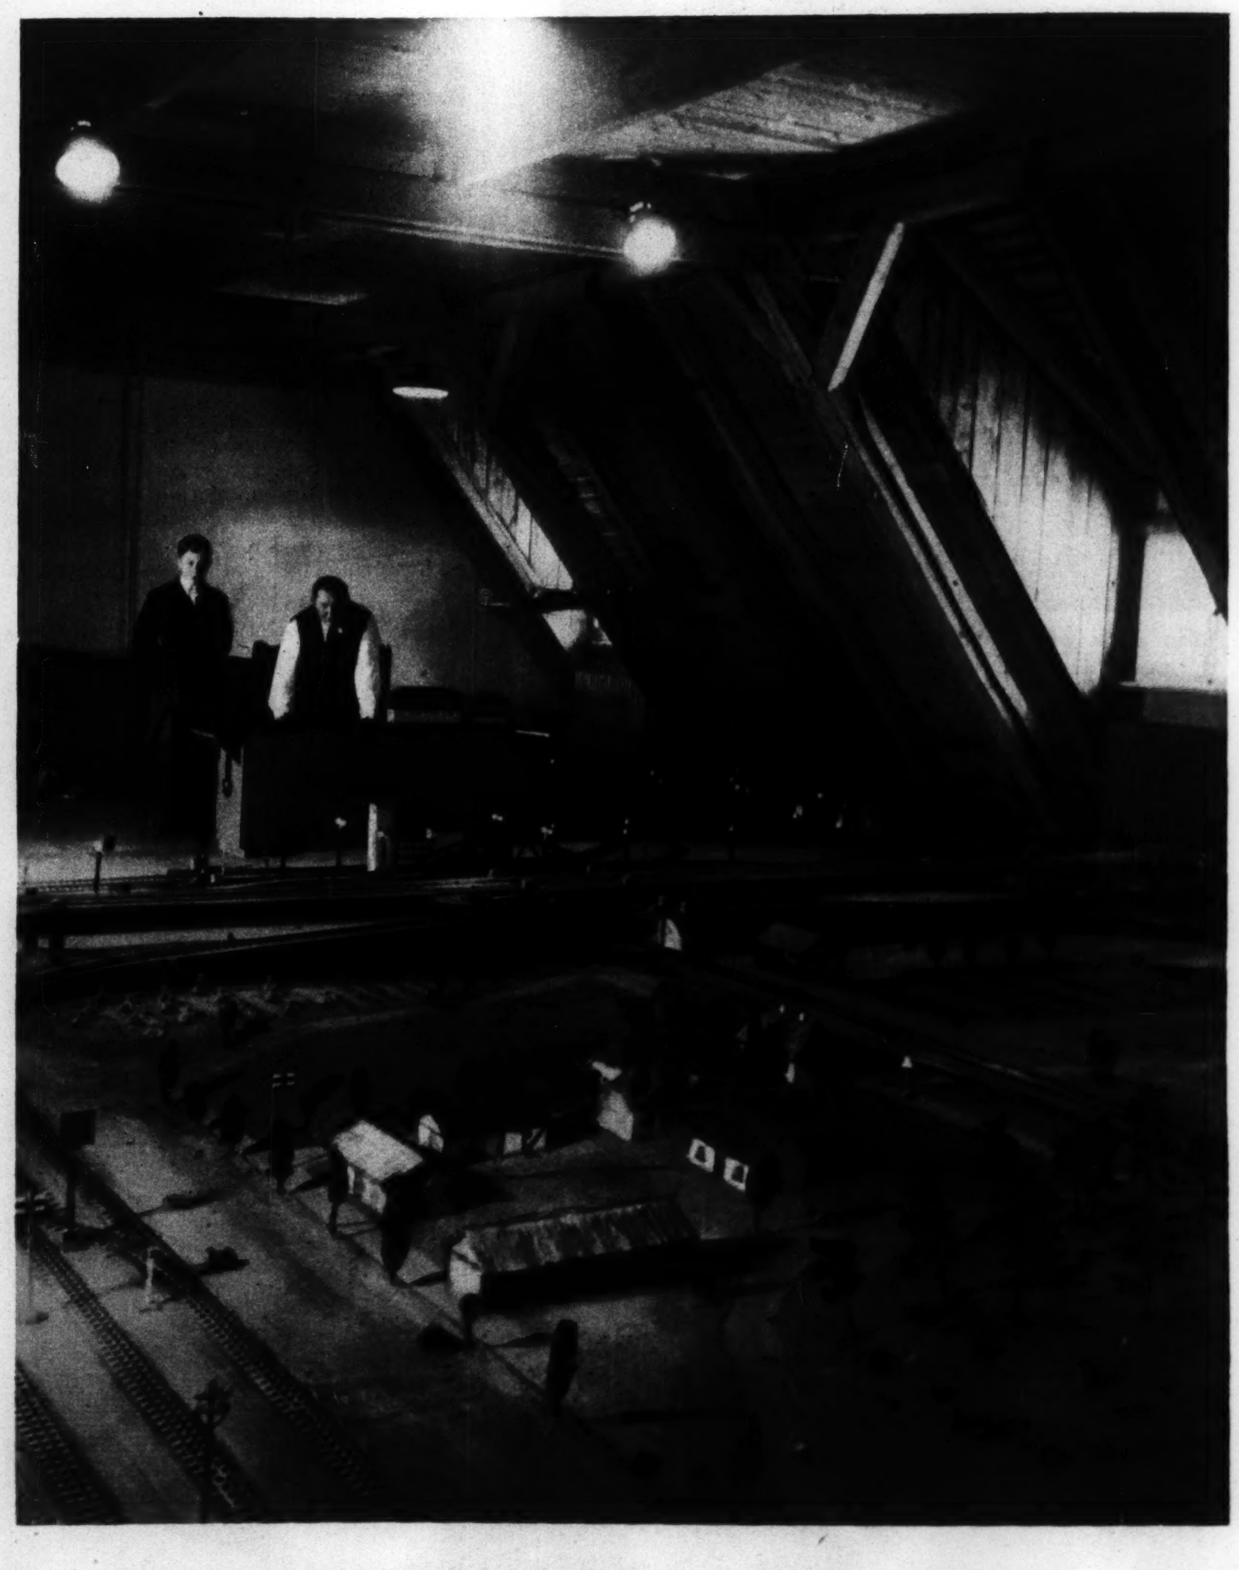
Germany's No. 2 Man With His Toys

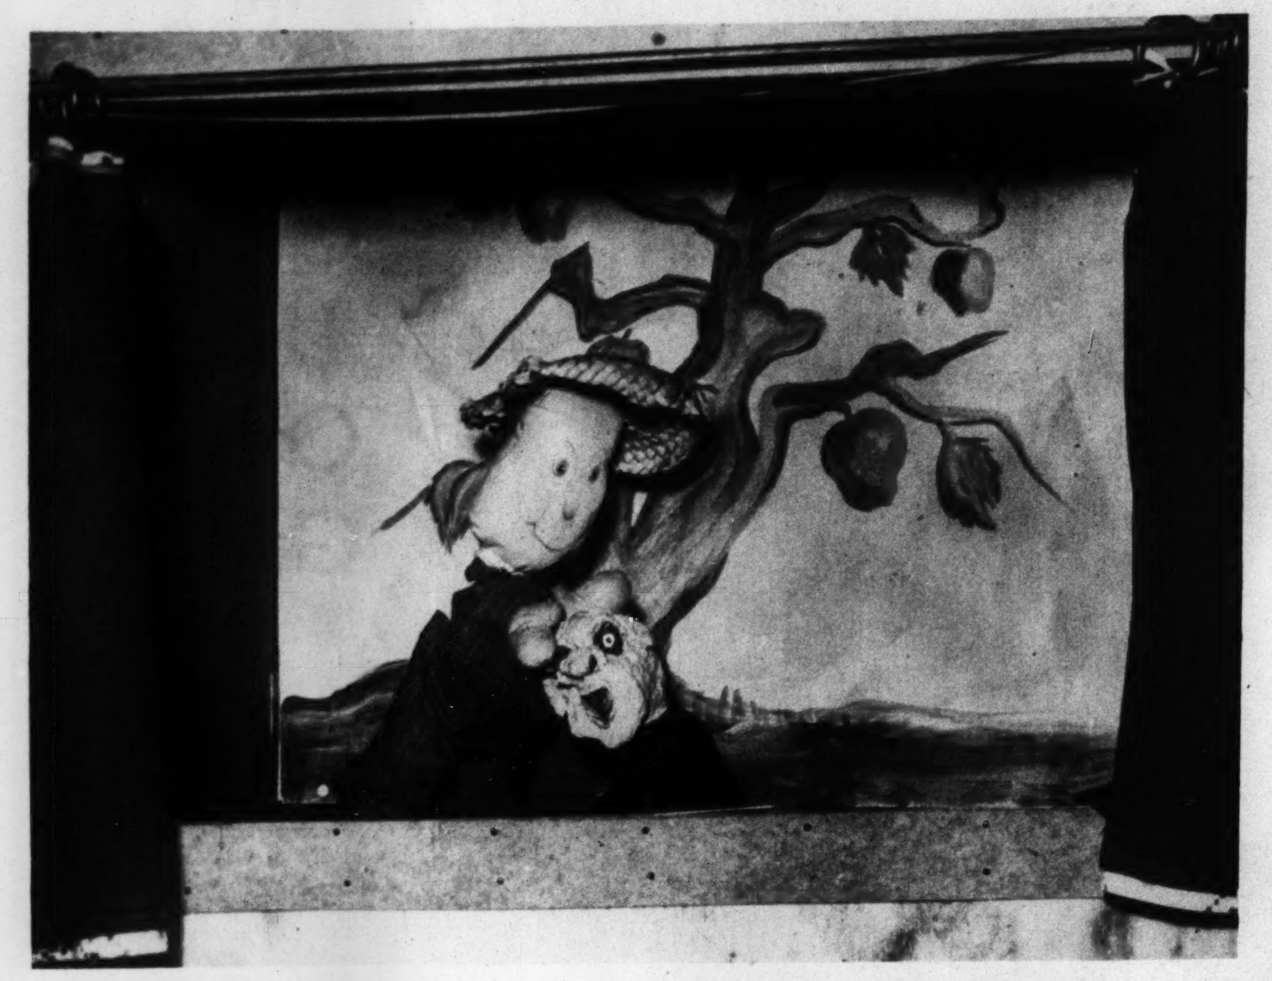


Hermann Goering, No. 2 man in Nazi Germany, is generally associated in the public mind with military airplanes, for he is chief of Germany's air force, but in his free moments he loves nothing better than to play with his miniature railroad in the garret of his luxurious home in Berlin. Here a minor mishap calls for his personal supervision.

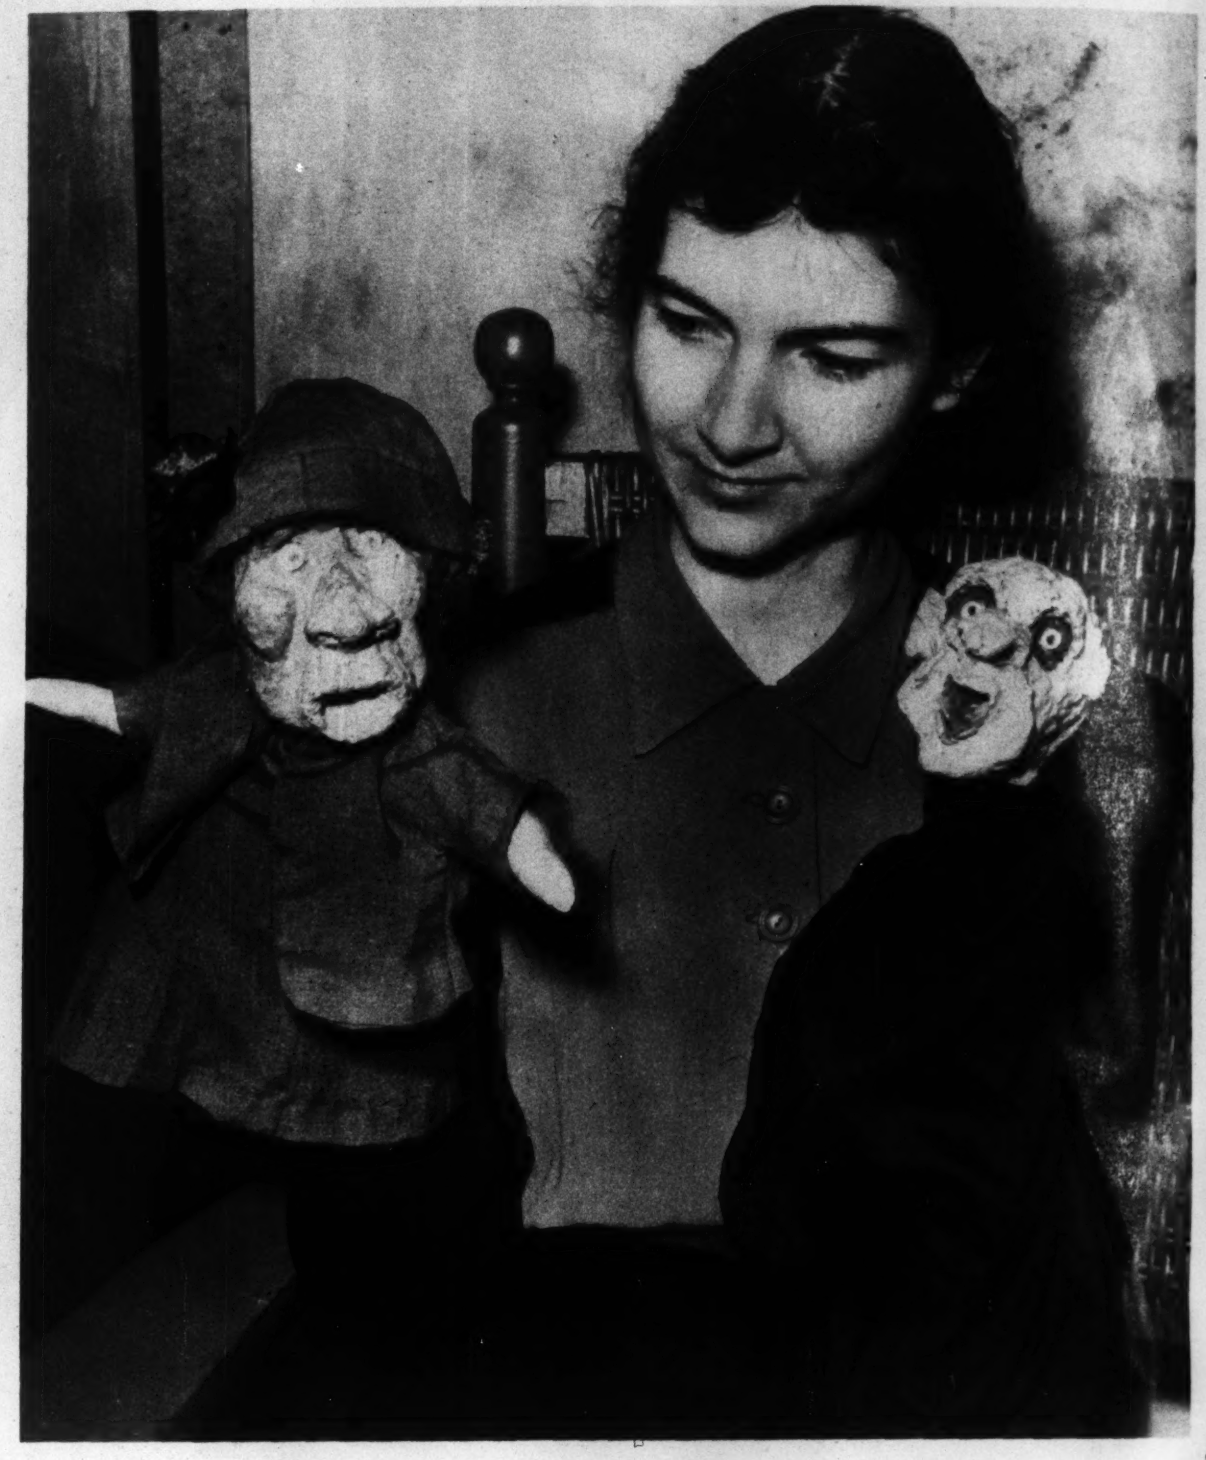


Goering operates the system from a master control board at one end of the garret. Besides the railroad itself, which is one of the most complete of its kind in the world, there are automobile highways which overpass the tracks, telegraph lines, lighting systems and miniature villages.

Josephine Johnson Becomes a Crusading Puppeteer



From the Epilogue of "Pure Applesauce." Profit Motive "rears its ugly head"—Farmer pushes the creature down.



Puppeteer Josephine Johnson and two of the actors in her consumer co-operative propaganda play—Lady Consumer and Profit Motive.

Another demonstration by Marjorie Johnson of the stage mechanics of puppetry; she is managing the Farmer and the Canner.

NOVELIST, poet, painter, champion of the poor, Miss Josephine Johnson of St. Louis County has recently become also a puppeteer. With papier-mache figures of her own manufacture, she and her sister, Marjorie, are giving this winter a show designed to advance the cause of consumer co-operatives. Josephine Johnson is one of the founders of the Co-operative Consumers of St. Louis, Incorporated. The show, written by the novelist, is described by its author as a musical comedy and bears the compound title "The Consumer Consumed or Pure Applesauce." Much of it is in verse. It portrays a farmer and a consumer as being victimized by a broker, a wholesaler, a canner and a merchant in the matter of an apple, with Profit Motive the deep-dyed villain back of it all.

The satiric flavor of this piece of propaganda by the young woman who received a Pulitzer prize in 1935 for her novel "Now in November" is shown in the Canner's speech:

Oh we've been to so much trouble
To make this sauce for you!
We've smashed it and we've hashed it,
And we've vitamized it, too.
We've slow-toasted it and roasted it,
We've deodorized and sterilized,
Virilized and psychoanalyzed—
We've aged it and enraged it,
We've mellowed it and yellowed it,
We've sliced it and spiced it
And magnetized it too.
It'll give you energy and lethargy—
There's nothing it can't do!
—Gets your tonsils out and your teeth back in
And curls your hair for you,
Contains anthracite for your appetite,
And lead to stabilize,
Keeps emotions on the up and up,
Puts sparkle in your eyes—
Oh, Lord, it's just wonderful! You can't pay me too much!

Behind a screen containing a small stage the Johnson sisters manipulate the grotesque puppets, speak the dialogue and sing the songs—Marjorie doing most of the singing. They presented the play a few weeks ago at the Christmas party of the Co-operative Consumers at 514 Culver way, and have repeated it at smaller gatherings.

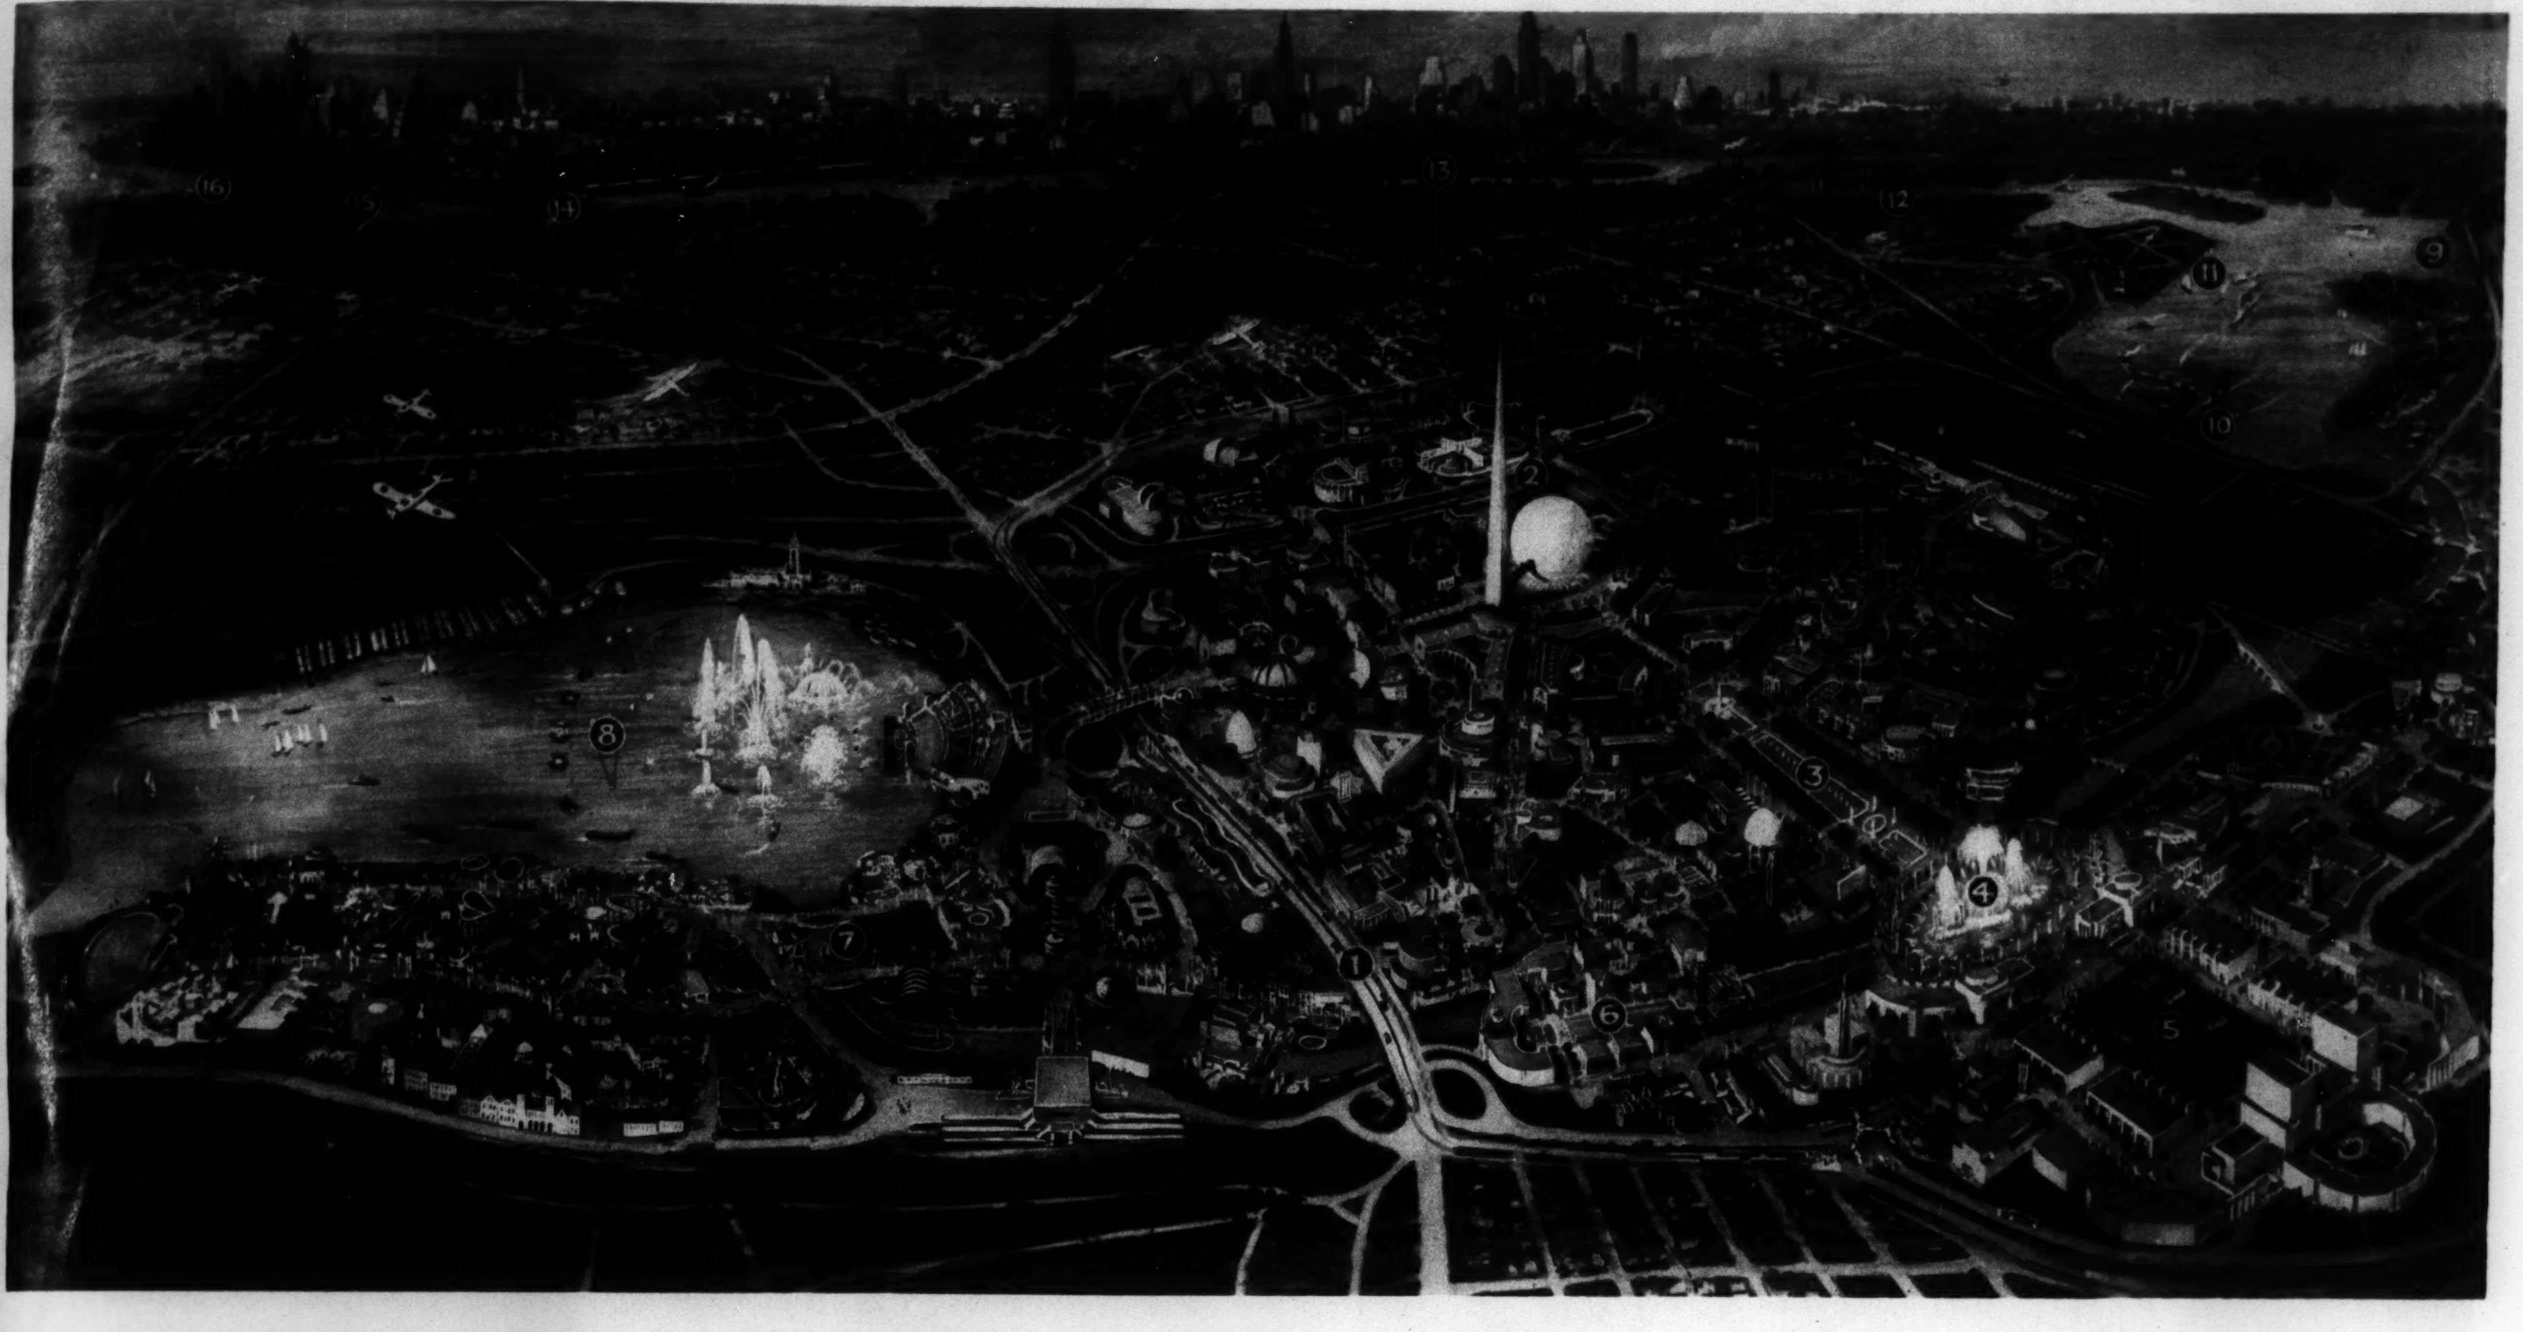
New York World's Fair in Perspective



THE first official painting of the New York World's Fair, showing the exposition as it will appear at the opening April 30. The painting was done by H. M. Pettit. In the background is Manhattan Island, in the foreground the 1216 acres of the fair, which were reclaimed from the Flushing swamps. The picture shows: (1) World's Fair boulevard; (2) Perisphere and 700-foot Trylon in center of main exhibit area, from which radiate buildings and displays housing 1400 exhibitions on tree-shaded avenues; (3) Constitutional Mall; (4) Lagoon of Nations; (5) Court of Peace, with exhibits of 62 nations and twin-towered Federal building at east end; (6) Court of States, with displays of some 35 states; (7) 280-acre amusement area, with villages, restaurants, carnival shows, scenic railways, and the like; (8) Fountain Lake, scene of nightly fire and water shows; (9) Whitestone Bridge route from New England; (10) Flushing Bay boat piers; (11) North Beach Airport; (12) Triborough Bridge; (13) Queensborough Bridge, at Fifty-ninth street, over East River; (14) Manhattan Bridge; (15) Williamsburg Bridge; (16) Brooklyn Bridge.

How the 200-foot Perisphere and 700-foot Trylon will look when completely uncovered. Within the Perisphere visitors will view a dramatization of the "World of Tomorrow" from revolving platforms suspended in mid-air. Fountains will make it appear the great ball is poised on jets of water. At night it will seem to revolve. The Trylon will serve as a beacon and broadcasting tower.

Famous Italian Masterpieces to Be Shown in America for First Time

WORLD famous Italian paintings and sculptures which never yet have been shown in the United States were collected in Florence, Italy, for shipment to this country, where they will be on exhibition this year at the Golden Gate International Exposition at San Francisco. Lent by the Italian Government, the collection, numbering 40 or more pieces, is valued nominally at about $15,000,000; no actual value, of course, can be assigned because such art is priceless and irreplaceable. It will be attended by armed guards on its way to and from San Francisco and during its stay there. Among the most famous of the art treasures are the three paintings reproduced in color on this page, one of which, Raphael's "Madonna of the Chair," has been valued at $2,000,000. On opposite page, photographs of other paintings and sculpture in this display for the 1939 California World's Fair.

(By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer)

GEORGIA WRIGHT SIMMONS was married yesterday afternoon at the Second Presbyterian Church to Harlan Trimble Pierpont Jr., of Chicago. The bride, daughter of Mrs. George Welch Simmons of 21 Westmoreland place, was presented to St. Louis society in 1937, after graduation from Mary Institute and a year's travel abroad. Mr. Pierpont is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Pierpont of Worcester, Massachusetts. He was graduated in 1935 from Harvard University, where he was a member of the Hasty Pudding Institute of 1770 and Phoenix-S. K., undergraduate clubs. After the wedding trip the couple will reside in Chicago.

Detective Michael Foley, for whose murder April 10, 1937, the "real life Dead End Kids" were sentenced to death.

INTERMITTENTLY the United States becomes aware of its slums, recognizing them as breeding places of crime and disease and as evidence of social injustice. Sometimes a book or play brings this awareness—as did "Dead End" not long ago; a play sufficiently melodramatic to have wide popular appeal and to make the lads who portrayed its six slum-dwelling boy hoodlums known throughout the land as "the Dead End Kids." Sometimes the public is jolted roughly into recognition of these dark spots by some real life tragedy which has grown naturally from the environment—such as the New York case of five Lower East Side youths sentenced to be executed next week for killing a policeman who interrupted them in a holdup. The mothers of the youths have been waging a desperate campaign to save their sons from the electric chair, holding meetings at which they prayed and got signatures on a petition to Governor Herbert H. Lehman for clemency. The petition blames slum environment for the crime of which Dominick Guariglia, Isidore Zimmerman, Philip Chalef, Arthur Friedman and Joseph O'Laughlin were convicted. It states: "The real causes of their crime are disease and crime breeding slums, filthy and uninhabitable tenements and dire poverty, unemployment and denial of opportunity and the hopelessness and despair which such causes bring in their wake. . . ." On the petition is a photograph of two slum children which was used on a poster in a campaign by settlement workers 10 years ago; one is Dominick Guariglia—then a 9-year-old urchin of the tenements, now a convicted murderer.

FROM THE ELECTRIC CHAIR!

WHEREAS: Five boys, the youngest, 19, the oldest, no more than 27 years of age, born and bred on the Lower East Side, have been sentenced to death in the electric chair during the week of January 22, 1939,

WHEREAS: Economic conditions, unemployment and lack of opportunity, coupled with physical handicaps and illness of the mind and body prevented these boys from making healthy and normal adjustments in life's daily struggle for existence,

WHEREAS: Want of wholesome surroundings and of adequate recreational facilities and an environment of poverty and slums inevitably directed them and will ever continue to direct other unfortunate and weak products of such conditions into anti-social pursuits,

WHEREAS: The real causes of their crime are disease and crime breeding slums, filthy and uninhabitable tenements and dire poverty, unemployment and denial of opportunity and the hopelessness and despair which such causes bring in their wake,

BE IT RESOLVED, THEREFORE, that WE, PEOPLE OF THE LOWER EAST SIDE AND OF THE WHOLE CITY OF NEW YORK, FATHERS, MOTHERS, BROTHERS, SISTERS, YOUNG AND OLD, do pray you, Recognize that forces and conditions over which these boys had no control and of which they are the unfortunate victims are contributing factors which make for this crime and in the exercise of a humane discretion and in the performance of the high trust reposed in you by the People of this State, Grant executive clemency for these boys.

WE PLEAD THAT YOU BE MERCIFUL AND SAVE THESE LIVES FROM THE ELECTRIC CHAIR.

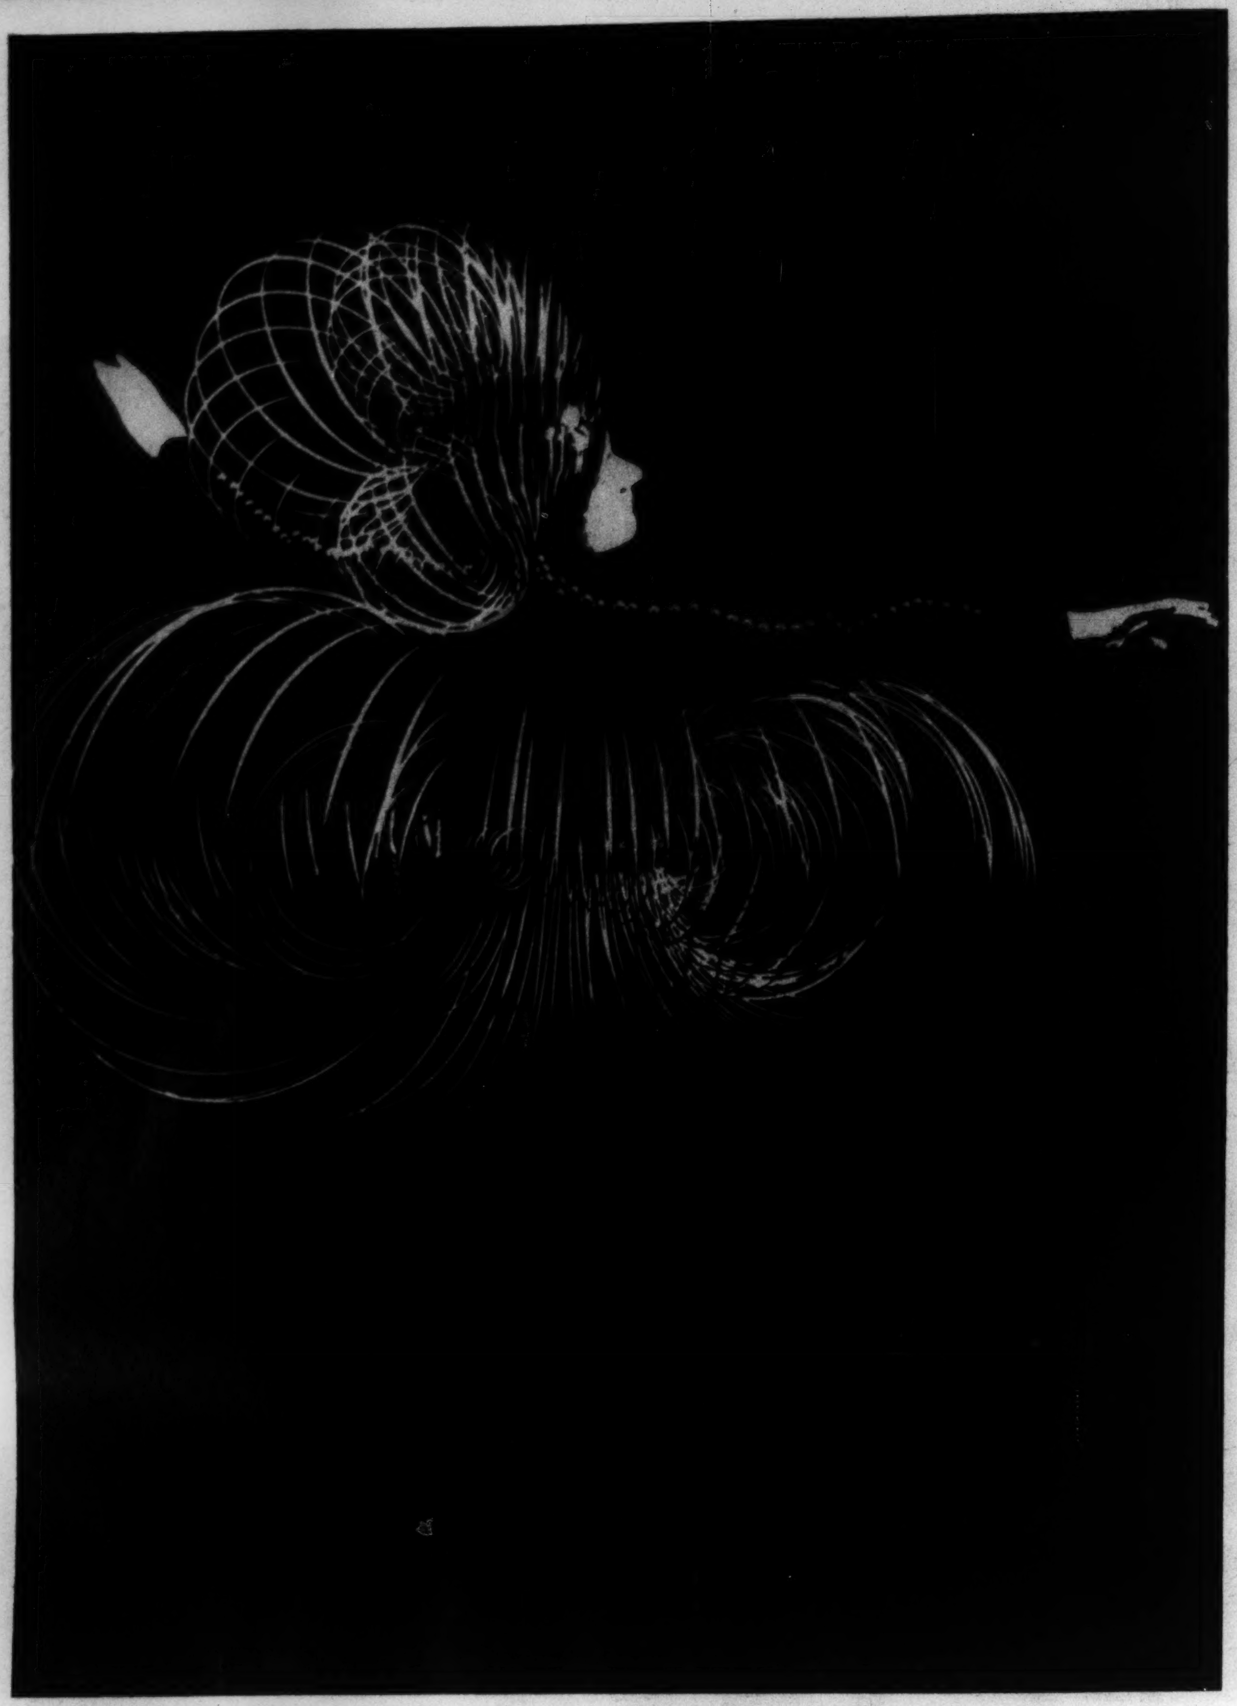
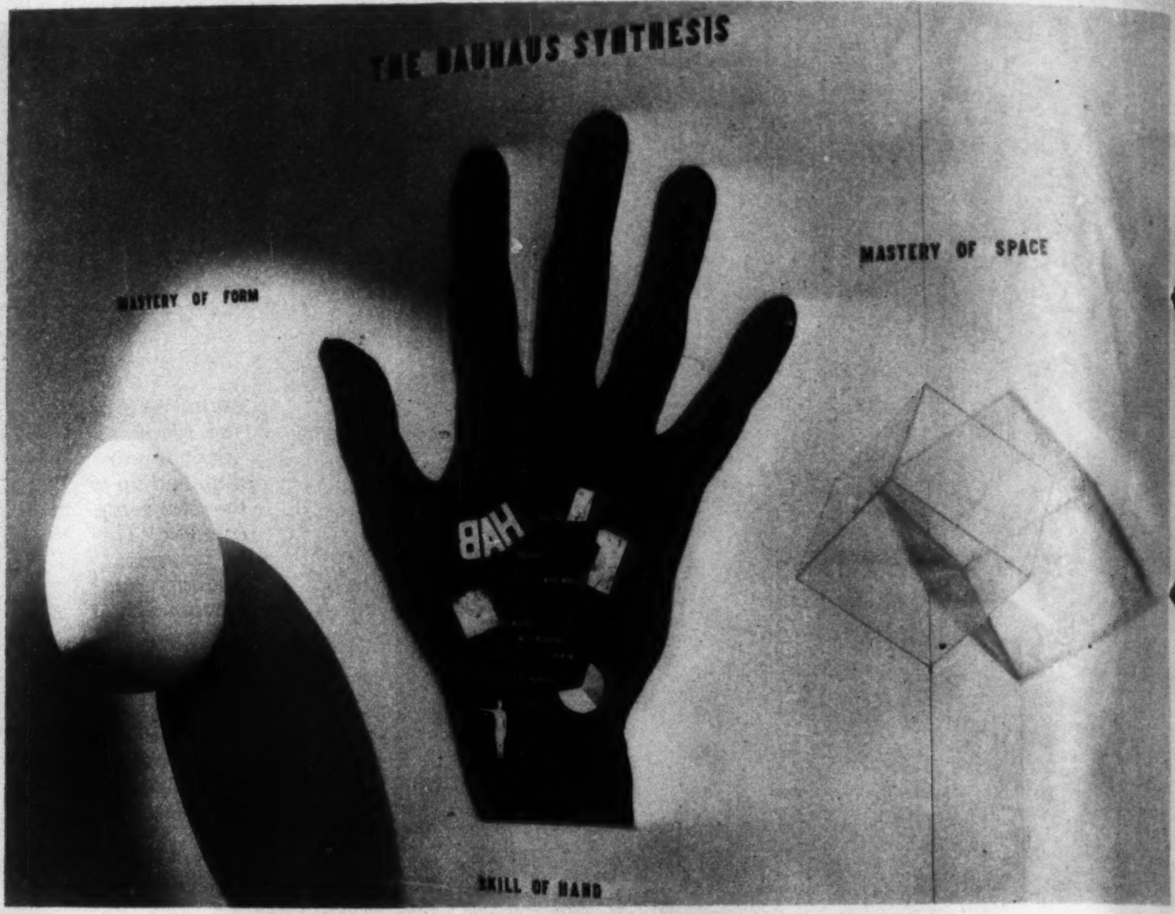
'Shaping Things to Come'
the Bauhaus Influence



Costume designed at the Bauhaus for its Triadic Ballet. Circular metal design denotes motion even when dancer is stationary. It is by Oskar Schlemmer.

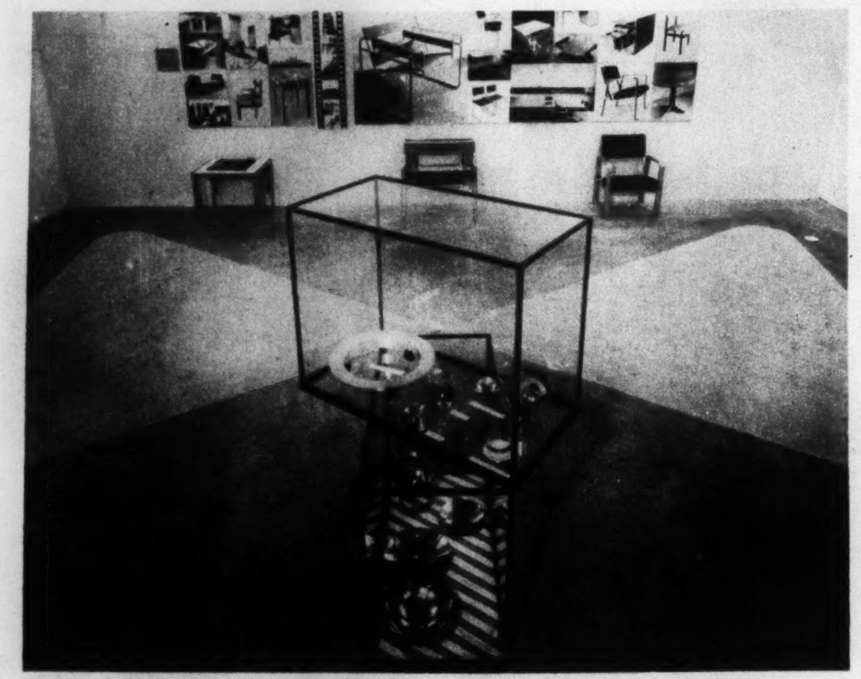


The Bauhaus Idea. The egg symbolizes preliminary courses, studies in form, space, color and materials. The hand symbolizes practical training in sculpture, typography, carpentry, weaving, metal work; the crystal cube denotes courses in architecture and design.

AT NEW YORK'S Museum of Modern Art a remarkable exhibit of the German Bauhaus (House for Building) demonstrates how experimenters, dabbling in whimsy and futuristic design, laid the groundwork for a multitude of products, accepted now in everyday life.

The Bauhaus, founded in Germany in 1919 and "liquidated" in 1933 by Nazi edict, was known as the birthplace of "shape of things to come." It began as a school, and its followers claim it has become the most influential institution, particularly in architecture, of its kind in modern times. The exhibit includes paintings, building models, photographs, typography, furniture, lighting fixtures, rugs, textiles, sculpture in tin and paper, and many other objects.

Careful scrutiny of the exhibits reveals the accomplishment of the Bauhaus group, which includes among its friends Walter Gropius, chairman of the Department of Architecture, Harvard University, and Frank Lloyd Wright, America's most celebrated architect. Through long experiment and by perfecting of many meaningless but eye-arresting designs, the Bauhaus students and their mentors invented forms that have been adopted into commercial use, not only in architecture but in advertising illustration, the arts, and in the manufacture of furniture.



From furniture and metal workshops came trays, bowls, dishes, chessmen, and the first tubular chair, by Marcel Breuer.

Frank Lloyd Wright and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gropius attend the opening of the exhibit at the Museum of Modern Art.

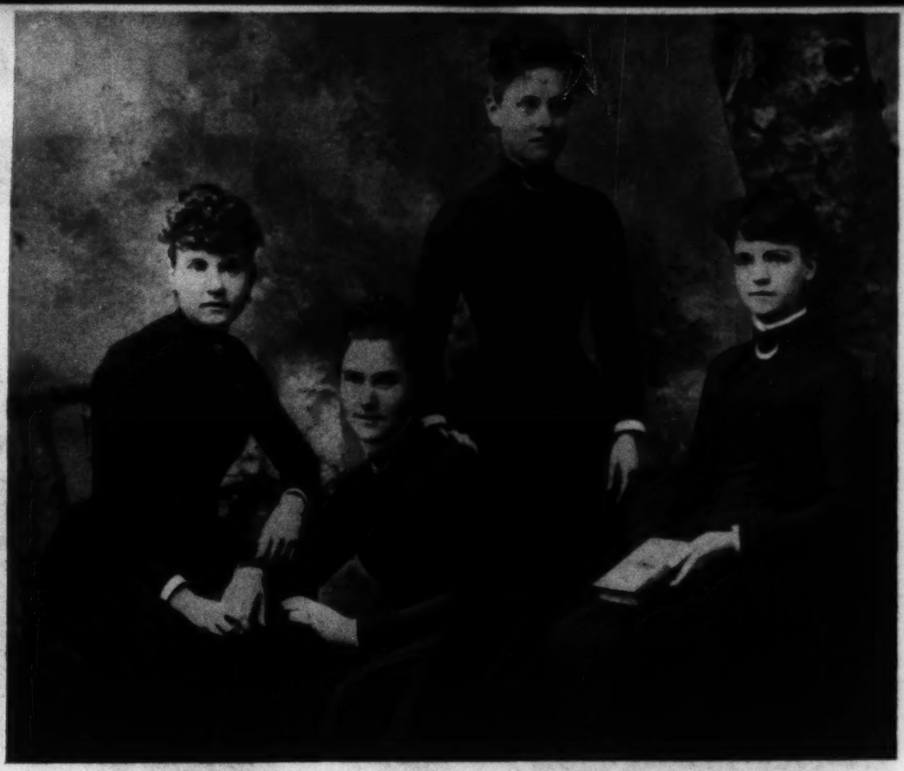
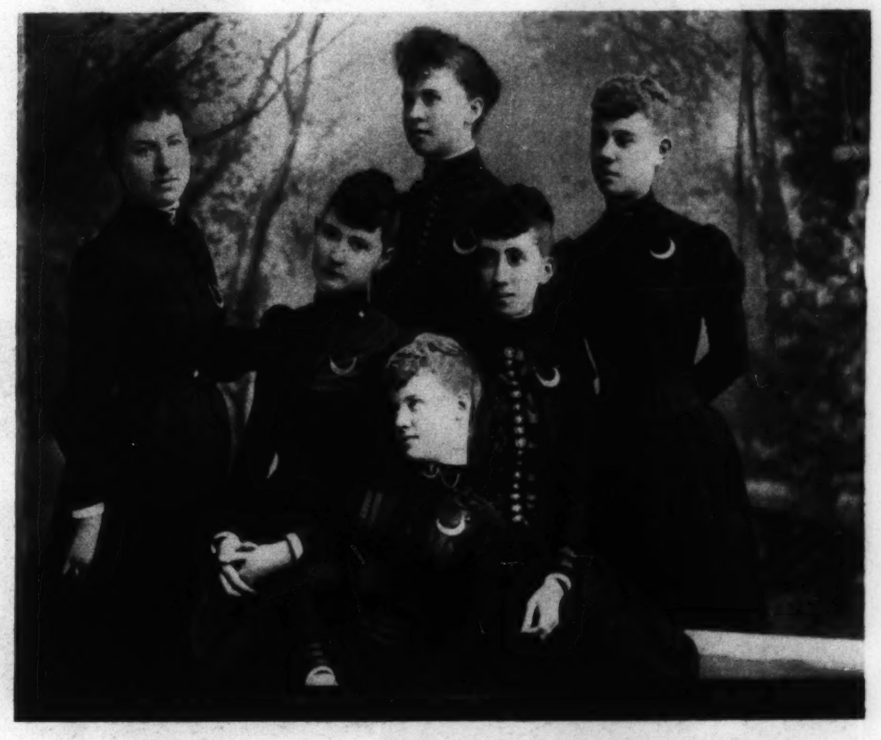
The class of 1868, earliest photograph in the Visitation collection. The fifth girl from the left is Lillie Chouteau, member of an old St. Louis family. She later married John Winthrop and moved to Tallahassee, Florida.



In 1887 the graduating class consisted of four girls, among them Lily Frost (standing in the rear), a member of another old St. Louis family. She afterward moved to England.

ONE of the oldest institutions in St. Louis is the Academy of the Visitation, founded more than a hundred years ago for the education of young girls in the "cultivation of Christian virtues . . . and the practice of the little virtues of cultured society." Records and photographs at the school give a picture of a section of St. Louis life and its people during the passage of a century during which the city grew from a trading center on the Mississippi to a major city with a social and cultural background. On this page PICTURES presents some of these photographs, taken from a collection comprising the graduating class from 1868 on.



Upswept hair was still the thing in 1889, when this class was graduated. On the extreme left is Madeline Kerens, daughter of the Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, Richard Kerens. She married E. D. Kenna and moved to Chicago. The crescents worn on the dresses represent excellence in scholarship.

A member of the 1899 class was Elsie Hall, who was to become Mother Mary Vincentia, now the academy head.

Gail Maguire, now Mrs. H. Whitaker of Prescott, Arkansas, was a graduate of 1909 whose mother and daughter also were Visitation graduates. Her classmate on the right was Susie Goode of Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, who became the wife of George T. Priest, son of a St. Louis attorney, Henry Sam Priest.

Josephine Salorgne, now Mrs. William R. Scullin, was another graduate of 1899.

Pauline Pfeiffer, graduate of 1913, wife of Ernest Hemingway, the author.

Catherine Rozier, one of an old Ste. Genevieve family, was a graduate in 1918. Members of her family have attended the academy since 1838. She is now Mrs. J. K. Malone of Los Angeles.

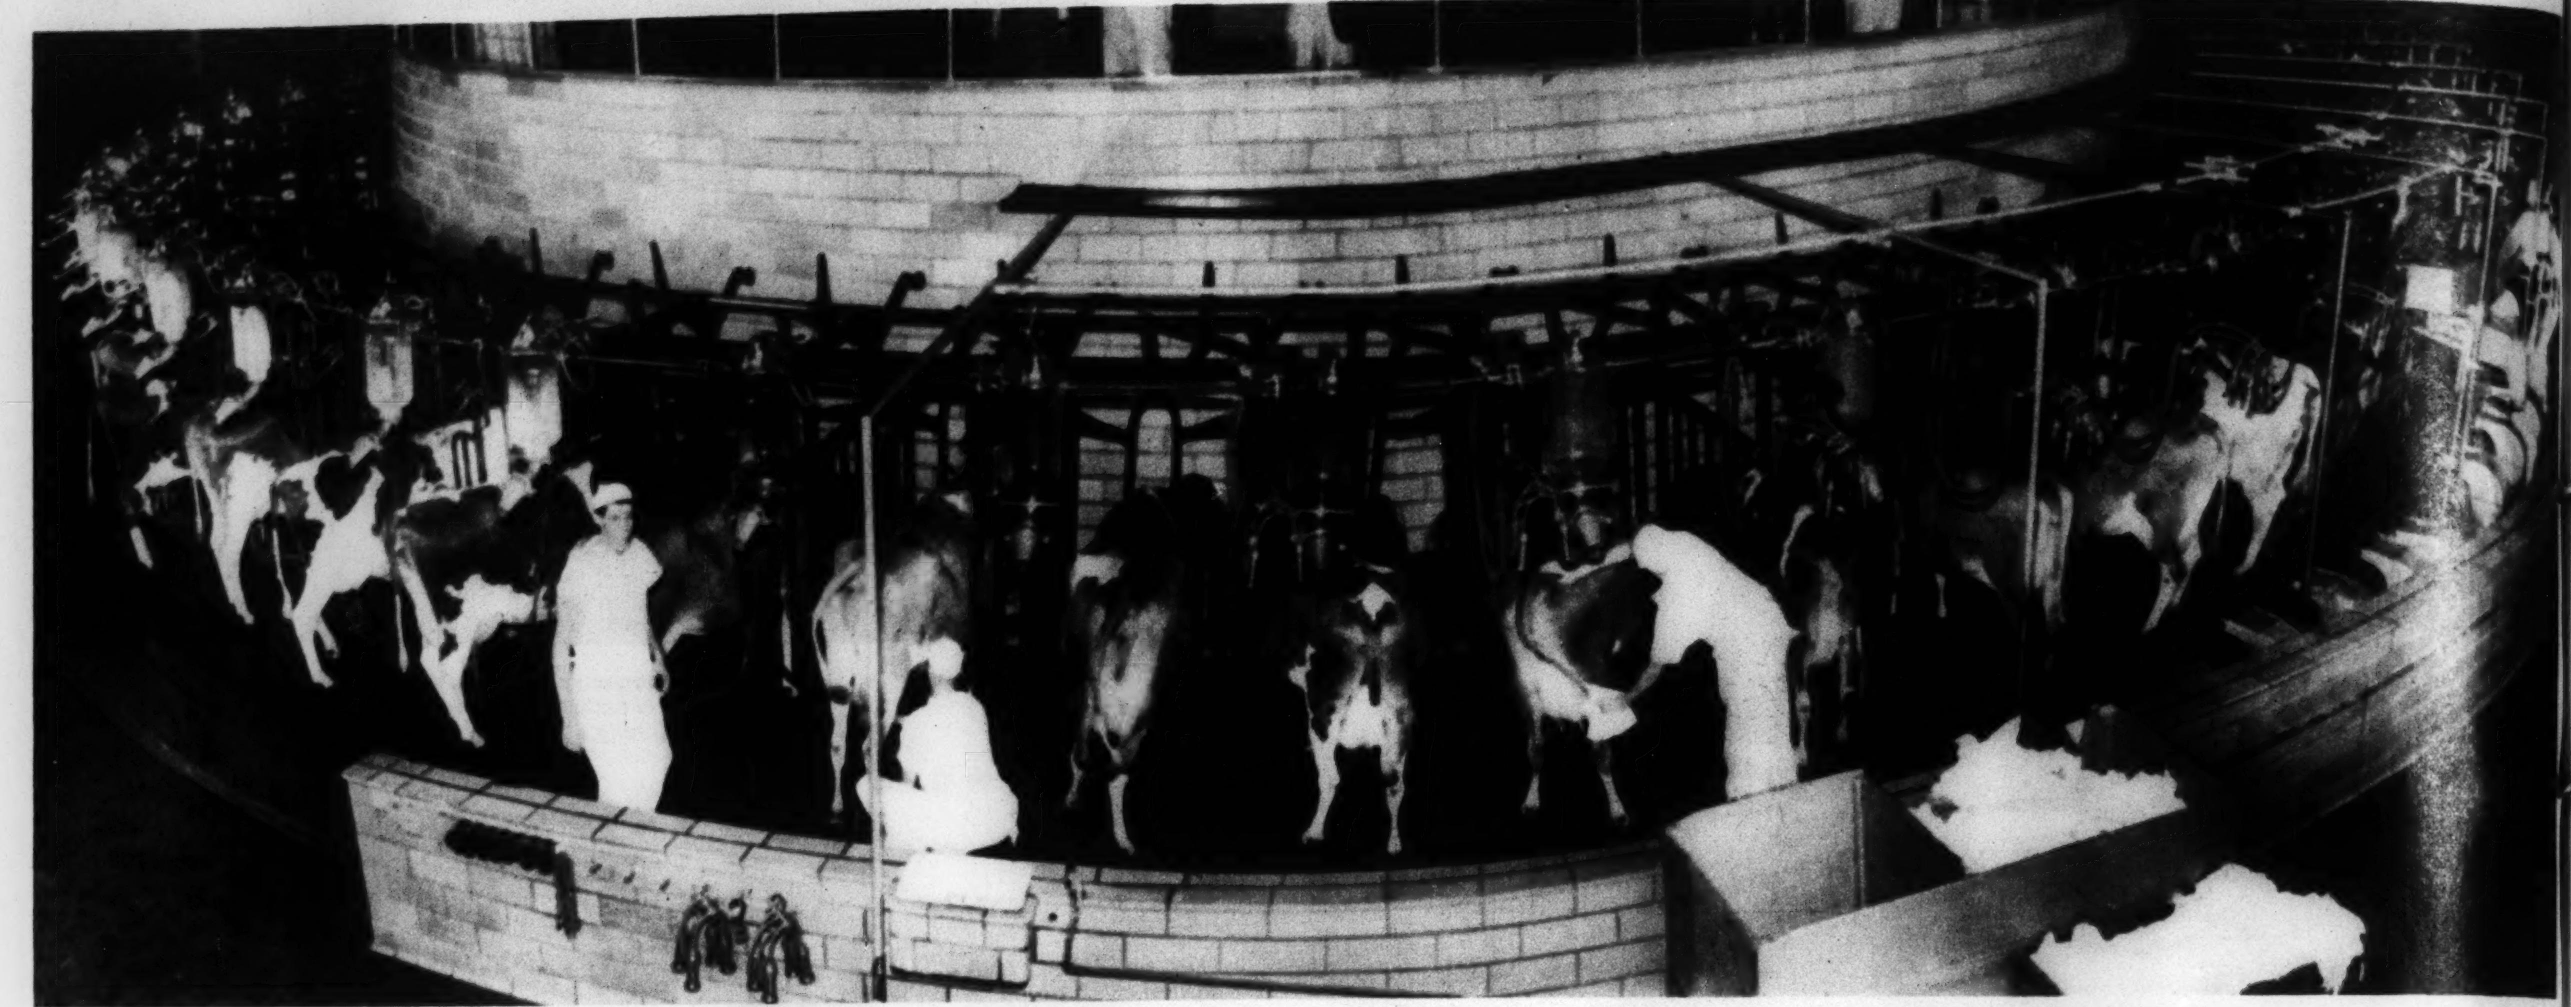
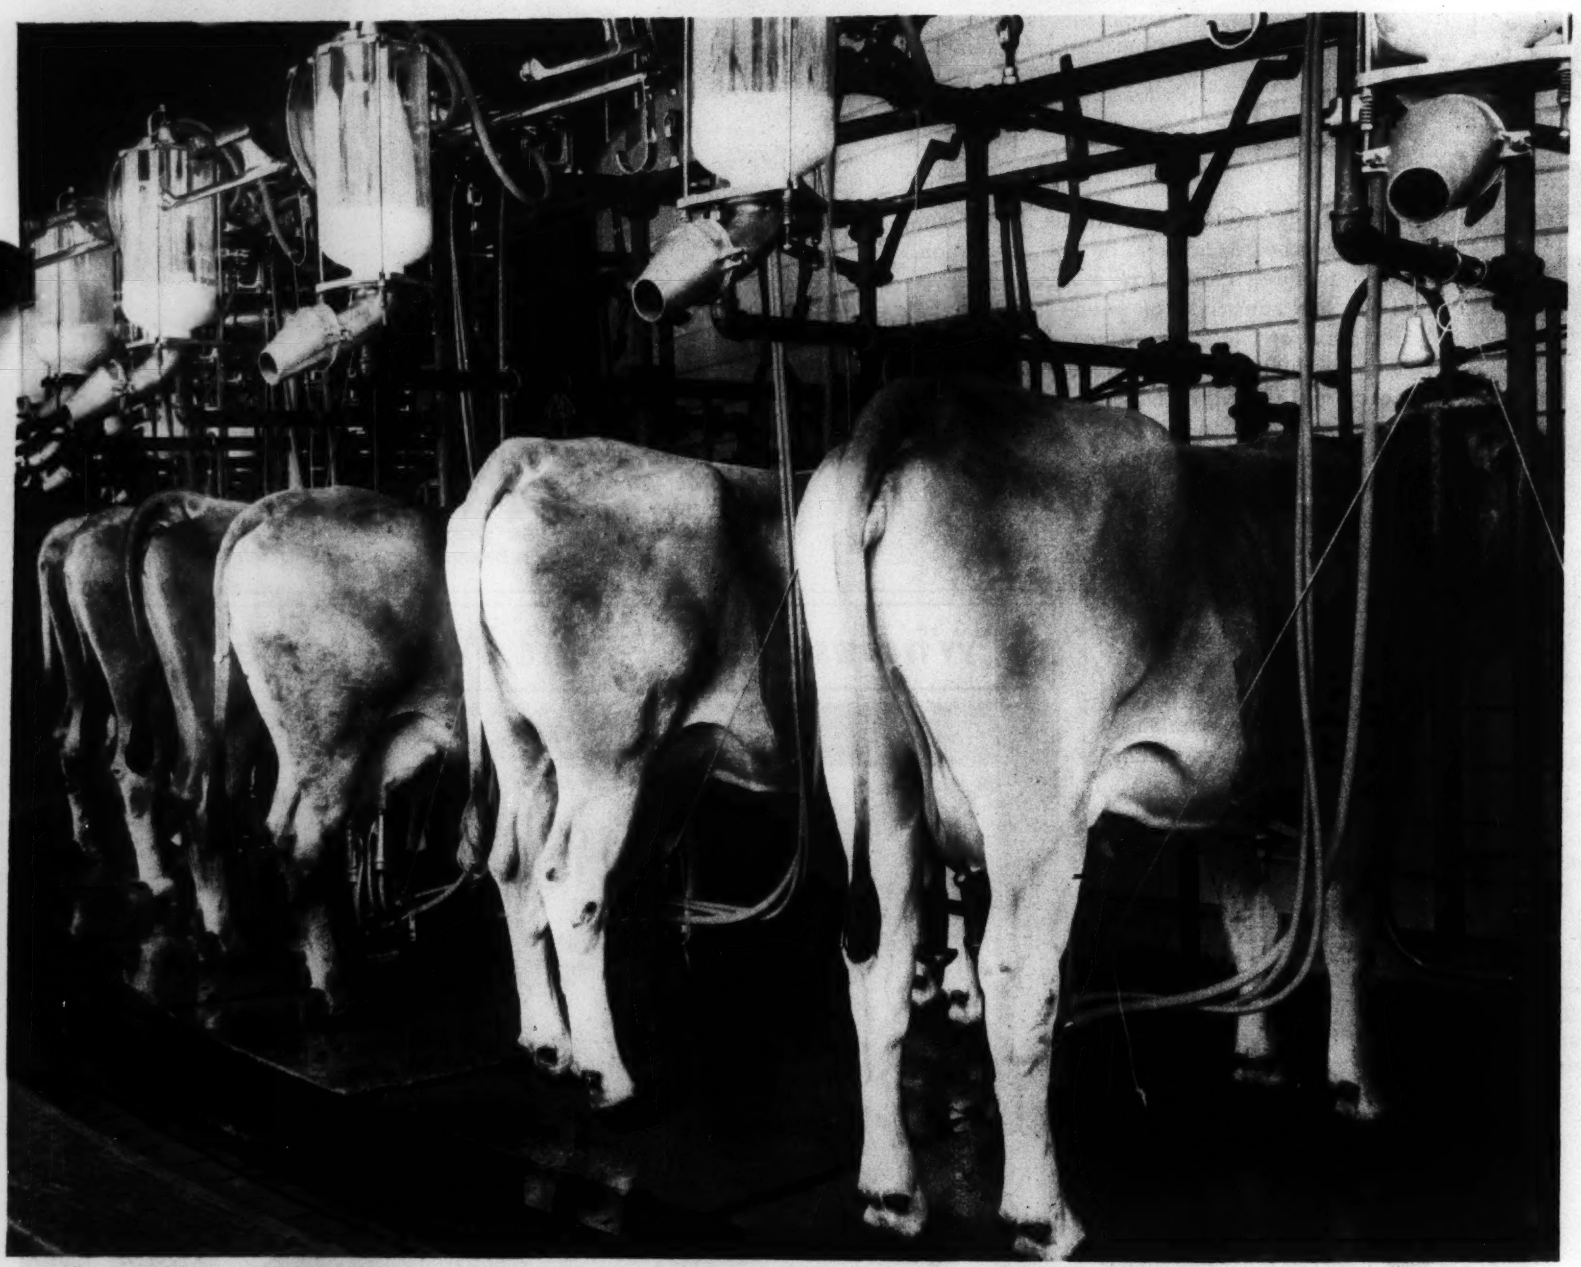
Milking Cows on a Merry-Go-Round



The milking platform, called a rotolactor by its inventor, Henry W. Jeffers Sr., takes a succession of cows as it moves to left. In center, attendants adjust apparatus to new arrivals, whose milk jars will soon be filling as are those farther on.



These cows have just been bathed, their udders dried with sterilized cloths, the first milk inspected and the mechanical milking tubes attached to convey the milk to the overhead jars. (R. Y. Richie Photo)

THE pictures on this page show how mass production methods have advanced another step in the dairy industry. Three times each day 2000 cows at the Walker-Gordon Laboratory Farms at Plainsboro, New Jersey, step onto a rotating platform to be milked under scientific supervision by the mechanical milkers, 50 at a time. As each cow moves into its place on the electrically-rotated merry-go-round, it is bathed with water at body temperature and milking tubes attached between the udder and a sterilized glass jar. Complete rotation, during which cows are milked dry, takes but 12½ minutes.

(Jack Price photos except as noted)

Before milking, each cow's udder is washed with water.

The mechanical tubes in place, Bossy begins to fulfill her function in life.

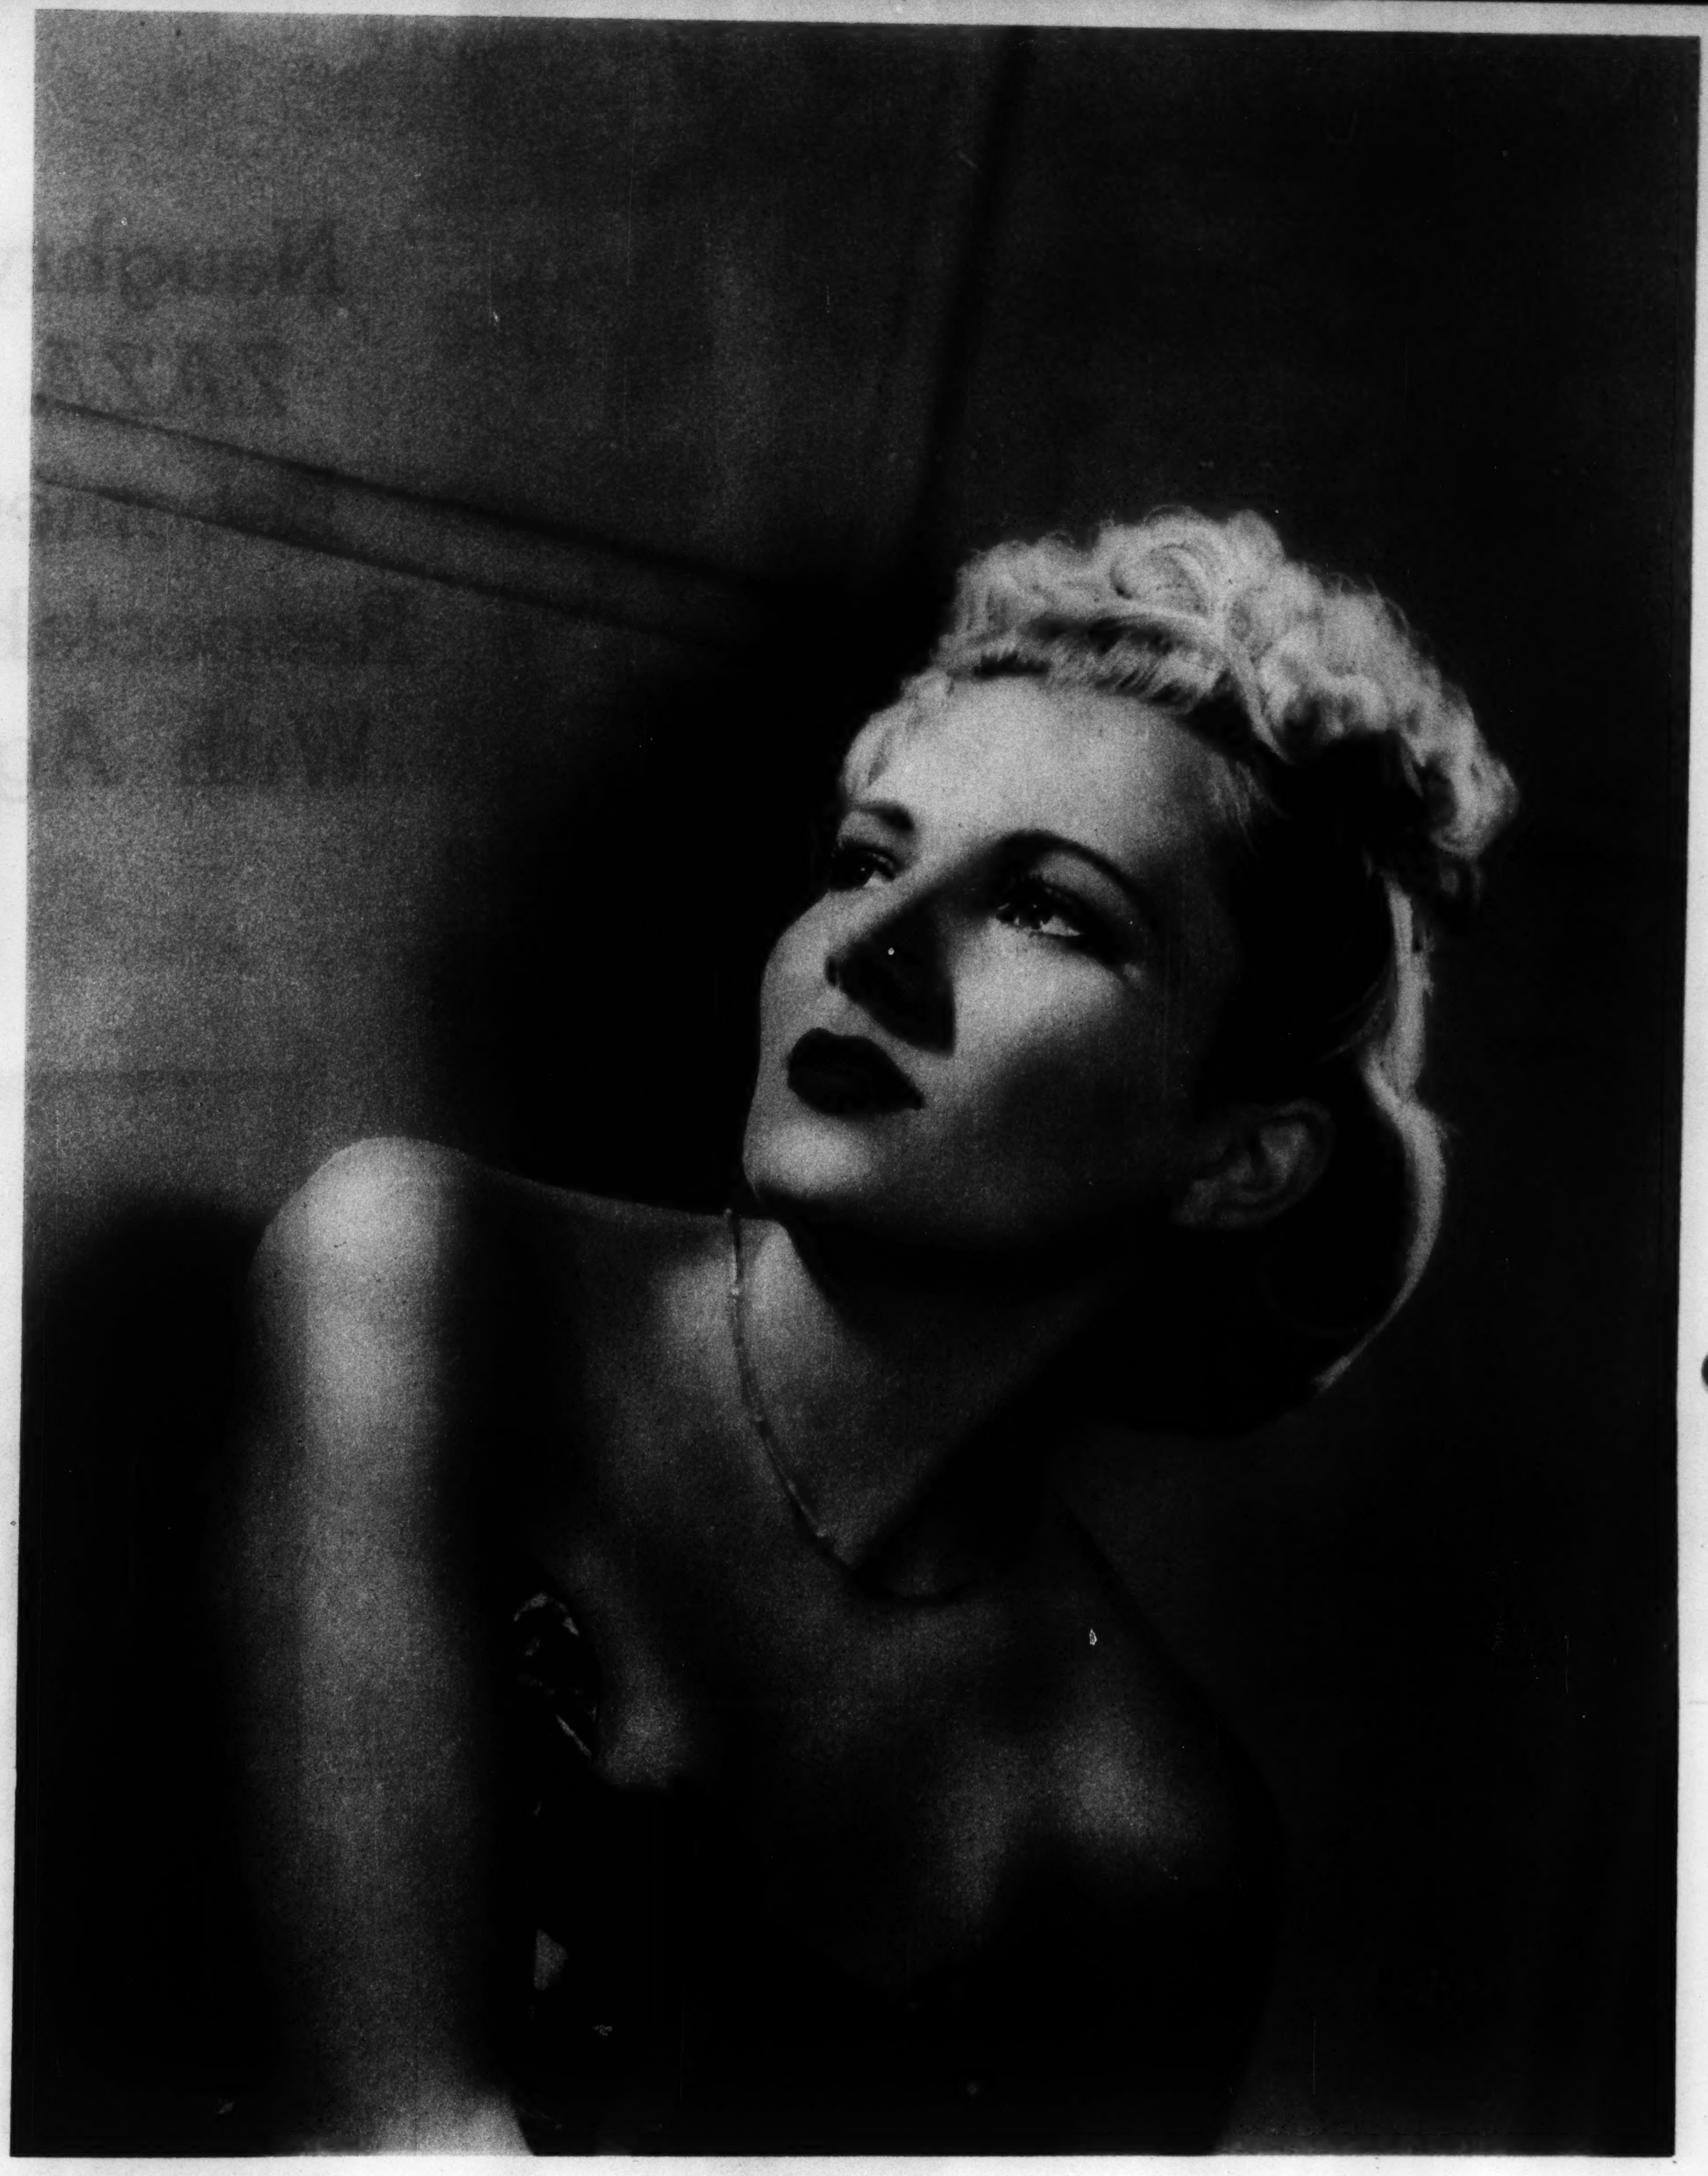
DAUGHTER OF THE WHITE RAJAH

When the bride's mother, the Rani of Sarawak, met them at the dock in New York.

"PRINCESS" BABA, otherwise Valeria Brooke, youngest daughter of Sir Charles V. Brooke, white Rajah of Sarawak, has crashed the movies. The 22-year-old beauty, who was reported separated last October from her wrestler husband, Bob Gregory, has a part in "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man," a film now being made with Charlie McCarthy and W. C. Fields.

Her entry into the movies followed a determined publicity campaign in which she and her husband had their own press agent. She first gained wide attention in 1937 when her parents opposed her marriage to Gregory, which took place in London. Later her father, who rules a part of Northern Borneo, announced he had forgiven her and restored the $3000 annual allowance he stopped at the time of the marriage. However, the Rajah still seemed a little ruffled in a letter he wrote last July to London newspapers in which he said that none of his daughters had a right to the title "Princess."

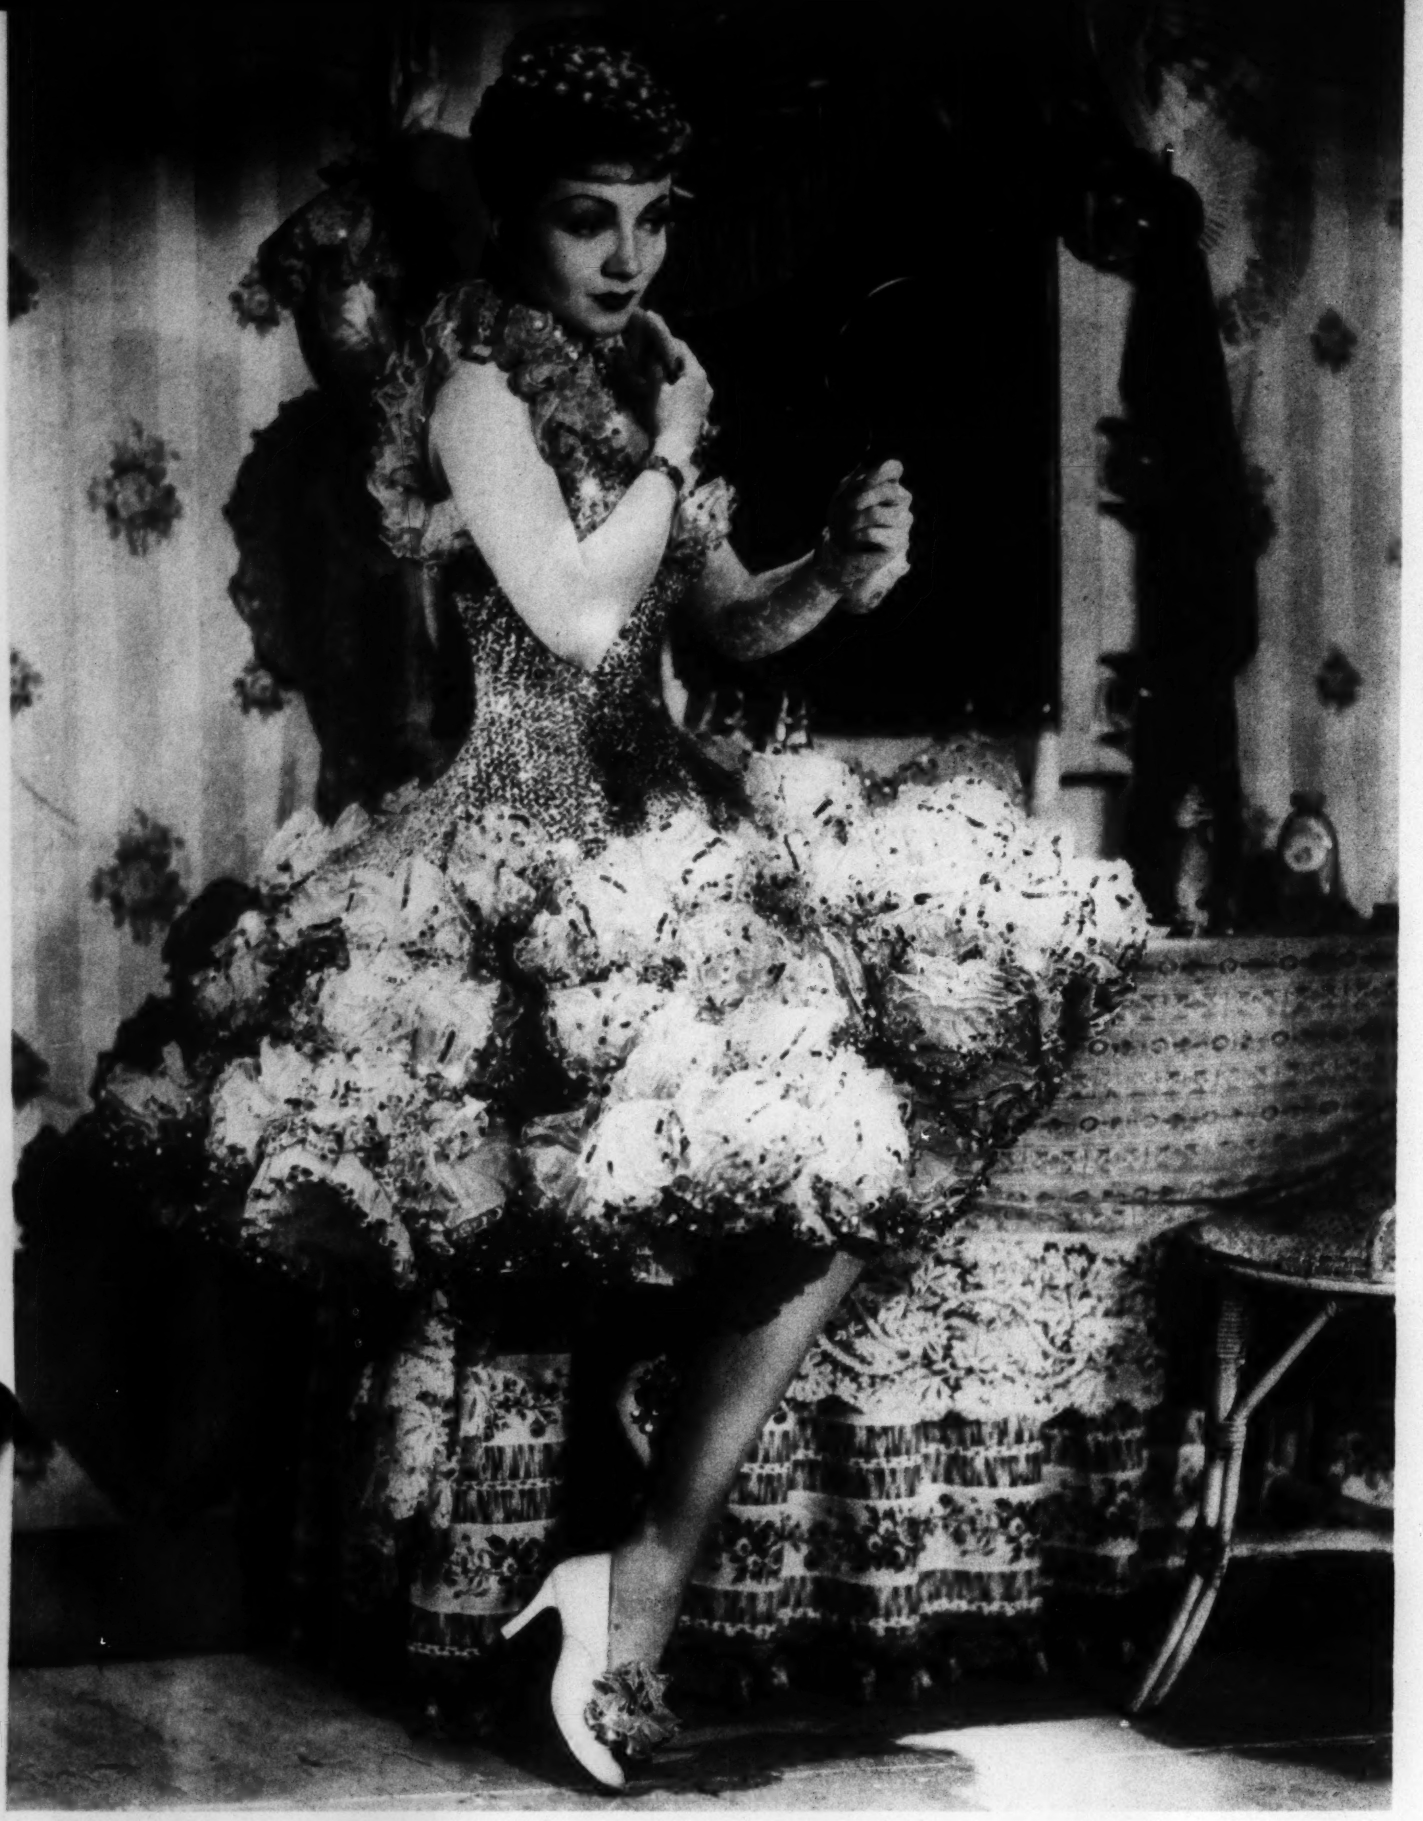


"Princess" Baba, daughter of the British Rajah of Sarawak, now a movie actress.

Baba and her wrestler husband, Bob Gregory, after their marriage in London in 1937.

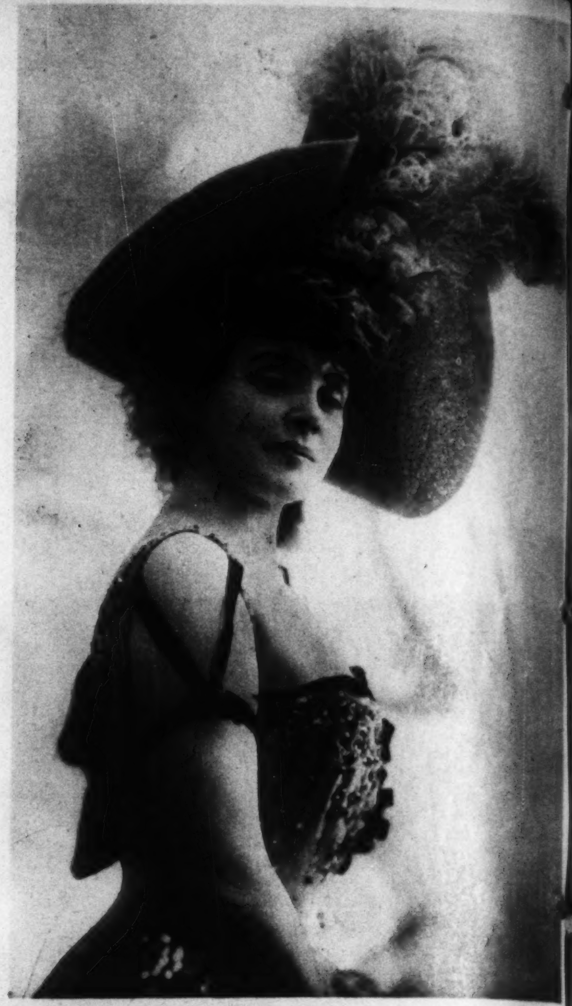
Cutting the wedding cake. She was married under her English name, Valeria Brooke.

Leaving for Hollywood last January.

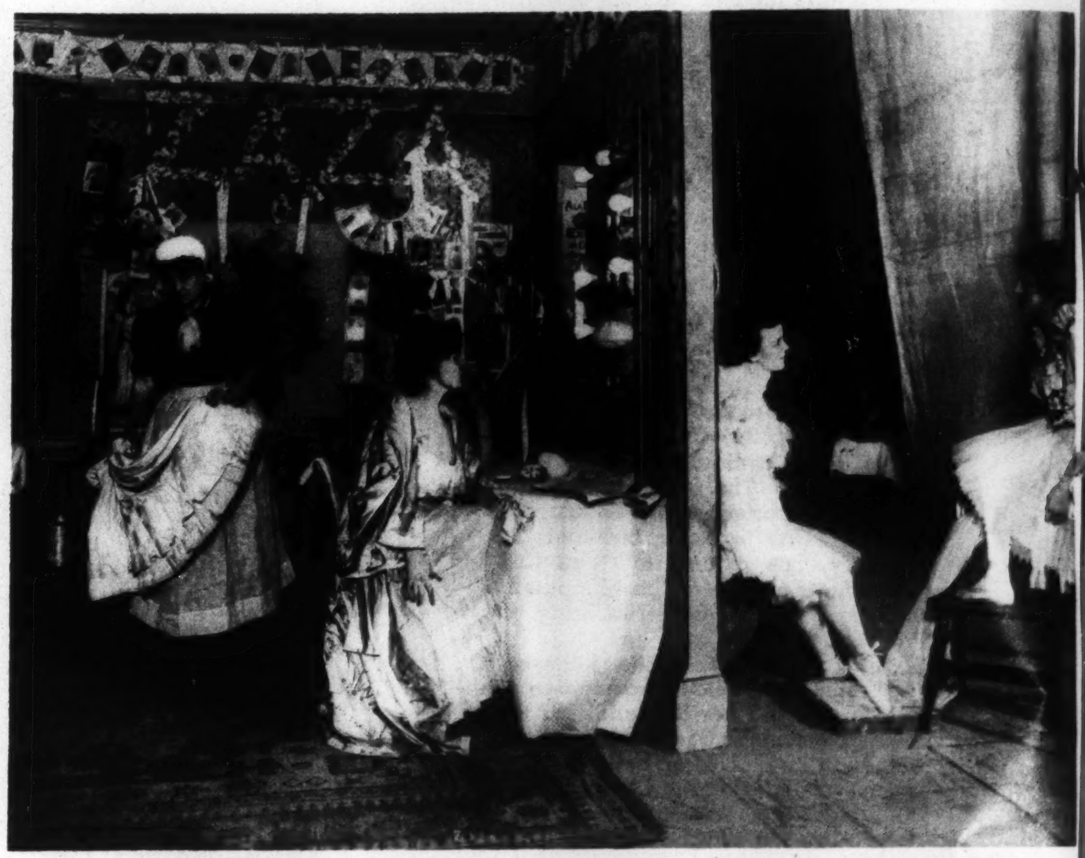


Claudette Colbert as the naughty Zaza.

Naughty ZAZA Becomes Respectable With Age



Gabrielle Rejane, great French actress, shocked Paris with her creation of the tempestuous heroine in 1898. The play failed then, but she revived it in 1904 with great success. (Culver Photo)



David Belasco then toned down the play and presented it in New York in 1899, with the redheaded Mrs. Leslie Carter as the star. Even so, it was attacked as immoral by the clergy. As a result of the furious controversy over it, the play was a smash hit. Mrs. Carter herself said it was "very nasty." She is shown at the dressing table in the first act. (Culver Photo)

ZAZA, the fictional darling of the French music halls, has become well-nigh respectable. When she was first portrayed by the great French actress, Gabrielle Rejane, in a play by Pierre Berton and Charles Simon in 1898, she was a loud, vulgar, though good-natured, little strumpet. So strong was the play that it shocked even Parisian theater-goers, and the drama was a failure. The French siren has been portrayed since by a half-dozen noted actresses, in drama, opera and movies, and with tight censorship is well on her way to becoming just a nice girl who strayed a bit. Now, as played by Claudette Colbert, in the current movie, "Zaza," the famous heroine is merely naughty, a bit of a hoyden perhaps, and maybe on the temperamental side, but really essentially moral. The watchful Will Hays office forced refilming of part of the script to provide a tragic ending, as fit punishment for Zaza for her illicit affair with a married man. And it made Paramount refilm and subdue the cancan scene.

So great was the argument over the play that Mabel Fenton, foremost mimic of the day, presented a successful burlesque of the role in 1900. (Albert Davis Photo)

Zaza first appeared in the movies in 1915, with Pauline Frederick as the siren. It was fairly innocuous. (Culver Photo)

Geraldine Farrar appeared as Zaza in an operatic version at the Metropolitan Opera House in 1920. She created a sensation the first night by stripping to the waist in the first act, although her back was to the audience. (Culver Photo)

By 1923, when Gloria Swanson played the part in a movie, Zaza had ascended the moral ladder considerably. Her mother ceased to be a drunkard, and she married her rich lover. (Culver Photo)

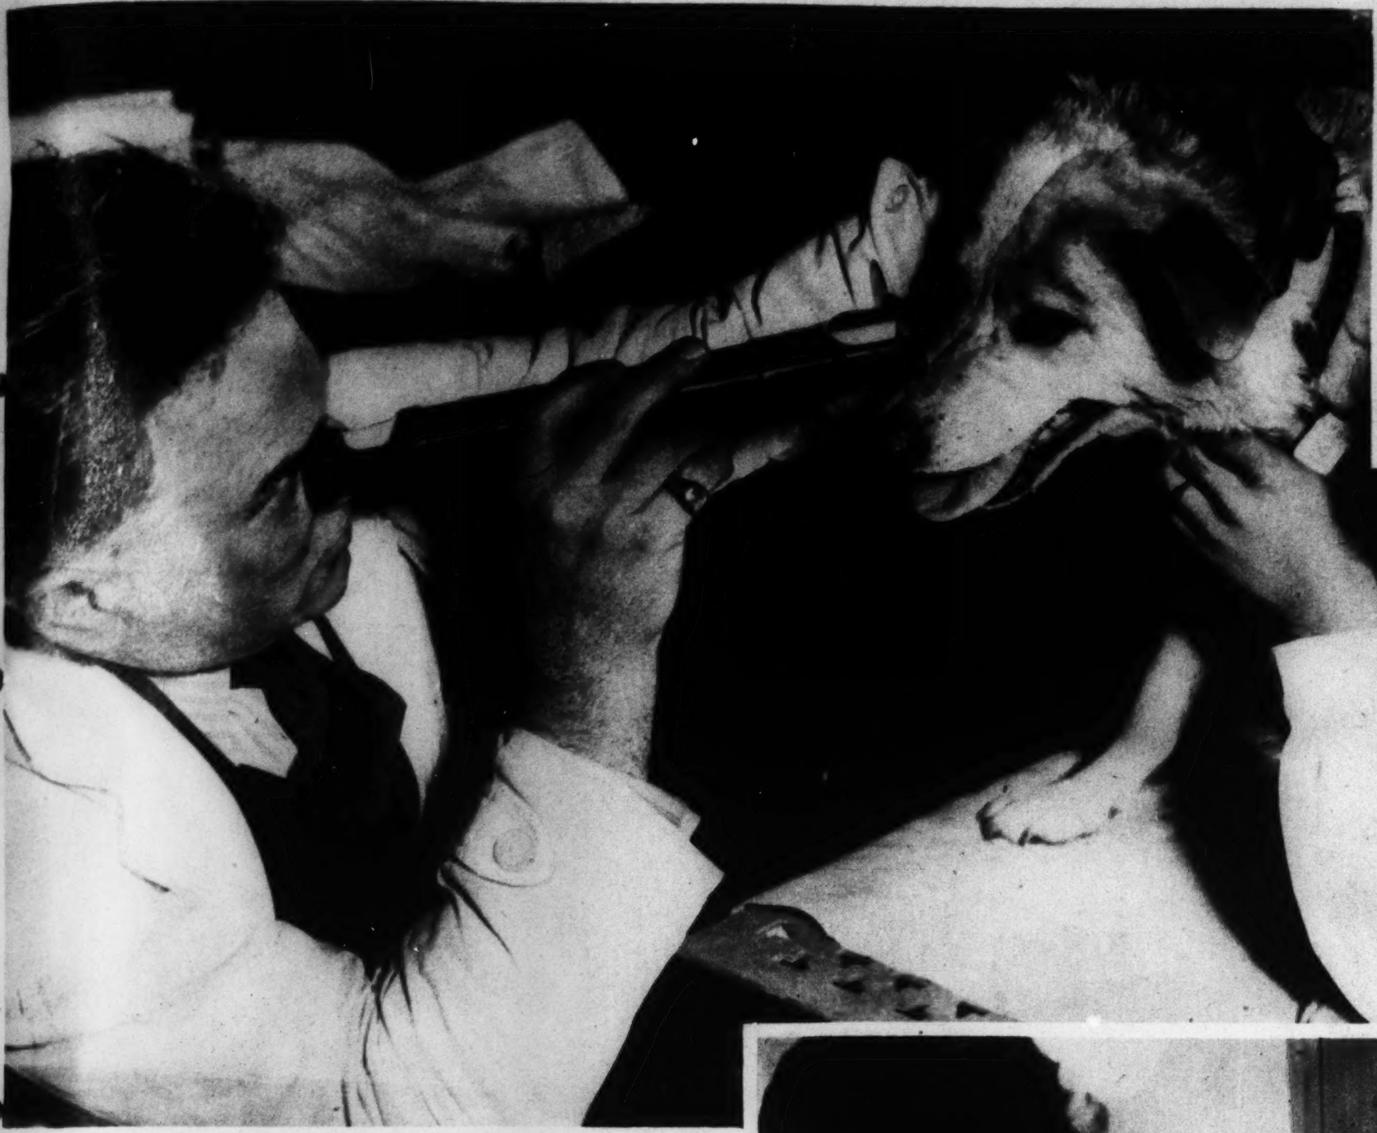
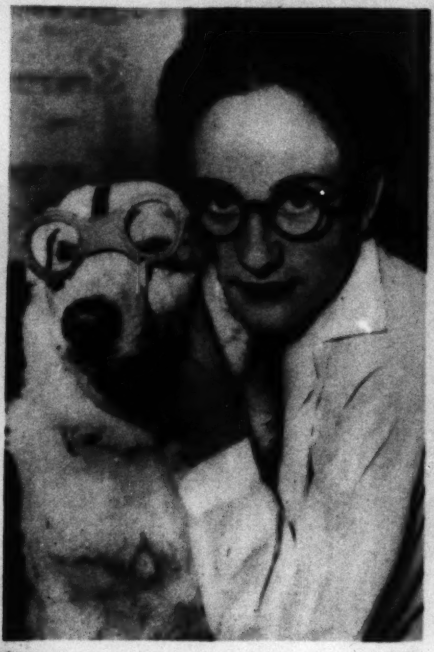
SPECTACLES FOR DOGS



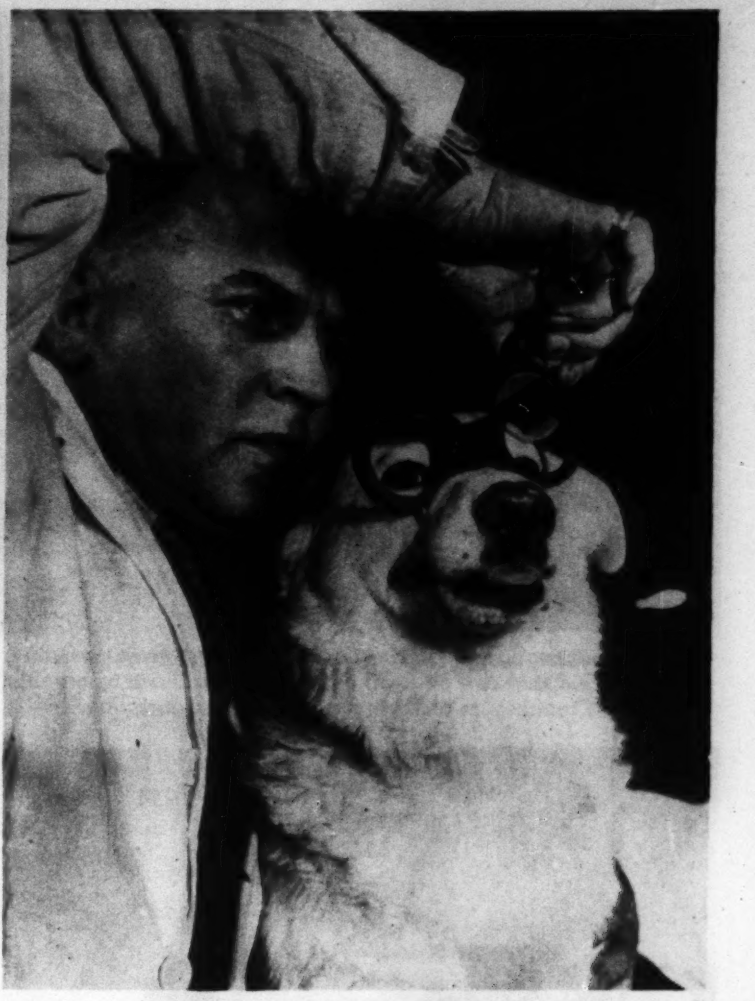
The optician measuring the distance from one eye to the other.

DOGS usually have good eyesight, but some have been found to be short-sighted. Owners with enough money to pay for eye treatment for their dogs have often attempted to get spectacles for them, but it was very difficult, as no way was found to attach them before the dog's eyes without inconvenience to the animal. Recently, however, Robert Muller, a Geneva, Switzerland, optician, worked out a frame to fit around the snout of a dog sent to him for treatment. These pictures show how it was done.

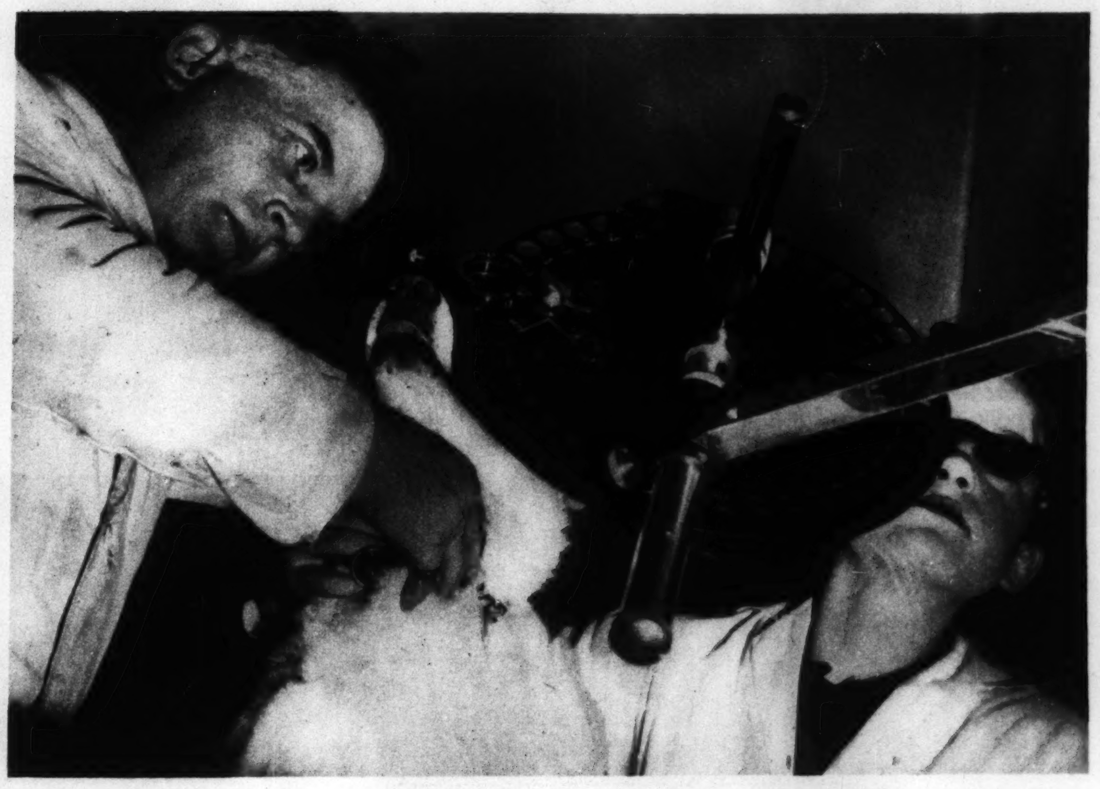
(Photos by Wide World)



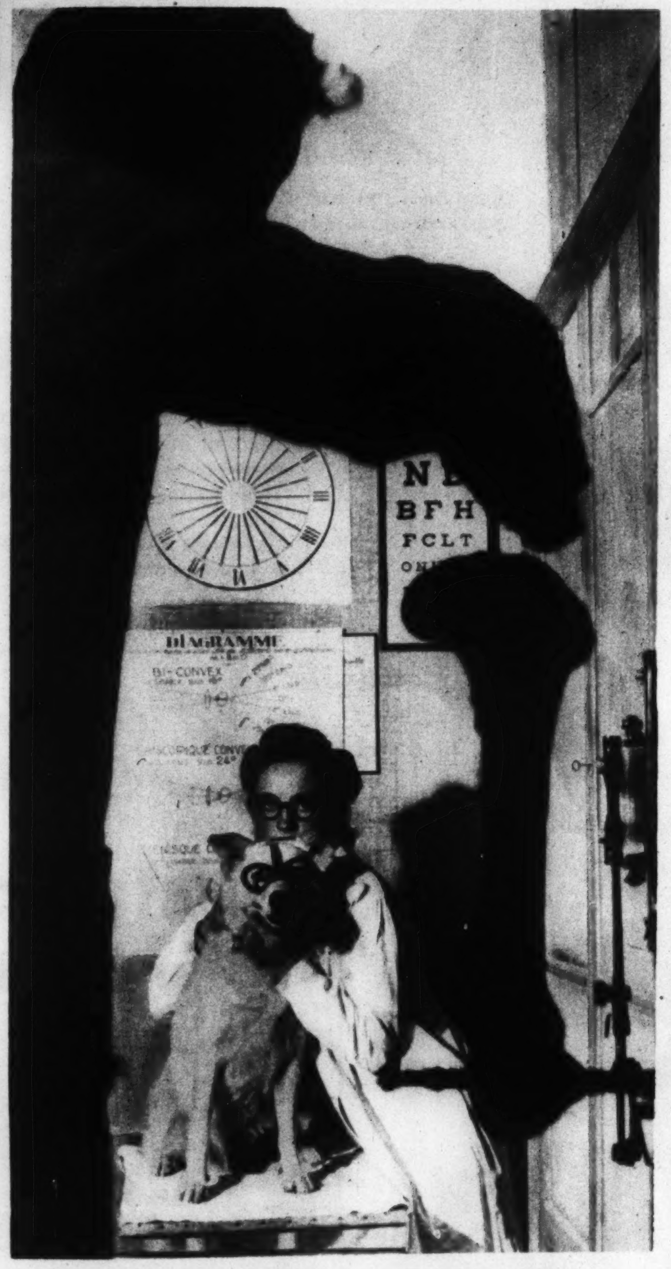
The spectacle frame, used for testing lenses. Two crosspieces of light metal and an elastic loop around the snout hold the frame. The woman is the dog's owner.



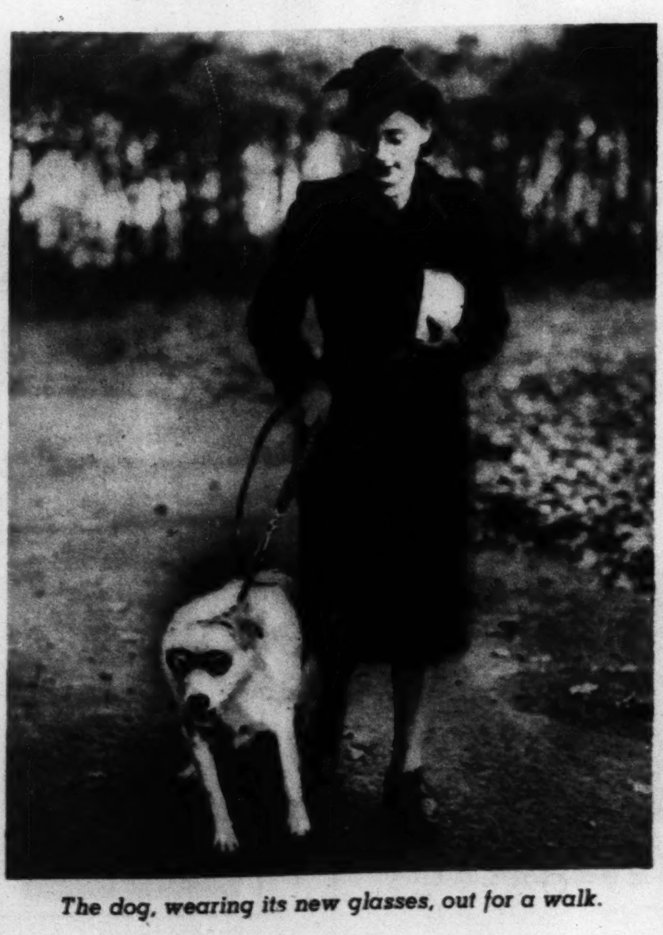
Right, Optician Robert Muller inserting a test lens in the frame.



The dog's eyes were then tested with a refractometer.

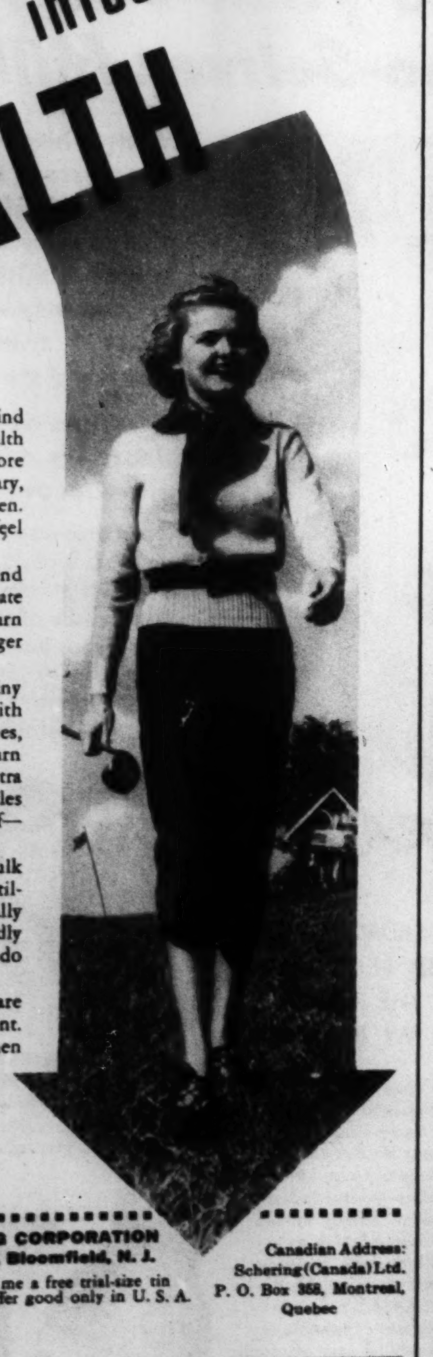


Instead of an eye chart, a bone, with which the dog had been made familiar by allowing him to gnaw on it, was suspended about 15 feet away from the dog. Lenses were fitted into the spectacle frame until the dog saw the bone and tried to reach it.



The dog, wearing its new glasses, out for a walk.

Step this way... to better intestinal HEALTH



You know the kind of intestinal health we mean . . . clearer-headed, more care-free health. Why? Because dreary, sluggish days don't come so often. You have more days when you feel right on top of the world.

Take the first step towards that kind of intestinal health today. Investigate Saráka*—the laxative that helps turn lazy intestinal muscles into stronger workers for your better health.

Saráka comes in the form of tiny brown granules, easily swallowed with a drink of water. Inside the intestines, these granules absorb water and turn into soft, smooth BULK. This extra bulk gives the intestinal muscles something they can catch hold of—encourages them to exercise.

But Saráka does not rely on bulk alone. Saráka gives Bulk Plus Motility.* This laxative contains a specially treated cortex frangula which mildly stimulates the intestinal muscles to do their work more thoroughly.

Results of this balanced action are not violent—or embarrassingly urgent. Most users recall healthy youth when constipation was seldom thought of. Ask your doctor about Saráka and the safety of Bulk Plus Motility. The coupon will bring you a free trial-size tin.

"Come and get it men... the breakfast you both need!"

CREAM of WHEAT is rich in food energy yet easy to digest

It isn't only baby who needs Cream of Wheat (though babies have thrived on it for forty-four years). It isn't only boys and girls who need its healthful food energy (although the top-flight children in any school group are often the "Cream of Wheaters").

But Daddy and Mother, too, have hard hours ahead. And the whole family is off to a head start when they begin the day with this popular hot breakfast cereal . . . the cereal that brings you the digestible parts of the wheat, none of its harsh, scratchy particles. Here's real food energy . . . in a form good to eat!

Ask your grocer for a package of delicious, digestible Cream of Wheat.

40 SERVINGS IN A PACKAGE! That's economy! Servings for 40 big breakfasts . . . packed with food energy . . . 40 breakfasts that start the day right! It's the sign of a careful mother—a "good manager" to invest in delicious Cream of Wheat!

DOCTOR KNOWS BEST! He'll tell you when to start your baby on digestible Cream of Wheat, for 44 years one of Baby's first foods. Write for free copy of "The Important Business of Feeding Children." Cream of Wheat, Minneapolis, Minn.

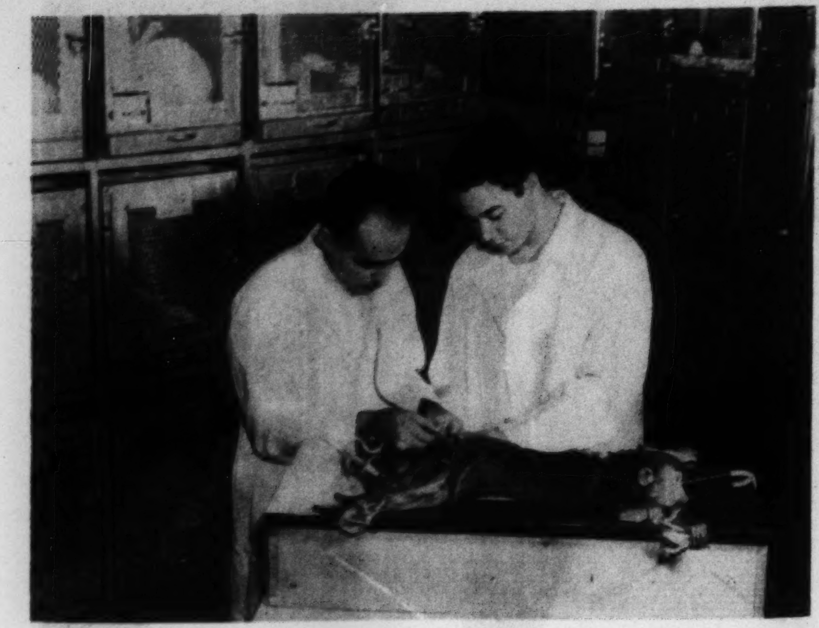
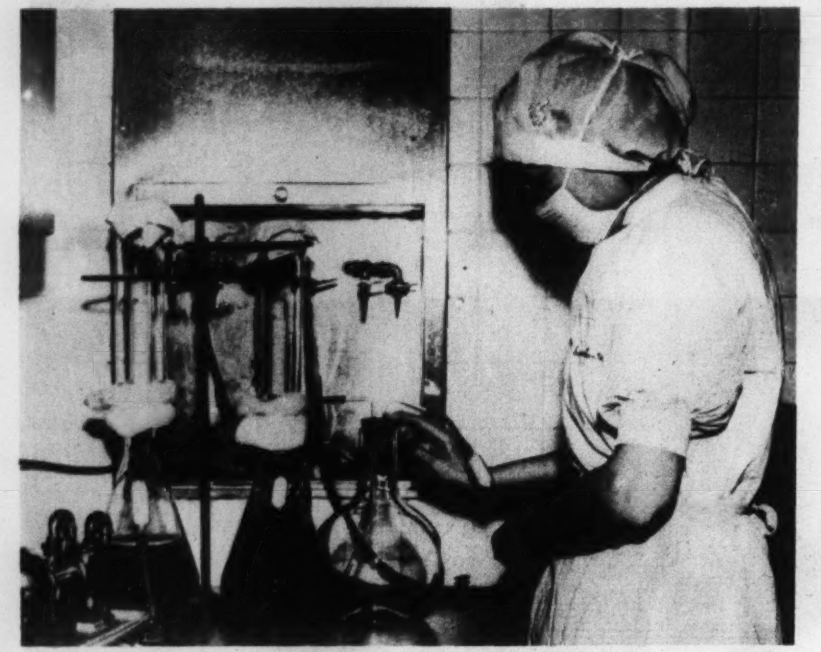
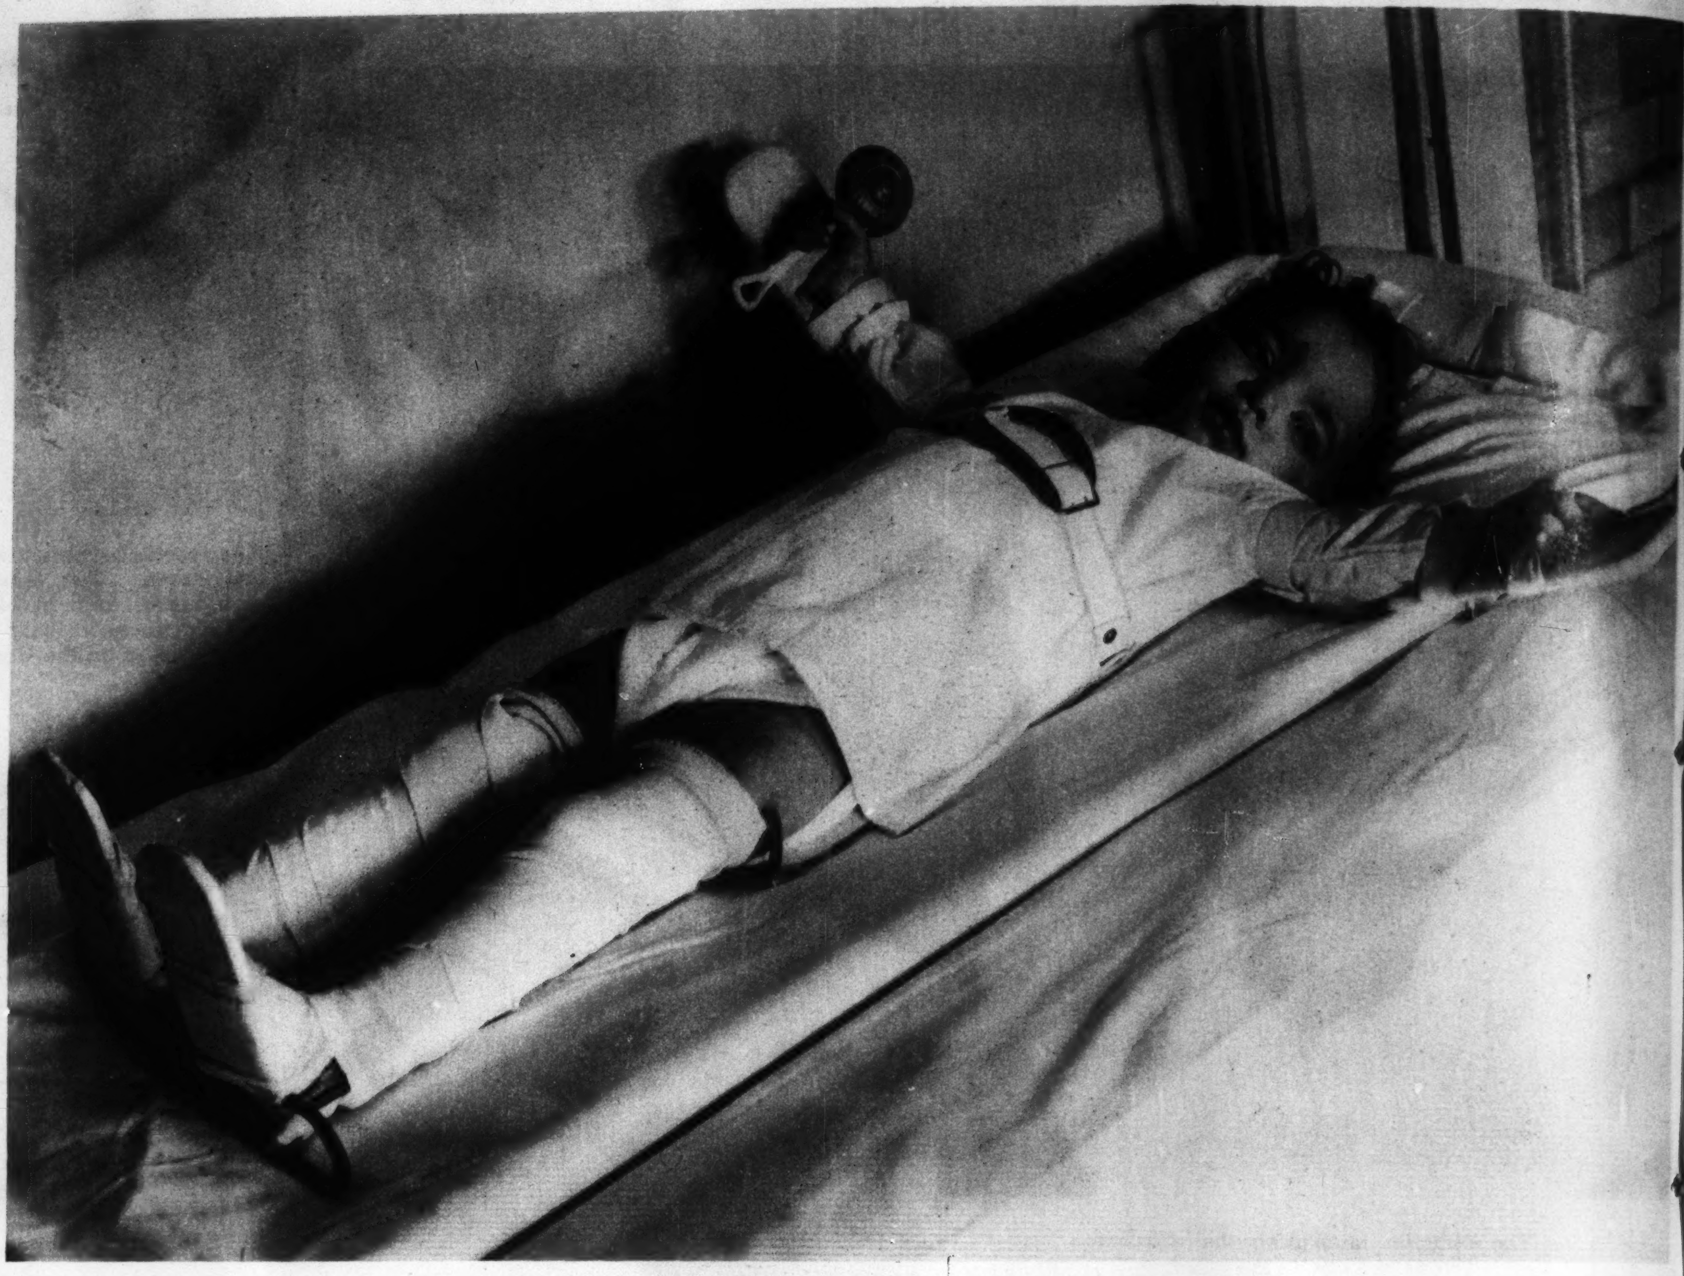
The President's Birthday and the Fight Against INFANTILE PARA



Rhesus monkeys, the kind used by old-time organ grinders, are the only kind that can be used in infantile paralysis research. This monkey is receiving a hypodermic injection.

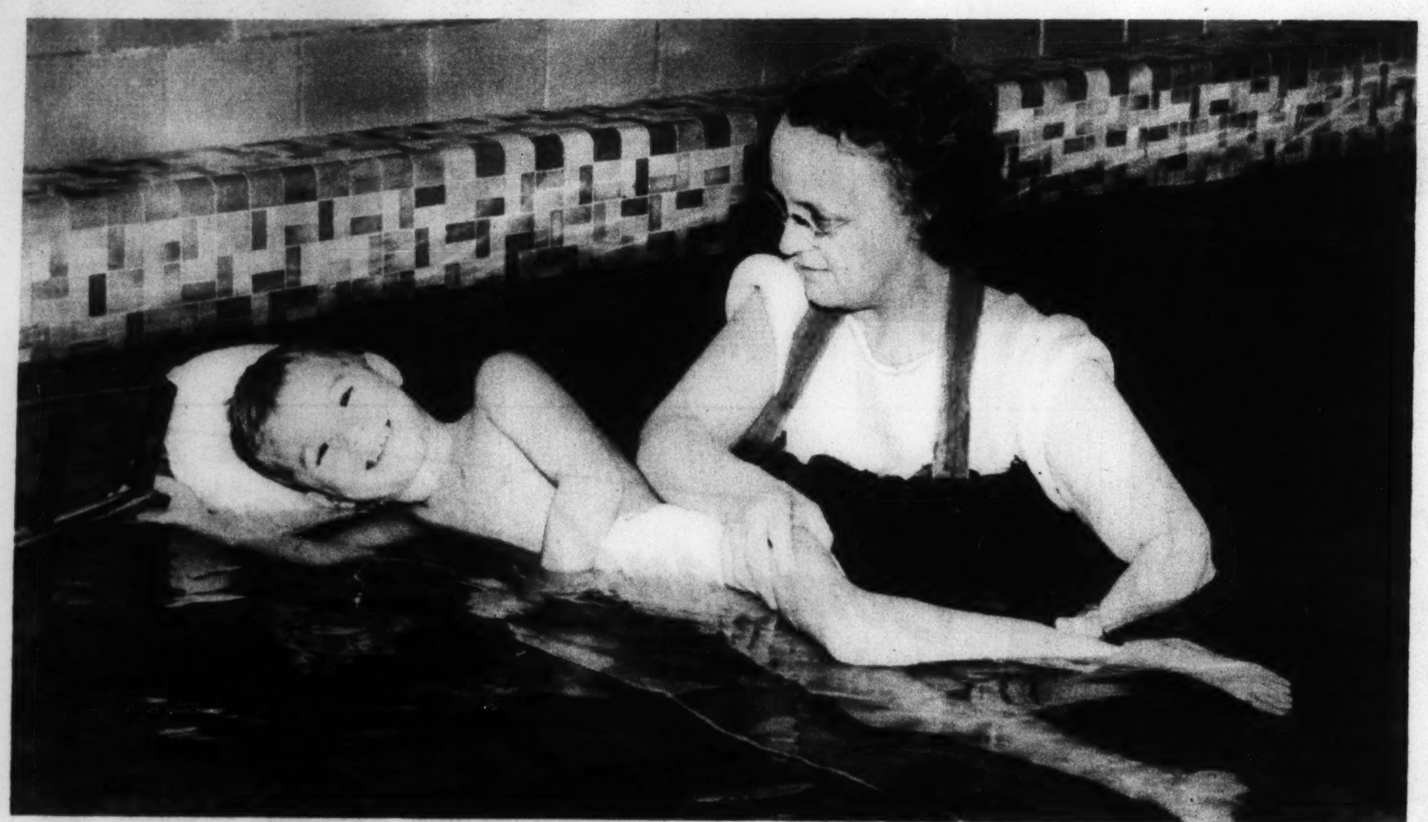


Researchers in many laboratories seek a reliable preventive against the polio virus. When it is developed, a long step will have been taken in the fight against the mutilating sickness.

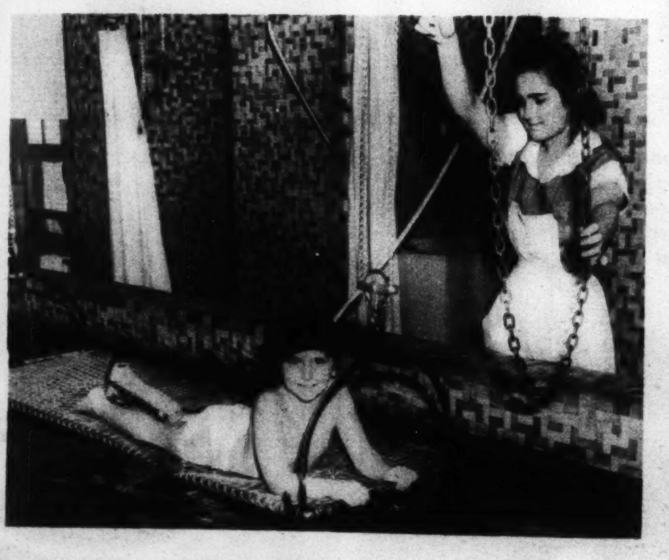


This small patient at the Crippled Children's Clinic in Birmingham, Alabama, has long months to lie like this. If he should be allowed to get up too soon his muscles might be irreparably stretched and weakened.

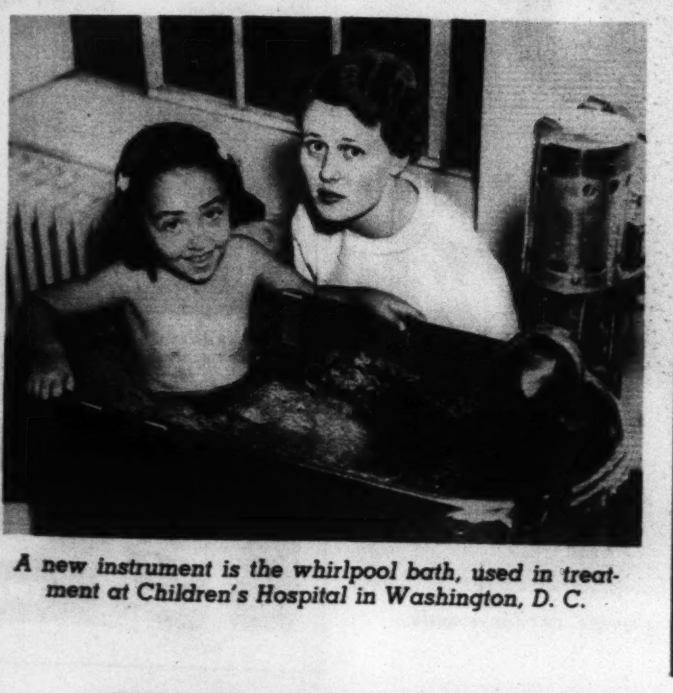
ON JANUARY 30 President Franklin D. Roosevelt will celebrate his fifty-seventh birthday, at which time birthday dinners and balls will be held all over the country, not so much as a personal celebration, but as an occasion to raise funds and redirect the nation's attention to the continuing fight on infantile paralysis. The disease, so-called because it usually strikes its victims in childhood and youth, is as yet unconquered, but medical science is steadily progressing toward the day when infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis) will be added to such scourges as smallpox, rabies and diphtheria as a controlled disease. On these pages, PICTURES shows the progress made from the early days by the work being carried on in medical centers about the country.



It has been found that patients often can move muscles under water which otherwise are paralyzed. This boy is being treated in the therapeutic pool at the Toledo (Ohio) Society for Crippled Children.



This springboard enables the patient to be lowered into the water without danger of stretching weak muscles.



A new instrument is the whirlpool bath, used in treatment at Children's Hospital in Washington, D. C.

Better way to give him COD LIVER OIL

1. Scott's Emulsion—made from selected cod liver oil—is four times easier to digest than plain cod liver oil . . . because the cod liver oil is broken into tiny, easily digested units by our exclusive process. Children are less apt to regurgitate (spit up) Scott's Emulsion.

2. It is pleasant tasting . . . easy for children to take.

3. It is rich in Vitamins A and D. Babies and children have thrived on it for 60 years.

Do as millions of other mothers have done and as many doctors recommend . . . give your child cod liver oil in this more easily digested form—SCOTT'S EMULSION. Get a bottle at your druggist's today.

HEADACHE strains your NERVES

Take Bromo-Seltzer. Millions do!

GENE SARAZEN

With a headache, your nervous system is disturbed. You feel irritable, depressed. That's why headache is best treated with a special kind of remedy—made to do at least 2 things . . . relieve pain and steady your nerves.

Bromo-Seltzer does both. Tests by a group of doctors have proved this.

Next time your head aches, take Bromo-Seltzer. Your headache is relieved—you feel steadier, less dragged down.

In cases of frequently recurring or persistent headache, see your doctor. For the ordinary headache—take Bromo-Seltzer. Keep it at home always. Buy it at any drugstore—soda fountain.

"WHEN I HAVE A HEADACHE, I TAKE BROMO-SELTZER BECAUSE IT NOT ONLY EASES THE PAIN FAST, IT ALSO CALMS MY NERVES"

Twice winner of the National Open Golf Championship—in one year holder of both the American and British titles—Gene Sarazen says: "Steady nerves count high in golf. That's why Bromo-Seltzer is my headache remedy." Bromo-Seltzer is especially made to ease headache fast and to steady nerves.

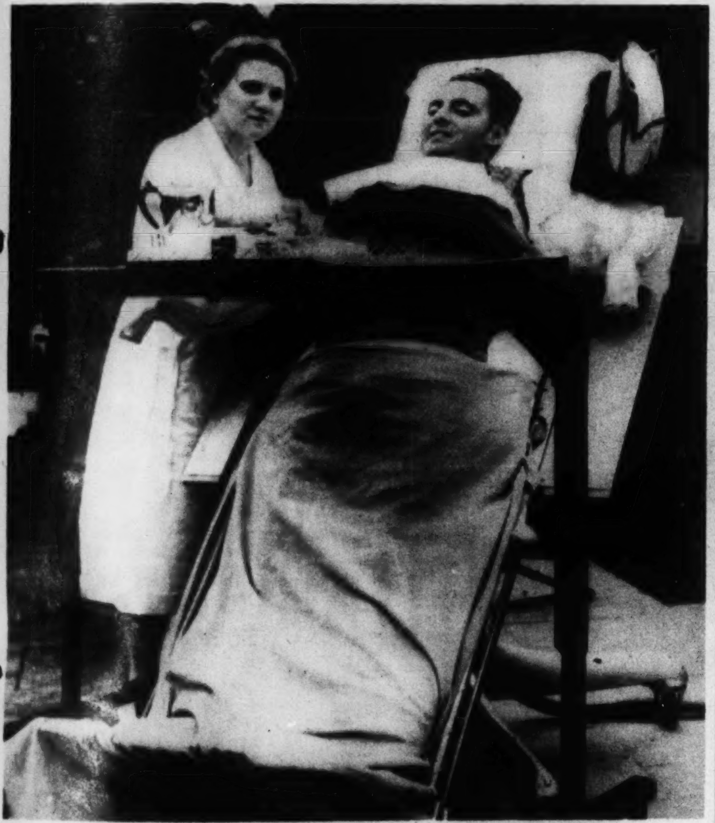
Persons who have had infantile paralysis give blood in an Illinois State clinic at East St. Louis in the quest for a serum to relieve new sufferers.



Frederick B. Snite, Chicago financier's son paralyzed for more than two years, spends much of his time in an "iron lung." Lord Nuffield, automobile manufacturer, recently said he would donate 1000 of these automatic inhalators to English hospitals. There are only about 350 in the United States.

Georgia Coleman, Olympic diving champion, was stricken in 1937, but, aided by courage and perseverance, recovered.

The Australian kangaroo can clear a nine-foot barrier from a level take-off and may span 30 feet in the air before landing. An extremely fast animal, it normally does not exceed 16 feet when hopping at high speed. Kangaroos have survived the depredations of settlers and hunters and in some areas are so plentiful as to become a pest to the farmers and sheep men.

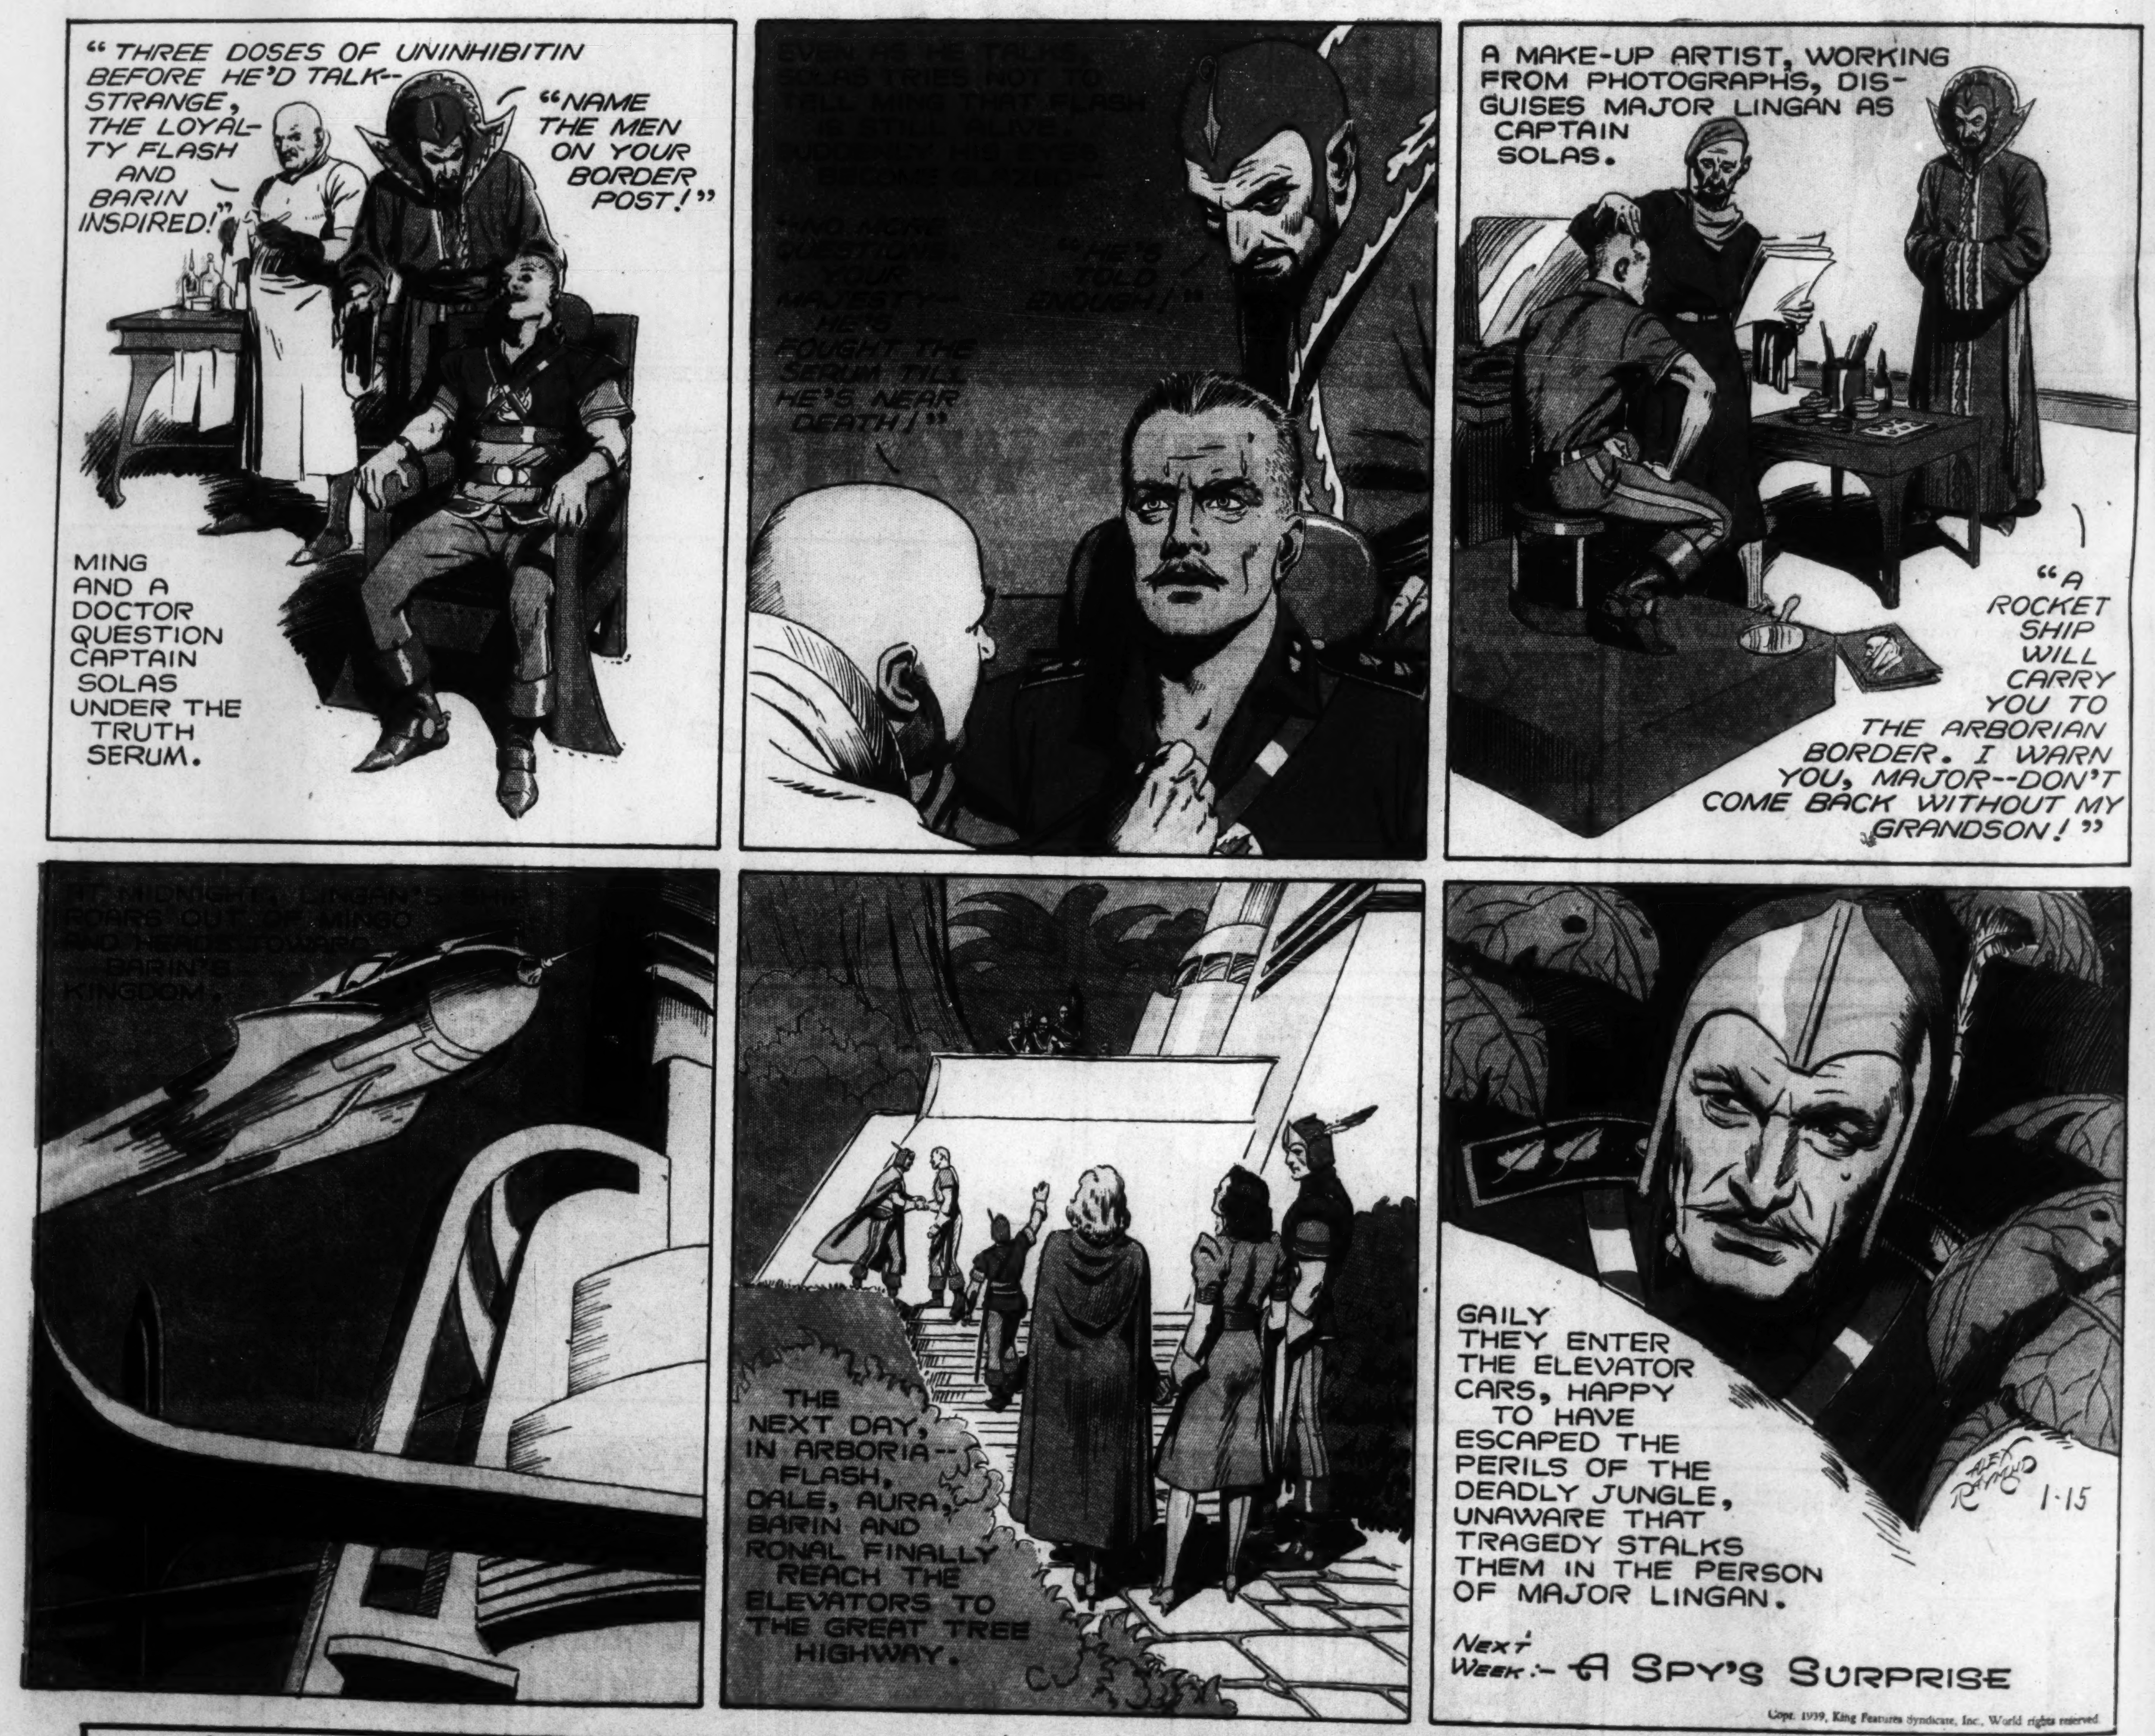
Flash Gordon

Registered U. S. Patent Office



"THREE DOSES OF UNINHIBITIN BEFORE HE'D TALK--STRANGE, THE LOYALTY FLASH AND BARIN INSPIRED!"
"NAME THE MEN ON YOUR BORDER POST!"
MING AND A DOCTOR QUESTION CAPTAIN SOLAS UNDER THE TRUTH SERUM.
EVEN AS HE TALKS, SOLAS TRIES NOT TO TELL MING THAT FLASH IS STILL ALIVE. SUDDENLY HIS EYES BECOME GLAZED--
"NO MORE QUESTIONS, YOUR MAJESTY--HE'S FOUGHT THE SERUM TILL HE'S NEAR DEATH!"
"HE'S TOLD ENOUGH!"
A MAKE-UP ARTIST, WORKING FROM PHOTOGRAPHS, DISGUISES MAJOR LINGAN AS CAPTAIN SOLAS.
"A ROCKET SHIP WILL CARRY YOU TO THE ARBORIAN BORDER. I WARN YOU, MAJOR--DON'T COME BACK WITHOUT MY GRANDSON!"
AT MIDNIGHT, LINGAN'S SHIP ROARS OUT OF MINGO AND HEADS TOWARD BARIN'S KINGDOM.
THE NEXT DAY, IN ARBORIA--FLASH, DALE, AURA, BARIN AND RONAL FINALLY REACH THE ELEVATORS TO THE GREAT TREE HIGHWAY.
GAILY THEY ENTER THE ELEVATOR CARS, HAPPY TO HAVE ESCAPED THE PERILS OF THE DEADLY JUNGLE, UNAWARE THAT TRAGEDY STALKS THEM IN THE PERSON OF MAJOR LINGAN.

Whole-grain oatmeal which you get in Quaker Oats, is not only a rich source of Thiamin but is also excellent in iron needed for rich, red blood. Also contains phosphorus. Strength-giving proteins. Lots of food-energy. Here's your real winter breakfast.

THIAMIN FOR ENERGY AND SOUND NERVES
Success in all sports—work and play requires the vitalizing spark of Thiamin—for everybody.

THIAMIN IS VITAL FOR NORMAL GROWTH
Oatmeal, richest thrifty source of Thiamin, is the breakfast smart boys and girls want.

HOT QUAKER OATMEAL TASTES EXTRA DELICIOUS THESE WINTER MORNINGS
Simply nothing replaces the appetizing tang, the delicious flavor of hot, whole-grain, Quaker Oats.

DID YOU KNOW?

- Oatmeal leads all whole-grain cereals in valuable proteins that build firm muscles, sound flesh, not fat.
- Oatmeal is outstanding among whole-grain cereals for iron. Also contains phosphorus.
- Oatmeal is a whole-grain food—so digestible it is included on the menus for infants and many invalids.
- Oatmeal, hailed by nutrition experts for many health advantages, is now known to be richest thrifty source of Thiamin, absolutely necessary for perfect health—sound nerves—energy—muscular strength—normal growth.

READ THIS IMPORTANT MESSAGE
—Then Hand to Another Member of Your Family

NOW KNOWN—THIAMIN (VITAMIN B₁) IS VITALIZING SPARK EVERYBODY NEEDS

● Now, as never before you'll choose a delicious piping hot bowl of whole-grain Quaker Oats, as your ideal winter breakfast. For science has told us that we all need, every day, that great vitalizing vitamin called Thiamin. It's a vitalizing spark every one must have for perfect health. It helps turn food into energy. It's necessary for sound nerves. Without it, we cannot feel our best, look our best, think our best. And it's absolutely necessary to children for normal growth.

You get Thiamin in delicious Quaker Oats. In fact, oatmeal is the richest thrifty source.

Add up all of the health advantages of oatmeal. It's excellent in iron for rich, red blood. It leads all whole-grain foods in valuable proteins that provide lasting strength—build muscles and firm flesh, not fat. It's rich in food-energy.

Now is the time to enjoy those steaming bowls of delicious Quaker Oats. You want the famous Quaker flavor that comes from Quaker's special roasting of sun-ripened, whole grains.

Do you pay a high price for all of these Quaker advantages? You do not. Instead you save money. For Quaker is so economical each serving actually costs less than ½ cent. And Quaker's special process is the real answer to a truly quick, hot breakfast—Quick Quaker Oats is easily prepared, in as little as 2½ minutes.

Get vitalizing Thiamin—the whole combination of health values—the delicious flavor of genuine Quaker Oats for your family. Remember to ask your grocer for a big, economical package—right away.
